As the preliminary judges of the AVC-sponsored World Peace contest are rapidly nearing the selection of the first-round winners, three men, Dr. C. B. Robson, chairman of the Political Science department, Dean R. H. Wettach of the Law School, and Dean D. D. Carroll of the Commerce School, have been chosen to judge the final oratorical contest.

Tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall, the four winning essay writers will talk for fifteen minutes apiece on the points outlined in their essays. From these four the above judges will select the two final winners. The first place prize is $100, and $50 will be awarded the second prize winner.

Phi to Debate Tonight On Tactics of SCHW

The tactics of the SCHW will be debated tonight when the Phi presents Perrell Payne, SCHW chairman, to give his views on the group's plan for aiding Southern progress.

The second bill of the evening is a resolution by Frank Hassell stating that the administration should sponsor quarterly criticism of the professors by the students. The latter question will be voted upon by the students in the Y today from 9 to 5.

Robert Hart of 32 Steele was the winner of last week's pennies cast in the Phi poll. He will appear before the Phi tonight to pick up the check to be donated to the organization of his choice. The simplified Phi plan of voting goes into effect today.

BOOK EX

made good; although there have been a few instances of actual forgery.

Thus, working with a fund of approximately $5800, varying from week to week, it is difficult to maintain a checking service that is wholly adequate. This is especially true at the first of the month when over $35,000 in veteran's subsistence checks alone come in. Computed over a month's business however, the average $5800 cashed twice a day is sufficient to handle the needs of students.

Urge Coming Early

But since the demand fluctuates, highest at the time when Government checks come in, and before week-ends, Mrs. Maultsby and the added voice of Manager Ritchie of the Book-Ex urge students cashing checks at these times come early. This means the available $5800 may be paid out and recashed more than the normal twice a day while the bank is open. Thus the total transactions per day will be increased, and a maximum of service maintained. The management also requests that students' checks be held until they have to be cashed, not only for the individual student's safety, but by spreading the exchange over the month better efficiency is maintained.

After the recent published criticism of the service, the manager explained, he went to South building to determine what could be done. University officials feel, he said, that the present fund is sufficient—if there is student cooperation. Plus the fact, he added, that an increase of the fund would be an open invitation to crooks with robbery in mind, since the Y is not equipped to safeguard such an amount of cash. The manager also pointed out that the service is costing the University over $2400 per year to run, even though it is, and will remain free of charge.
