IT'S HARD TO shove football from the spotlight what with the Tar Heels preparing for their traditional battle with Virginia and riding on the brink of a bowl invitation, but just one week from tonight the White Phantoms of Coach Tom Scott take the floor in their first basketball game of the season.

Cherry Point, one of the few service teams still in operation, will furnish the opposition for the initial game, and the contest will mark first time since his taking over that Coach Scott has had a chance to exhibit his work.

There is a great record in basketball at Carolina from the past two seasons, and Scott and his squad have a big order to live up to the Southern conference championship team of year before last and the NCAA finalist five of last season. However, indications are that they will do just that—live up to the record and maybe even surpass it. This is all supposition, though, and nothing definite can be said until the Phants have been in action a few times.

Following the skirmish with the Marines, Catawba of Salisbury and High Point college will come to Chapel Hill for pre-Christmas game. And then on December 19 Carolina will invade Chicago stadium to meet Northwestern and again on the 21st to engage DePaul. That's all until the Tar Heel cagers play Maryland back in Woollen gym January 4, the day after school opens for the winter quarter.

Gone from last year are All-American Jim Jordan and Bones McKinney, but in their place have come new recruits and former Carolina stars, lacking only the height and experience that Jordan and McKinney provided.

That height is the major weak spot of the White Phantoms as far as can be ascertained from this early observation, but this may be made up for in the fast, maneuverability of such stars as Jim White, Taylor Thorne, Jim Hayworth, and Dick Hartley, plus that of newcomer Jim Hamilton.

Mainstays of the team this year, both in ability and height will be All-American Johnny Dillon and Bob Paxton, although White, Thorne, and Hayworth will be invaluable on the basis of their experience and ball-hawking. Dillon, the hook shot artist, has been out of practice for a week or so because of an ankle injury, but he should be able to go against Cherry Point.

It would be extremely hard to pick a starting lineup at this point, what with Dillon still ailing and Hamilton suffering a bruised foot. Nonetheless, we would say that the starting five will come from Dillon, Paxton, White, Hartley, Hamilton, Thorne, and Norm Kohler, Jim Hayworth, the last two being two more newcomers of the White Phantom fold.

Scott and his assistant, Pete Mullis, have been drilling the Tar Heel hardwood aspirants hard and steady for weeks now, and they should be about ready for the opening toss come next Wednesday night.

Admission plans have not yet been completed, but student pass books will be necessary even though they are void of coupons, so hang on to yours if you plan to attend any of the three basketball games before the winter quarter.

The bowl situation for the Tar Heels remains a question mark, but the Carolina gridgers are working hard in preparation for the Virginia battle Saturday. For they know—and probably rightly so—that a bowl bid will be dependent upon a win over the strong Cavaliers.

Both Carl Snavely and the squad know that the game will be far from a pushover, for the Virginians are laying for the Tar Heels following their game last year, that saw Carolina turn back the Cavaliers when they were supposed to win. In fact, Ray Brown, the star Virginia back among others, informed us while riding back from the Navy game (he was coming back from the Penn skirmish) that they were pointing for the Tar Heels. That's indication enough that the Snavelymen will have to be on their toes to win—and cinch a bowl bid.

The other bowl open, the Cotton Bowl, will have Arkansas against someone, naturally. It has been said that the loser of Georgia-Georgia Tech will take the Cotton bid with the winner going to the Sugar Bowl, but the United Press said last night that Georgia would go to the Sugar or nowhere. That means that LSU would likely go to the Cotton classic in the event Tech upsets the Bulldogs.

Tar Heels Hoping Justice Will Carry Them Into Bowl

Raleigh, Nov. 27—(UP) The University of North Carolina's Tar Heels are hoping today that the extra bunker of coal their Choo Choo Charlie Justice was carrying last Saturday will carry them into the Sugar Bowl.

Not only did the Choo Choo express look hot when it highballed through Duke's powerful forward wall—but it carried along a surprise package.

For the Asheville freshman looked hot where he was supposed to be weak. Until Saturday, Coach Carl Snavely had used Justice only on offense.

But the Carolina back—who had been inserted when the script called for a break-away runner—stuck on the field for a solid 45 minutes against the Blue Devils.

He got the wind knocked out of his 165-pound body twice—but never left the game because of it.

Carolina's pass defense limited Duke's George Clark and Bob Hartley to one completion in eight tries. And a pass defense of that calibre just hadn't been in the books for Carolina. To top that, Carolina displayed a passing offense that could have come from the pages of fiction. The Tar Heels netted 305 yards and Justice accounted for 221 of that total—122 yards by passing.

While they're smacking their lips over the vanquishing of the Blue Devils—it's no secret around the Tar Heels home ground of Chapel Hill that they would like to meet Georgia in the Sugar Bowl on New Year's Day.

However, standing against them on the record sheet is their 14 to 20 loss to Tennessee and the 14 to 14 tie with Virginia Tech.

