

Booters Register 7-0 Win Over Roanoke For Fourth In Row

Back Tracking In Sports

with Morty Schaap

IT SEEMS as if the football players are not alone the only 'legally' padded enterprises on the campus... but pads or no pads we now travel first class and first class is what the week end promises in football, cross country and homecoming.

This coming week end will find the town of Chapel Hill bedecked in its finest array to greet the thousands of returning alumni.

The game itself promises to be one of the best ever put on at Kenan Stadium with a rough and ready Wolfpack aggregation out to clip the wings of the potent Tar Heels. State has dropped two games and those were the only two scores against Beatty Feathers club all season. Duke beat them 7-0 and Florida nipped the Raleigh lads at the finish, 7-6. So, all in all, it shapes up to be one of the best family squabbles since Mary Astor graced the witness chair in California.

O'ER HILL AND DALE

DALE Ranson's Harriers will be out to make it 15 straight when they meet the Red Terror harriers Saturday morning, and the team is up to the task and ready to show just what can be expected of them in the big meet in New York on November 17. Jimmy Miller, diminutive distance star, will be out to keep his individual record of not having tasted defeat in dual competition since his return to cross country running in 1946. Jack Milne, who looks to be even in better shape than he was in 1940, as a freshman, will be Millers' big competition and this smiling lad from Toms River, N. J., may well be crowned IC4A champion, come a week from Monday. Milne incidentally was the recipient of the Adam Hat trophy, awarded for the outstanding athlete in the university last spring.

A JOB WELL DONE

HATS off to Len Szafaryn, genial president of the Monogram club, for the fine job he has done in making possible the show-put for the ball carrier. Very few of these people realize that the run was made possible by diligent practice and fine blocking by the ten other members of the team. An old high school coach always told his squad before the first game, "four of the men will get the glory and the other seven will work." This is not quite true in reality, but it comes mighty close. Of this year's fine Carolina football team many boys have not been given the credit their work deserved.

In true sports style we will start in the backfield and reel off the names of such backs and Joe Wright, Don Hartig, Eddie Knox and Bob Reynolds, these are our field generals, we have all second guessed them during the season but they have played hard and given their all.

Next we hit the flank position, here we find such men as Art Weiner, Mike Rubish, Ken Powell, Max Cooke, John Tandy, Bill Pritchard, Bob Cox, Dan Logue and Joe Romano, these lads catch the limelight every once in awhile by fine catches of passes, but very few of us can realize the amount of work they put into blocking, tackling and the first line defense of covering punts and kickoffs.

The tackles are usually the mammoths of the squad and they are the boys that make or break the offensive drive of the opposition and make the holes for their own backs to scoot through. Our boys who perform this duty are Len Szafaryn, Haywood Fowle, Bill Smith, Stan Marczyk, Joe Cospito, Jim Hendrick and Ted Hazelwood. Mighty fine lads all of them, each giving his best to the team.

The guard spot is one of the roughest of all, as it is from this position that much of the ball carriers interference comes from. These lads must pull out of the line on the offense and stop the opposition through the middle on defense. Yes, a rugged assignment, but the Tar Heels are ably manned at these positions with such stalwarts as Bob Mitten, Sid Varney, Harry Klosterman, George Roberts, Dick Featheroff and Max Spurlin.

The center position is most important to a ball club and not only must the ball be snapped back on offense in precision-like movement but the man at the pivot spot must then swing around and block a man. On the defense he is the rugged linebacker that must be always alert for passes and equally adept at piling up a play that comes through his side of the line. George Sparger, Dan Steigman, Joe Strzegood, Irv Holdash and Al Bernot have not let the ball club down. They have been like the Coast Guard, ever alert.

Last but not least hats off to the Jayvees who have been working all year to tune the varsity for their big games. They have imitated all of the opposition and done a wonderful job of it. Besides they have played two games of their own and won them both.

IN SALUTORE

WHEN A back zig-zags through the opposition for some 85 yards and a touchdown, the crowd stands on its feet and cheers. The movies of the previous Saturday's football games in Memorial Hall. A fine service from a fine organization.

Johnson Gets Three To Spark Allenmen

Smashing through a futile Roanoke college defense for at least one goal in every period, Carolina's red hot booters racked up their fourth straight triumph and fifth win of the season yesterday afternoon, as they kicked the outclassed visitors all over Fetzer Field for a 7-0 rout.

The Maroons threatened to score only once or twice and their shots were so hurried and wild that neither Tar Heel goalie, each of whom played about half of the game, had to block a shot all afternoon. In fact, neither Carolina goal tender touched the ball, except to make two goal kicks apiece.

