UNO Rupture With Spanish Faces Defeat

Council to Discuss Iran Topic Tuesday

Hunter College, Bronx, N. Y., April 18.—Five nations in the Security Council tonight doomed the Polish demand for an immediate United Nations break with the Franco government of Spain. But a sixth nation—Australia—asked instead for a Council investigation to find out the true facts on Spain. Australian chief delegate Colonel W. R. Hodgson holds that Poland has not proved Spain a threat to the peace. He says that the UN should decide only after hearing the opinion of a five man sub-committee.

Hodgson put forth his suggestion after delegates one by one had spoke on the Polish resolution. Ambassador Gromyko of Russia spoke at length, and with some bitterness, against those nations who would practice non-intervention. Gromyko reminded the delegates that the policy of non-intervention in Spain brought on civil war there.

Wary after three hours of debate the Council adjourned until three o'clock Tuesday. The first item on the program then will be an expert committee's report on the Council's right to keep the Iranian question on its agenda.

Cordon, a noted alumnus of Carolina, satisfied an ambition that he cherished for many years when he this year became Wotan and Wanderer in the "Ring" performances at the Metropolitan; also, the Gurnemanz in "Parsifal."

In recognition of his musical achievement the University gave him an honorary doctor of music degree at the recent sesquicentennial celebration.

Medieval Easter Plays To Be Given Sunday Evening

The second American production of medieval Easter plays will be presented Sunday night at 8 o'clock in the Episcopal Church. These plays, dating from the ninth to the fifteenth century, will be sung in Latin to medieval plainsong music. There will be a brief explanation of each play and the English translation will be printed in the program.

At Easter in 1941, the first time the plays had been presented in this country, the production was so successful that the music was recorded and the whole cast was transported to Washington to give the plays there. Dom Anselm Hughes, O. S. B., a monk of the Anglican church, prepared the music for the plays from ancient manuscripts found in England.

The present production is under the direction of Dr. U. T. Holmes. Those taking parts include Hilda Frances Lawrence, Louise Partrick, Deborah Lewis, Edgar Goold, Gwynn McPeck, John O'Steen, Emmet Gribbin, George Lawrence, Hanford Henderson, John Huddle, James King, Thomas Simkins and Douglas Glasspool.

Legislature Again Changes Editor Set-Up

Fulton Breaks Tie After Long Debate

Another complete reversal of a previous student legislature decision came last night when the constitutional convention voted 11-10 in favor of an amendment providing that the editors of all student publications be nominated and elected by the campus at large. It was the third time that the legislature had reversed itself on this issue.

Jack Lackey, who introduced the amendment, argued that under the constitutional proposal of having the various editors nominated by the three select committees of PU Board, publication staff, and a legislative committee, there would be more political interference than if the political parties conducted the nominations.

Fulton Breaks Tie

A roll call vote on the issue resulted in a 10-10 deadlock and chairman Charles Fulton cast the deciding vote in favor of the amendment.

A compromise amendment was passed by the convention providing that an accused student be guaranteed the right to face his accuser before the Student Honor Council but not before the men's and women's councils.

An amendment introduced by Charles Warren that two-thirds vote of 25% of the student body be required to ratify the proposed constitution was passed. This amendment superseded Wednesday night's amendment that two-thirds of 51% of the students be required.

The convention approved an amendment which would empower the members of the cheering squad to appoint the members for the following year with the stipulation that the head cheerleader be elected by the campus at large.

An amendment to Article I, Section 9 was passed making it "the power of the women's inter-dormitory council to make rules governing conduct concerning dormitories for women and to enforce those rules. All permanent changes shall be subject to the approval of the Coed Senate."

North Carolina Symphony Leader Was Once Youngest Member of Minneapolis Orchestra

Dr. Benjamin F. Swalin, conductor of the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra which appears in concert here Monday night in Memorial hall, is an educator, a musician, and a writer.

At the age of 18, he was the youngest member of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra under Emil Oberhoffer. He began studies in New York with Franz Kneisel two years later, remaining there for five years. He studied with the great Leopold Auer from 1926 to 1930, at the same time taking theoretical work at the Institute of Musical Art.

He graduated from Columbia University, later taking his M.A. degree in English literature there. In Europe he acquired his Ph.D. degree at the University of Vienna, receiving Artist Diplomas from the Hochschule fur Musik.

After teaching at DePauw university, he came to UNC in 1935.

Since 1939, when the NC Symphony Society was reorganized, Dr. Swalin has given his services free. There is an agreement between him and the Symphony Society that he is to receive a dollar a year, but he is usually too busy to collect that.

Dr. Swalin travels from one end of the state to the other, holding unit rehearsals, to maintain standards of excellence among the players who make up the orchestra.

Dr. Swalin, whose one purpose is to improve the quality of the orchestra, has walked five miles in an ice storm in order not to miss a rehearsal.

The conductor directs symphonies from memory, bringing out with dynamic power the best that the 65 musicians on the stage have to offer.

Immediately after his address, the Glee Club will sing Mr. Thompson's "Alleluia" which they sang for the first time in last Saturday's Sesquicentennial celebration.

Recital Scheduled

A recital of original student compositions will be presented at 8 o'clock in Hill Hall. Among the instrumental numbers will be "Rondo" for piano and organ, "Sextet for Woodwinds," "Quintet for Woodwinds," and "Piano Trio." Plans Announced for Summer Law School By Dean Wettach

The University's law school will offer summer courses for both advanced and beginning law students this year, it is announced by Dean Robert H. Wettach. Its summer session will be divided into two terms, running from June 13 to July 20 and from July 22 to August 29.

Dean Wettach said that the requirement for beginners was the completion, with a C average, of three years of work acceptable toward a baccalaureate degree here or at another accredited university or college, but that war veterans who have had at least a year of active service may substitute such term of service for a year of the entrance requirement.

Advanced students applying for admission must offer a statement certifying good standing in a member school of the Association of American Law Schools. All transfers and beginners must make their admission applications by May 1.

The summer faculty will consist of Dean Wettach, John P. Dalzell, Henry P. Brandis, Jr., Albert Coates, Herbert R. Baer, Frank W. Hanft, Fred B. McCall, M. S. Breckenridge, and M. T. Van Hecke.