Varsity Boxers Slate Matches

The intramural department will sponsor a sports festival tonight in Woollen gymnasium, with badminton, handball, table tennis, boxing, and wrestling matches to be run off on the colorful card. Starting time for the schedule is 7 p.m.

The basket room will be open for contestants from 7 p.m. till 9 p.m. and all wrestlers and boxers are asked to report to the gymnasium at 7 p. m., the mural department announced yesterday.

One of the highlights of the sports program will be a regulation boxing match, with two complete teams from the varsity ring squad paired off. The boxing card will get under way at 7:45 p.m. with the following men squared off: Jim Bolch vs. Conway Ross; Dick Weintraul vs. Sid Rosinsky; Jerrell Daniels vs. Ralph Schecter; Charles Dotson vs. Sheldon Zinman; John Orr vs. Bill Buffalo; and Leonard Green or Don Evans vs. Johnny Richardson or Charles Craven.

Another of the main events will be the championship mural wrestling matches. Those set to compete are as follows: 121-Thompson vs. Cobb; 128-Boren vs. Ridge; 135-Allen vs. Urquhart; 145-Fisher vs. Donnell; 155-Elington vs. Long; 165-Gupton vs. Kipp; 175-Walker vs. Stratford; HW-Simpson vs. Todd.

Frat All-Stars Cop Campus Grid Crown

In intramural competition yesterday, the Fraternity All-Star tag football team defeated the Dormitory All-Stars 22-6 for the campus championship. The Frat men scored in all four periods to take the triumph, while the Dorm men pushed across their single tally in the second period.

Play continued in the round-robin volley-ball tournament and the table tennis tourney. In the former Zeta Psi No. 2 copped the fraternity brown league title and SAE No. 2 won the fraternity blue loop crown.

Gridgers Back At Hard Work For Final Tilt

Drill for Weekend Game with Virginia

Back to hard work after their lay-off Monday, Carolina gridgers moved into their final week of regular practice yesterday in preparation for their weekend clash with Virginia's hot-and-cold Cavaliers.

Most of the session was spent in running ground plays with tailbacks Billy Myers and Bill Maceyko doing most of the ball-toting. Less time was spent on the two phases—offensive and defensive—of passing maneuvers than at any previous drill for several weeks. Coach Carl Snavely expressed satisfaction with the team's showing in the two respects. On offense the Tar Heels completed seven aeriels for a total gain of 159 yards while on defense they permitted only one completion out of eight tosses for a five-yard gain and intercepted two other passes.

Weiner Ready

Physically, the team appeared in top condition, with all players having come through the Duke Tussle uninjured. End Art Weiner, who missed Saturday's game with a twisted knee, looked in good shape yesterday and will probably see action this week.

Saturday's clash will be the 51st meeting between the two colleges with Virginia seeking to even up the series. Carolina leads at present by 24 to 23, with three contests having ended in a deadlock. Both teams have one mutual opponent this season—VPI—and both tied the Gobblers on successive weekends, the Tar Heels at 14-14 and the Cavaliers at 21-21.

Among the Virginia backs is one that played with Carolina while in the Navy, George Grimes. The Cavaliers operate from the "T" formation with an impressive group of backfield stars handling the running and passing assignments.

Ernie Williamson, above, is one of the strongest members of the Tar Heel forward wall that held Duke so well last Saturday. Williamson, a freshman, was injured and missed a couple of games about mid-season, but the giant tackle is back into the thick of things now and shows great promise for the last game and next season.

Dillon Doubtful Starter For Opening Cage Battle

White Phantoms Meet Cherry Point Marine Five Here Next Wednesday

Hook shot artist Johnny Dillon remains a doubtful starter because of an ankle injury today as the White Phantoms begin the final week of pre-season practice before the opener with Cherry Point here next Wednesday night in Woollen gym.

Dillon, an All-American letterman from last year, suffered a badly sprained ankle last week in practice and has had to work light most of the time since. In the event he can't start the game, Sherman Nearman, a freshman from West Virginia, will likely get the call at center.

The remainder of the starting lineup is still questionable, but Bob Paxton and Jim White, starters left over from last year in addition to Dillon, seems sure bets to be in the lineup. The others will come from Jim Hayworth, Dick Hartley, Taylor Thorne, Jim Thompson and Jim Hamilton. Hamilton, another newcomer, has been looking good in early drills, but he is suffering from a bruised heel and may miss action.

Carolina, under the direction of Coach Tom Scott, will play two more home games before Christmas after the Cherry Point tussle, with Catawba and High Point. The Phants go to Chicago for games with Northwestern and DePaul during the holidays, and play their first game back here January 4 with Maryland.

Coach Scott plans to make a division of his squad some time later this week after he holds scrimmage sessions Thursday and Saturday. The freshman squad, which met for the first time yesterday, had about a 50-man turnout and plays its first game De-