Wayne Johnson booted home two goals as the Tar Heels jumped a 3-0 lead in the first quarter and then coasted till half-time with the second team seeing most of the action.

Johnson drew first blood for the Blue and White shinbusters early in the first period when he took a pass from Al Singer and booted the ball past the Roanoke goalie for a score. Little Joe Bach notched his only score of the game a few minutes later when he emerged from a melee in front of the goal and angled the ball into net. Johnson added another goal shortly before the close of the period when he headed in a free kick.

Kenan, Pi Phi Gain Volleyball Finals

Kenan and Pi Phi advanced to the finals of the coed volleyball tournament last night as the result of impressive, but hard-fought wins.

The dormitory girls made good use of their height advantage to run up a 13-4 half-time lead over Chi Omega, and then were pushed to the limit to gain a 19-17 victory.

The Pi Phis trailing badly near the end of the first period, rallied to a 14-12 halftime lead over the Tri Deltas, and then went on to win 27-19. Finals are set for next Tuesday night.

Oakwood Drive, Lewis, Grads Cop Grid Titles

Three more teams were added to the list of league champions in the Intramural tag football program yesterday as Oakwood Drive, Grads, and Lewis dorm showed winning margins in their last games of the regular schedule.

In the deciding games Oakwood Drive trounced Steele, 20 to 6, Grads downed Mud Dobbers, 19 to 0, and Lewis thumped Alexander No. 2, 38 to 0. All three winners have perfect records. The Grads have won eight games, while Lewis and Oakwood Drive have won seven.

Sigma Nu, playing in the second round of the league championship playoffs, defeated SAE, 19 to 0. Final round in the playoffs is scheduled for Monday when SAE will again meet Sigma Nu to determine the final champions of Fraternity league number two.

Play in both mural ping pong and volleyball competition opened yesterday.

Swimmers Hold Practice Meet

Coach Dick Jamerson sent his Carolina tank team through final conditioning drills and speed trials yesterday afternoon to bring them into shape for their second intrasquad meet of the pre-season drills.

The meet, which is open to all who would like to attend, will start at 4:30 o'clock in Bowman Gray pool.

Today's test will be the initial one of the practice sessions for the 440-yard distance men. Some of the events to be run off will include 100-yard free style, 150-yard backstroke, 150-yard breaststroke and the 440-yard free style.

Dogpatch Giants Battle for Honors On Gridiron Today

Fortescue university and Phogbound college rolled their football powerhouses into town early yesterday morning and went through light practice sessions on Fetzer field as a final wind up to their big tilt this afternoon at 2:30.

Coach Slippery Eel took his Phogbounders out to Max's Deluxe flop house in Carrboro where their headquarters have been setup. Many alumni and students are expected in by mule team early this morning along with the band.

Coach Rodger Evervescent has his team quartered at Billy's Roadside Ruse and many of his supporters are already hanging from the rafters.

The game is expected to be a sellout with a crowd of some 65,000 on hand. It will be a colorful affair and both coaches have said that their teams are in fine shape and every man will be available to play.

The battle looms as a titanic struggle between two 300-pound lines and quintuplet threat backs

Tar Heels, Wolfpack Taper For Big Clash

Carolina's Tar Heels and N. C. State's Wolfpack went through their final heavy practices of the week on their respective gridirons yesterday as rival coaches Carl Snively and Beattie Feathers applied a few polishing touches to their football machines before the two teams meet in Kenan Stadium on Saturday.

Light practices are in order in both training camps today, with neither coach being willing to risk injuries to key performers at such a late hour. So the sessions today will serve as little more than limbering up drills and a time for last minute pointers from the coaches.

In Raleigh Coach Feathers is singing a mournful tune because of injuries to five of his top players. George Allen, only recently promoted to the number one fullback post is out with an injured shoulder, and his understudy, freshman John Huzvar, is also on the disabled list. Two scrappy guards, Charlie Mussar and Ralph Barksdale, and George Blomquist, the pass snagging end, are other injured State boys.

The shortage of fullbacks in the State roster likely will prompt Feathers to shift Footsie Palmer, only this past week shifted to tailback, back to his old bucking back spot. Palmer was particularly impressive in the win over Chattanooga with his running and passing from the tailback post. If he goes back to fullback, Feathers has Charlie Richkus and Gwyn Fletcher to fill in at left halfback.

Carolina also has its injuries, with galloping Hosea Rodgers being the injured Tar Heel who is causing the fans the most worry. The big Alabama fullback has a leg injury. Bill Maceyko, the speedy little tailback, also has been on the sidelines this week and his play against State will be limited.
