UNO Delegates Await Answer To Iran Offer

Russian Answer Not Yet Revealed

Hunter College, the Bronx, April 3—UNO Security Council delegates met informally this afternoon to frame what they hope will be a final solution of the Iranian problem. Before entering the private meeting, delegates agreed that the basis for a solution may well have been laid at this morning's dramatic half-hour public session. UNO officials have informed Russian Ambassador Gromyko of Iran's offer to withdraw its charges if Russia will give unconditional assurance that the Red Army will evacuate the country by May 6. Gromyko's reply has not yet been made public, but it may be revealed when the council reconvenes in public tomorrow morning at 11 a. m. Council members believe that the international situation has been considerably eased by the replies placed before the council this morning by both Russia and Iran.

First Article Gets Approval Of Legislature

Article I of the proposed constitution was passed by a 14-10 vote at last night's student legislature meeting which also passed part of a series of amendments to Article II, proposed by Wally Murchison.

Most of the discussion that took place in regard to Article I was following Allan Pannill's

The legislature will consider the constitution again tonight in Gerrard Hall at 8 o'clock, instead of meeting at 7:30 p.m.

motion to strike from Section 4 of the proposed constitution the authority of the student legislature to review rules made by the dance committee. The motion was defeated by 14-9.

The narrow margin by which Article I was passed was due to the objection made by some members of the convention to the provision in it that called for what was considered the codification of the honor code.

Article I as it stands amended provides for limiting the power of the legislature to collect fees to a maximum of $20 for a full four quarter year unless a majority of students decide to increase the amount.

It also provides for a two-thirds vote of the legislature instead of the three-fifths to override a presidential veto. The composition of the Men's Interdorm Council has been changed to include only the dorm presidents as voting members of the group with the dormitory counselors serving as non-voting members.

Dr. Craig Hits Students At Convocation

Noted English Teacher Pleads for Diligence

Referring to the growing lack of development of the college student's capabilities, Dr. Hardin Craig, "roving" professor of English at the University, hit at the heart of the problem in a convocation of all students held in Memorial Hall yesterday, stating that "There is nothing more abundant than ability, and nothing scarcer than diligence."

Before an audience of 2100 students, Craig, speaking on "The North Carolina Renaissance," scored the attitude of many college men who merely want to "get by" and cited the returning veteran students as the source of a rebirth of the true human spirit of culture.

He showed from a recent newspaper survey that Veterans are going to school truly for education, proof of which was given in a national survey which showed that veterans grades averaged higher than those of any other group of students. "The ones who fought to save our country during the war may be working to save its intellect in the peace," he prophesied.

UNC Can Be Great

"The University of North Carolina can in a decade become the greatest University in the world, through the individual honest, hard work of the students. We need only to work intelligently, realize the unconquerability of the human will, and have faith, to find this greatness," he stated.

Craig's speech, which was very well received by the same student audience that he was scoring, carried the theme of diligence in college further, stating that "I hope many of you are mature enough to realize that an easy success in life is not true success. North Carolina students have the power to develop greatness in every field."

Phi to Tackle Entertainment Job Tonight

Harland, Pannill Slated to Appear

The Philanthropic Assembly will tonight at 7:30 in the Phi Hall present as the topic for discussion "Resolved: That Student Entertainment on the Campus Should Be Improved," a subject which has caused much discussion among recent student gatherings.

Speaker A. B. Smith, Jr., has announced that Dr. J. Penrose Harland and Allan Pannill have been invited to present the views of the Student Entertainment Committee on the issue. Robert Morrison, Roy Thompson, Sybil Goerch, and Blount Stewart are expected as speakers who will oppose the present system used by the persons in charge of student entertainment.

Prior to the discussion of the main bill of the evening, the second portion of the Phi constitution will be debated and passed. Discussion will also take place on the topic for next week's meeting, proposals for a Phi key, and a proposed panel discussion to be presented by the organization.

A meeting of the Executive Council will be held at 7 o'clock in the Phi Hall, immediately preceding the regular meeting. Speaker Smith announced that the revised council for this term is now composed of Bob Fentress, Bob Morrison, Charlie Borton, Jo Farriss, Alec Davis, Sybil Goerch, Jean Huske, Roy Thompson, Jo Pugh, and Whit Osgood. All members are urged to be present.

Several plans were suggested to the Publications Union board at a meeting yesterday afternoon. One plan was that students be contacted in each dormitory who would be responsible for circulation of the Daily Tar Heel in that particular dorm.

After some deliberation and charges by editor Bob Morrison that the circulation problem was the worst it has been, the board adopted a plan suggested by Westy Fenhagen and Morrison which is designed to relieve the current situation.

The method as suggested by Fenhagen and Morrison was to leave a more adequate supply of Daily Tar Heels at a central point on the campus, preferably the "Y" and to serve the dorms with door to door delivery and mail papers to town and out of town subscribers.

The new plan will be under the operation of the present circulation manager unless other plans are made before Tuesday which is unlikely, according to the board. Tonight the board will meet to delve into the problem more thoroughly with the present circulation manager and attempt to find the main trouble.
