By Billy Carmichael

The Sporting Picture has as its guest columnist today, Roy Edwards of the Daily Texan, the University of Texas newspaper, who knows all, sees all and prepares to tell all about the Tar Heels' Saturday opponent. Mr. Edwards. . . .

Texas Calling
AUSTIN, Tex.—The Eyes of Texas will be on the 300-foot Tower of the Main Building Saturday night, looking for the soft glow of the Orange Lights which will signify another Longhorn victory—this time, over the North Carolina Tar Heels. The tradition of the Orange Lights, turned on for each major victory by Texas athletic teams, is one of the first things freshmen learn on the Forty Acres.

No one is quite sure when or why the Orange Lights were first turned on, but it is generally agreed that they first burned Thanksgiving Day, 1938, after the Longhorns beat their arch rivals, the Texas Aggies, to preserve another hallowed Texas tradition—no Aggie football team wins in Memorial Stadium. The victory over the Aggies, led by all-Americans Dick Todd and Joe Rount, was the only game the Steers won that year, and it was a fitting time to start a great tradition.

The Orange Lights custom grew, and now the lights are turned on after each Texas victory in football and basketball, and after teams in other sports win Conference or national championships. Nothing is quite so satisfying to Texas fans as the spine-tingling beauty of the Orange Lights during the football season, and nothing seems quite so pitiless as the stark coldness of white light on the Tower after the Longhorns have lost.

The leading prospect to short circuit the Orange Lights this year, as far as the Texas coaching staff is concerned, is Carl Snaveley's power-packed North Carolina team. Charlie Justice, Walt Pupa, and other talent on the Tar Heel squad, are highly respected in Texas, and, if Blair Cherry's Model T gets wrecked, Saturday may well be the day. However, the Steers will probably be at their peak for the North Carolina game. Cherry started drilling for the Tar Heels when he stepped up to the head coaching position in spring training, and the slogan of fall training has been "get ready for the Tar Heels."

Model T Touchdowns
Running from the T formation for the first time, the Steers did not show too much against Texas Tech and Oregon, but they did not have to. They struck for three quick touchdowns in the first quarter and coasted to a 33-0 victory over Tech. Last week, Layne's passes clicked for three touchdowns early in the second quarter, and the Longhorns breezed by Oregon, 33-13. But the North Carolina game will call for sixty minutes of all-out effort, and the Longhorns hope to be prepared.

The Longhorn T attack is directed by top-passer Bobby Layne, an all-Conference tailback from the single wing formation for the past three years. Layne has surprised even the most optimistic fans with his great performance this year, and has been even better from the T than from the single wing. Texas's prime choice for all American honors this year, Layne has completed 11 of 17 pass attempts for 217 yards and 3 touchdowns in the two Texas games this year. He scored one touchdown against Tech on a quarterback sneak and has kicked six extra points.

Longhorn fans expect good passing from Layne, but they have been pleasantly surprised by the ground game Cherry has developed this year. A host of speedy backs, including two Southwest Conference 100-yard dash champions, and several hard-charging line-plungers, give Texas its best running attack in years.

The real find of the year is little Byron (Puppy) Gillyory. A 146-pound junior, Gillyory has two varsity letters, but he was never particularly outstanding until this fall. He did not figure in Cherry's plans in spring training, but Gillyory took to the T like it was tailor-made for him, and he is already being compared to Jack Crain, probably the greatest running back in Texas history. Gillyory's speed and elusiveness have carried him 167 yards in 10 tries from scrimmage, tops for Longhorn backs, and his four touchdowns lead Texas scorers. As good as he is, Gillyory has to share the left halfback post with another speedy runner, Billy Pyle, a 165-pound sophomore. Pyle, not quite so deceptive as Gillyory, runs harder and, for all his lack of size, is one of the best defensive backs on the squad.

Unique Feature
The Texas team has one unique feature—three tackles are in the line-up on defense. Dick Harris drops back behind the line, and George Petrovich comes in at left tackle. Harris, a 212-pound junior, was an all-Conference center in 1945 and 1946, but Cherry moved him to tackle this year to strengthen a position which has caused the downfall of several otherwise good Longhorn teams. Harris has no equal as a line-backer in the Southwest Conference, and he is so consistently good that Texas fans take his outstanding performances as a matter of course.

When the Longhorns kick off, Charlie Tatom, a converted end, checks in at the other tackle post. At 206 pounds, Tatom is tagged "the fastest tackle in the country." He was a member of the Texas track team's undefeated 440-yard sprint relay team in the spring, and he is the first man down the field on kickoffs.

To stop the Tar Heels, Texas will field a line that averages 205 pounds, and a fast, hard-charging backfield that averages 183.5 pounds. And, when darkness falls, Texas supporters will look up at the Tower, hoping to see it bathed in Orange light.

Quonset Huts Elect Athletic Managers

Three Intramural managers were elected at a Y.M.C.A. sponsored meeting yesterday to represent the quonset hut area in tag football. Elected were "Red" Graham, Jim Meade, and Bob Tucker. Any boy living in the quonset hut area that is interested in playing tag football in the mural league should contact one of the three newly elected managers as soon as possible.

Yesterday, many teams took advantage of the fact that all intramural fields were open for team practice after four o'clock. Several groups were on the field working out plays and perfecting defenses.

Meanwhile, the tennis proceral matches being played on the clay courts late yesterday afternoon. No matches are scheduled for today or over the week end. Next scheduled matches will be played on Monday, October 6. Watch the Daily Tar Heel for the best of all matches.

All men living in town who are interested in playing intramural tag football, which starts next week, are requested to leave their names at the Information desk of the YMCA before Monday.

There will be a meeting of all the town men interested in participating, Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the "Y."

