

Carolina Gridders Polish Passing Offense For Duke Classic

Justice, Pupa, Myers Shine In Practice

Tar Heels to Face Tough Line Saturday

Carolina's Tar Heels moved through a tough passing scrimmage yesterday afternoon, as Coach Carl Snavelly completed his mid-week preparations for the all-important Southern Conference classic with the Duke Blue Devils here Saturday.

Charlie "Choo-Choo" Justice, Walt Pupa, and Billy Myers shared duties as aerial artists, tossing to flankmen Mike Rubish and George Sparger from every possible position. The Tar Heel passing attack is expected to play a big part in the offensive operations Saturday with the big Blue Devil forward wall set to slow down the ground drives of Justice and Company.

A welcome note came from the local camp yesterday, with the announcement that Art Weiner's leg injury is much improved and the big left end will probably be ready to see action Saturday. Blocking back Bill Sutherland is the one doubtful player on the squad. A shoulder injury incurred in the Wake Forest tilt is slowing the Laurinburg quarterback and the trainers expect he may miss this week's contest.

Coach Snavelly alternated nearly two full teams in the passing drill yesterday, with Jim Camp, Joe Wright, and B. K. Grow, among the backs, along with Justice, Myers, and Pupa. Inside the flanks, Baxter Jarrell, Sid Varney, Ralph Strayhorn, Haywood Fowle, Len Szafaryn, and Chan Highsmith paced the forward wall.

The fleet Tar Heel backs will be faced with a tough assignment Saturday, when they meet the outstanding line in the Southern Conference. The Duke forwards include such bruising men as Bill Milner, Al Derogatis, Kelly Mote, Fletcher Wall and Herman Smith.

All seats for the clash were sold out months ago, with 44,000 fans expected to crowd Kenan stadium to see Coach Wallace Wade and Coach Carl Snavelly meet for the third time in the battle that will break their one-all deadlock in games won.

Four Conference Titles At Stake This Weekend

Rose Bowl Nominations to Go to Winners Of Pacific Coast and Big Nine Crowns

By Bob Goldwater

This Saturday looms as the payoff week in college football all over the nation. Four conference titles will almost certainly be settled, two more possibly so, and various bowl nominations might accompany several of these loop crowns.

Holding the spotlight in the South, of course, is the annual encounter between North Carolina and Duke, with the Southern conference diadem hanging on the outcome. The Tar Heels, with a record of three wins and one tie, can clinch the flag with a victory, but William and Mary, in second place and with one game remaining on Thanksgiving Day, will almost certainly walk off with the crown should Carolina lose.

Probably the most important clash of the week will pit unbeaten UCLA against once-defeated Southern California out in Los Angeles. The Pacific Coast conference crown, automatically carrying with it the western Rose Bowl nomination, hinges on the outcome.

Big Nine Tilts

The Eastern representative to the Pasadena classic will also be determined this week with the crowning of a Big Nine champion. Illinois, the present leader, could clinch the flag with a triumph over Northwestern. Michigan's only chance for the title lies in a victory over Ohio State with Illinois losing its final tilt.

In one of the nation's oldest gridiron rivalries, Harvard will seek to sew up the Ivy league and Big Three crown by defeating Yale at Cambridge. The Bulldogs' hopes for the Ivy diadem rest on their own victory plus a Penn triumph over Cornell on Thanksgiving Day.

In the Southwest conference, Rice must defeat TCU this week and Baylor next week to even tie for the title. Arkansas, considered as the loop doormat in pre-season predictions, assured itself of no worse than a deadlock for the championship last week and will cop the flag if Rice loses either of its two remaining contests.

West Coast, Big Nine Sign West Rose Bowl Pact

Berkeley, Cal., Nov. 20—(UP)—The Pacific Coast and Western conferences have officially signed a five-year pact to match their teams in the annual Rose Bowl classic.

The agreement begins immediately with the January 1, 1947 game and runs through January 1, 1951.

This means that for the second straight year a great Army team will be on the outside looking in. West Point officials had hinted that they would accept a Rose Bowl bid this year.

Harriers Cop Fifth in Row With 18-44 Win Over State

By Morty Schaap

The Carolina harriers made it five in a row yesterday afternoon with a smashing 18-44 victory over State College. Mark Burnham came home first in the time of 20:23, which sets a course record for the four-mile course.

Sam Magill was the second finisher in 20:47, and was followed by State's ace, Dave Dubow. The rest of the field finished in the following order: Walt Francis, Johnny Strait, Julian Mackenzie and Halstead Holden, all of Carolina. Frank Hardy in tenth place and John Bristow in 12th finished the Carolina runners.

The Tar Heels were running without their top three runners, Jimmy Miller, Alvin Smith and Jack Milne, who were given rests after their fine showing in the IC4A meet Saturday. The Carolina boys took the lead shortly after the start of the race and never relinquished it all the way through the grind.

The team will now start its preparations for the Southern conference championship here on Monday. The schools expected to send teams to the meet are Carolina, Duke, State, Maryland, and South Carolina.

Individual stars are the Kehoe brothers, Sterling and Lindy, of Maryland, Jim Davis and Roger Neighbourgall of Duke, and Dave Dubow of State.
