

Tar Heels Hold Final Heavy Practice Before Duke Encounter

Sport-Spins

FOOTBALL TEACHER Carl Snavely had his Tar Heels cramming for examinations yesterday afternoon, and he and his staff were working the Carolina gridders hard for the last time before the big test against Duke here tomorrow afternoon. Spirit was at a high peak—even the strains of "Hark The Sound" could be heard on the practice field, for the band was practicing its program for Saturday on nearby Emerson field.

Today is the regular day for picking the winners, and without much to say we will give you the 'dope' as we see it on the forthcoming battles of the year for the Tar Heels.

Defensively: Carolina and Duke are about evenly matched in this department, with maybe a slight edge going to the Blue Devils. The Dukes have a good end in Kelly Mote, and tough guards in Ernie Knotts and Bill Milner, and this gives them plenty of power in the middle as well as on the flank. The Tar Heels are probably strongest at center than anywhere else in the line, although their guards are not at all bad. We give Duke the edge in the line. . . . Defensive work in the backfield is a little more even than in the line, for passes have been good against Duke as well as Carolina. Let's say a toss-up in backfield defensive work.

Offensively: Here is where the game will be won, and by the Tar Heels, we think. Carolina has a scoring punch both on the ground and in the air, through the line and around the flanks. Duke has had trouble getting into the payoff area all year, that is except in the last game with South Carolina. Even so, the Blue Devils have potent runners in George Clark, Leo Long and Buddy Mulligan—who is injured incidentally.

But Carolina has Choo Choo Justice, Billy Myers, Jim Camp, Jack Fitch, Walt Pupa and Hosea Rodgers on the ground, not to mention such threats as Bill Maceyko, Billy Britt and Johnny Clements. And in the air the Tar Heels have Pupa, Justice, Myers and Maceyko. . . . This offensive strength gives Carolina the nod in that department, and the nod in the game.

Without more ado, we go on record as picking Carolina two touchdowns, say 21-7. If the Tar Heels can keep Duke from scoring it will be close to 21-0.

WORDS TO THE WISE: We have been asked by the athletic department ticket division to pass on the following word to the student body.

When first arrangements were being made to take care of students this season, the estimated enroll-

Team Polishes Aerial Attack

Sutherland Reports In Heavy Equipment

Carolina's gridders held their final heavy workout prior to game time yesterday with the Tar Heels running through offensive and defensive formations that will be employed Saturday against the Blue Devils.

Most of the long practice was spent in polishing up the aerial barrage that proved so successful against Wake Forest last week. Charlie Justice, Walt Pupa, Bill Myers and Hosea Rodgers performed most of the pitching with the ends and wingbacks being the receivers. Later in the session, a varsity squad held a dummy scrimmage against a jayvee eleven with the ground attack coming in for a major share of the drill.

Good news was forthcoming from the injured list when Bill Sutherland reported in heavy equipment for the first time this week. Still under orders to take things easy, last week's starting quarterback may be able to see some action against the Blue Devils.

Sid Varney was in light togs as a result of a bruised heel but the chunky right guard will definitely be ready to play Saturday.

Duke Star Hurt

Meanwhile, from Durham, comes news that one of the Blue Devils' main running threats and their chief punting ace, Buddy Mulligan, has suffered a leg injury which may impair his efficiency against the Tar Heels. The extent of the injury was not determined, but it is not likely that it will keep him on the sidelines throughout the contest.

The clash will be Duke's ninth and final encounter of the season. The Blue Devils have downed Wake Forest and South Carolina in their last two starts to bring their average up to the .500 mark, with four wins and four setbacks.

The battle has been rated as a toss-up, with the Carolina being given the edge of offense and Duke the nod on defense.

ment was 5,000. But it went way above that figure and finally came to rest around 6,800. This afforded a big problem, and finally seating arrangements have been made to take care of the students.

However, it is going to be a close fit, and if students start handing out their pass books to outsiders if they—the students—aren't coming to the game, it is going to mean trouble. The athletic department is going to crack down on violators of the rule that student pass books are for only the students to which they are issued.

And to eliminate any one else using the books besides the rightful owner, policemen, plain-clothesmen and FBI agents are going to be on hand to see that things go off on the level. If you're not using it yourself, hold on to that pass book!

A stirring, unforgettable emotional experience!

Booters Play Finale Today

Oppose Blue Devils Seeking Second Win

By Mac Katzin

Carolina's booters will wind up their season today with a grueling grudge battle with the soccermen from Duke at Durham.

The Blue Devils have defeated the Tar Heels three times this year and will be heavy favorites to make it four in a row. The locals, however, are gunning for their second win of the season, having defeated Virginia in their opening clash, and will give the favorites a good battle with a fine chance for an upset.

Due to the improvement of many former second and third-stringers, the lineup has been greatly shifted. One of these new starters is Basil Wood, a hard-charging forward who proved himself to be a definite threat against the fast Blue Devil passing attack.