Carolina Booters Working for Opener

Intra-squad scrimmages were the order of the day for Coach Marvin Allen's soccer squad yesterday afternoon as he continued his efforts to whip the booters into shape for their opening tilt with Loyola University on October 17 in Baltimore.

The squad now numbers over sixty candidates but the members' heavy lab schedule have kept the daily turnouts down to around forty men. Regulation size goals have been erected at each end of Fetzer Field, which has been taken over by the Allenmen for their workouts. Two goals have also been placed along each sideline and are used for cross field scrimmages.

Coach Allen had little definite to say about the season's prospects when queried, but he did comment, "The men are all working very hard and are displaying a lot of interest. However, I still don't know how good they'll be."

Allen did mention that among the first-year men, Joe Bach, Hank Pallulat, Bob Plumb, Bill Moore, G. T. Williams, Al Moore, Jesse Greenbaum, and ave Boak have all been stand-outs in practice this season and will probably see plenty of action this year.

Cross Country Practice

Cross country workouts are scheduled for 11 o'clock Saturday morning along with the track practice.

The coaching staff is hoping that a good turnout will be on hand so that time trials can be run.

The newsreel pictures of the Carolina-Georgia clash of last weekend will be shown Saturday only at the Carolina Theatre, it was announced yesterday by theatre manager E. Carrington Smith.

Bums Top Yanks, 9-8, In Slugfest; Casey Turns In Fine Relief Job

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 2—(UP)—Exploding for six runs in the second inning at the expense of Bobo Newsom and Vic Raschi, the Brooklyn Dodgers added another in the third and two more in the fourth to outlast the New York Yankees, 9-8, in a marathon contest at Ebbets Field that had 33,000 fans on the edge of their seats until the final out.

Fireman Hugh Casey was the Dodgers hero as he silenced the booming bats of the New Yorkers during the last three innings by his sterling relief job. Casey had replaced Ralph Branca in the seventh inning with none out right after Yogi Berra had hit the first pinch-hit home run in Series history. Newsom was charged with the Yankee loss.

The Dodgers opened the scoring in the 26 hit slugfest when they bunched six hits, a walk, and a passed ball to tally six runs off Newsom and his rather ineffective reliever, rookie Vic Raschi. A pass by Newsom to Hermanski, Edwards run-producing double, Reese's single on which Edwards scored, Hatten's single, a passed ball by Sherman Lollar advancing both runners, and Eddie Stanky's two-run double meant four Dodger runs and Newsom's exit.

Jackie Robinson promptly greeted Newsom's successor, Raschi, with a single on which Stanky moved to third, and then both runners tallied on Carl Furillo's tremendous double off the scoreboard in right field. Raschi finally retired the Dodgers when he got Dixie Walker to make his second out of the frame on a grounder to Stirnweiss.

The Yanks put together Lollar's single, pinch-hitter Al Clark's pass, Johnny Lindell's single, and Joe DiMaggio's single in the third to close the gap to 6-2.

They added two more in the fourth but the Bums came back in their half of the same inning to serve twice and run the score to 8-4. Joe DiMaggio then brought the Yankees up to within two runs of the winners in the top of the fifth when he with Johnny Lindell, who had sixth on a double down the right field line by pinch-swinger Bobby Brown and another two-baser off Eddie Stanky's glove in short right by Tommy Henrich.

Jayvee Footballers Hold Hard Session

The jayvee footballers were sent through their most strenuous session up to date, yesterday afternoon, in preparation for their opening game with the South Carolina Bantamcocks next Friday afternoon at Columbia.

Coach Crowell Little had been negotiating for a contest for this weekend but plans fell through and a heavy scrimmage session is on tap for this afternoon.

Little told the 55 candidates, many of them varsity men who did not make the trip, that he expects the scrimmage to show good results.

Yesterdays drill was devoted to the learning of plays and getting precision into their play. The genial jayvee mentor said, "My team is rounding into shape very rapidly and I expect them to be more than ready for their opening game."

Tar Heel Football Squad Flies To Austin Today

By Morty Schaap
A Carolina football contingent some 40 strong, led by Coach Carl Snaveley, will depart by air for Austin, Texas, this morning. This will mark the longest jaunt ever taken by a Tar Heel football squad and the first ever made by air.

The contest between the men of Snaveley and the Texas Longhorns is the first meeting of these clubs, and the lads from the Southwest have been installed as slight favorites.

Coach Blair Cherry, in his first year as head coach at the Texas institution, has rolled over two foes, Texas Tech and Oregon, in the club's first two games of the season.

The orange and white are playing from the T-formation, which will be no novelty to the Tar Heels as the Georgia club which they whipped last Saturday also operated from that same maneuver. However, the lads from Austin are sparked by All-American Bobby Layne who is one of the country's leading passers. Last week in the battle against Oregon he completed seven out of eleven air strikes.

MR. TRUE-TOE BOB COX, Carolina extra-point and field goal specialist who is now leading the Conference scoring parade with eight points.

Practice in Texas
The Tar Heels will make their headquarters at the Hotel General Austin upon their arrival this afternoon. The trip is being made in Capitol airlines "DC-4." They expect to work out in the huge Texas stadium late today.

Yesterday afternoon Coach Snaveley sent his charges through a light drill and pronounced everyone in good shape except co-captain Joe Wright, who is still suffering from after effects of a penicillin shot last week. He is listed as a doubtful starter.

The line, however, will be bolstered by the return of Bill (Earthquake) Smith from Lexington, who has missed the last three weeks of practice due to a broken foot. This big boy will be used to relieve Haywood Fowle at tackle.

GRIDIRON NOTES:
Texas probably boasts the fastest tackle in college football in the person of Charlie Tatom, who was a regular member of the Texan 440-relay team which
