TIME IS RUNNING out here in Chapel Hill, time left before the all-important clash in Kenan stadium Saturday. Tension is mounting and speculation as to the outcome of the game between Carolina and the potentially powerful Blue Devils is becoming wild to say the least.

For the Duke game Saturday there are a total of 43,275 seats available and taken, and that's nearly 2,000 more than the largest crowd ever to attend that game here in Chapel Hill. The seating arrangements for students has been worked out very well, and we have the following statement from Athletic Director Bob Fetzter concerning the admittance of students' wives that have no coupons for the game in their pass book:

Late in the season some student wives were issued athletic books from which the Duke game coupons had been detached. The Athletic association now finds it possible to reinstate these coupons and to grant the holders of such passbooks admission to the Duke game.

In order to secure tickets to the Duke game the student should bring his own and his wife's passbook to the athletic office between the hours of 9 and 12 or 2 and 5 on Wednesday, November 20.

Student wives whose books still contain the Duke coupon must use their books exactly as they have for other games, and should not come to the athletic office for any exchange.

There are no additional tickets for sale for the Carolina-Duke game, either on a season ticket basis or on any other basis.

The Athletic Association is glad to be able to provide this privilege and urges the cooperation of the students involved—R. A. Fetzter.

Both Duke and Carolina worked out in secret again yesterday afternoon, and the news coming out of the respective practice camps is slim indeed. But that's as it should be, for this is the game to win for both Wally Wade of Duke and Carl Snavelly of Carolina.

It's no secret that Carolina is pointing for the Dukes with several possible surprises, but more than that Coach Snavelly is trying to get the boys to realize that it is just another ball game. Coach Wade says that his team can't sharpen up for the tussle like Carolina can, but nevertheless, Wade is known for getting teams set. This time should be no exception. It will be a battle without a doubt, with all previous records being disregarded.

Carolina's cross country team goes after its fifth dual meet win this afternoon against State, and the three top runners of Coach Dale Ransom won't be in the race. The Tar Heels are still favored, however, with the top trio resting for the Southern conference go scheduled for Monday.

The only thing that kept Carolina from going to the Nationals next week is that Jack Milne, one of the top five men on the squad, is out of action because of a bruised heel. At least that's the story we heard. Next season, according to present plans, Carolina will enter the IC4A and the Nationals as well—with exactly the same team that took the field against the 35-school field last Saturday at New York... Jack Hester, a Tar Heel trackman last year in the V-12, may run for State today.

We want to straighten out something that caused a good bit of comment. Yesterday we ran part of a sports column from the Duke Chronicle, and we have been mistakenly credited with writing it by some readers. Please understand, it was quoted material from the column of Sports Editor Beaudouin of the Duke paper, re-printed for your information—and amusement. Just a case, we thought, of the pot calling the kettle black.

Cross Country Team To Run State This Afternoon

Joe Romano, above, is the outstanding Tar Heel defensive flankman. Romano broke through to throw Nick Sacrinty, of the Deacs, for successive losses of 11 and 13 yards last Saturday. Hailing out of Mansfield, Ohio, Romano is one of the rugged ends who will make things tough for the Duke backs in Kenan stadium Saturday.

Meet Begins At 4 o'Clock

Harriers Compete On Fetzter Field

By Morty Shaap

The Carolina cross country team will be seeking its fifth straight dual meet victory this afternoon when it faces the State college harriers here at 4 o'clock. The race will be over the four mile course starting and finishing in front of the stands at Fetzter Field.

The Tar Heel's top three runners will be given a rest after the fourth place team finish in the IC4A meet last Saturday. The starting eight will be selected from the following men, Mark Burnham, Sam Magill, Julian Mackenzie, Walt Francis, John Strait, Frank Hardy, John Bristow, Tom Jewett, Herm Baker, Merv Lentz, Halstead Holden and Jim Hunt.

This meet will be the last for Carolina before the Southern conference championships to be run next Monday afternoon.

The course run this afternoon will be the same as the conference meet with the trail heading around the football practice field through the woods to the highway beyond the infirmary, back through Vet Ville to the Mason Farm Road, to Dead Men's hill, then back through the forest above the practice field finishing with a lap on the track.

Donnell Pins Foe In 30 Seconds

Charlie Donnell, flashy 145 pound matman of Sigma Chi, pinned Phi Gams Raker to the mat in 30 seconds to feature the intramural wrestling tourney yesterday in Woollen gym.

Gridders Hold Offensive Drills Against 'B' Team

Jayvees Play Role of Blue Devils As Tar Heels Work in Secret Again

Carolina's spirited football team continued to drill in secret yesterday as Coach Carl Snavelly put the gridders through another long workout in preparation for the clash with Duke.

Part of the practice saw the Tar Heel first-stringers scrimmaging against the Blue Devil defense as displayed by the junior varsity eleven. Charlie Justice, Billy Britt, Walt Pupa, and Jim Camp performed most of the ball-carrying duties and showed up well.

Still enrolled on the injured list, Art Weiner and Bill Sutherland again worked out in light togs and there is still hope that they will be in shape by Saturday.

The battle will be the first duel between Coach Snavelly and Coach Wallace Wade since 1935, when the Blue Devil mentor came away with a 25-0 upset victory. Snavelly will be after his second triumph over a Wade-coached team, Carolina having won the 1934 contest by a 7-0 score.

The lines of both teams may provide the difference in the tussle. Both elevens have big, tough forward walls with several members of each competing for All-Southern honors. Guards Bill Milner and Ernie Knotts, end Kelley Mote, and tackle Al DeRogatis have been the standouts in the Blue Devil line, while the Tar Heels have been paced by center Chan Highsmith, and guards Ralph Strayhorn and Sid Varney.

Odd facts department: The Carolina-Duke series dates way back to 1888... The total tabulation of the series shows the Blue Devils in front by a single game, 15-14, with three games having been deadlocked... The Tar Heels hold a four-point advantage in total points scored, 314 to 310.

Tank Squad Completes Second Week of Drills

Coach Dick Jamerson was fairly well pleased with the time trials his Blue Dolphins turned in last Saturday which closed the second week of practice, but the swimming coach stated that the squad is in need of a lot of work.

Coach Jamerson wore a smile as he glanced over the list and noticed that several freshmen were outshining last year's veterans. The frosh standouts include MacKenzie, Bultman, McCoy, and Bippert. Among the returning lettermen that turned in good times were Ficklen, Shumate, Herr, and Norwood.

As the results of Saturday's time trials, Coach Jamerson commented that all positions are wide-open and he urges that swimmers on campus who are interested in trying out for the team to come on out.

Walt Pupa, above, is shown displaying the passing form that he used with success against the Deacons last week-end. Pupa tossed aeriels for three out of four Tar Heels' tallies against Wake Forest. A 197 pound plunging fullback from Woodmere, L. I., Pupa is expected to receive the starting nod Saturday against the Blue Devils.
