

Monday, Tuesday Last Days For Those Who Missed Pix

Delinquent students who missed their Yackety Yack photograph appointment will have two more days of grace Monday and Tuesday to have that photo taken, Bill Claybrook, Yack Editor, said yesterday.

Representatives of Waller and Smith, the Raleigh studio contracted by the Yack for the individual sittings, will be on the second floor of Graham Memorial from 10 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock at night on those two days. All students, regardless of alphabetical order, are requested to come as early as possible.

The Yack photographers have taken photographs of 4,200 students up to today, 500 pictures short of the 4,700 estimate made by Claybrook earlier this fall. Over half of the proofs, numbers 0-2,500, of these photos are now ready for students' approval, he said. They may be obtained by calling at the Waller and Smith table in the Main Lounge of Graham Memorial.

Claybrook also said that all organizations who have not yet signed their space contracts will have one more chance on Monday to do so. They may stop at the Yack office located on the mezzanine of Graham Memorial any time during working hours that day and make their contract arrangements.

Yack beauty queen entries must be in by 12 o'clock noon Monday to be eligible for judging Nov. 18. Organizations may enter three candidates, accompanying each entry with a $3 fee. The contest photographs will be taken Monday night.

Examinations Set For Civil Service

Applications must be filed not later than Nov. 8 for Junior Professional Assistant and Junior Management Assistant examinations the U.S. Civil Service Commission announced yesterday.

The purpose of these examinations, according to the Commission, is "to recruit young people who display outstanding promise, for development into future Federal administrators and high grade professional workers." Since experience is not a requirement, the positions offer an excellent opportunity for college students to enter government service.

Details about the examinations are available through the Placement Service in 209 South Building or from the local post office, where inquiry should be made for Civil Service Announcement 192.

Library Bookstore Has Bull's Head As Sign

By M. K. Jones
The symbolic bull's head has entered its fourth generation as a sign of the University Library Extension. The sign of a most realistic and ferocious bull is the identification of the Bull's Head Bookshop, located on the ground floor in the left wing of the library.

In the beginning of the bookstore, back in 1930, the bull's head sign hung outside to invite all students in to read the varied selection of books. Just why the bull came to be associated with the bookstore no one knows, but legend says that it came from the many "bull sessions" in the office of its founder, Professor Howard M. Jones.

During the following years the bull's head became a dare among the Carolina students: "Who can get to the bull's head the quickest?" Finally with the third replacement of the handpainted sign it was hung inside the room to discourage such expensive pastimes.

The Bull's Head Bookstore, operated by Mrs. Charles A. Valentino, is unique in college libraries. It provides an informal atmosphere of browsing and relaxation, an excellent contrast to the studious labors going on upstairs. Stuffed leather seats surround the newest magazines, the fiction, mystery, and non-fiction books. Everything from cartoon albums to Plato is offered for the student's students.

Realizing that University students have little money to spend on books, the Bookshop offers chances to rent the books or to buy used books much below the retail price. A book may be rented for four days for 10 cents, with three cents for each day overtime, or for two weeks at a rate of 25 cents.

Each time a book is rented, 10 percent is subtracted from its price so a student may wait until the book has made a couple of rounds, then buy it for a very small sum. New books may also be purchased at any time.

The Bookstore has a selection of pocket-books and also the Modern Library of cheaper priced books. There are also reference books and a large collection of the classics.

Mrs. Valentino for many years has been sponsoring book teas with noted writers such as Phillips Russell, Paul Green, and Betty Smith. These teas are very informal and interesting, which is exactly what Mrs. Valentino strives for, as they carry on the tradition of the Bull's Head Bookstore for delightful and recreational reading.

D. Warriner Says Ballots Taken Early

Campus Phillip Morris Representative Dorth Warriner said yesterday that it was necessary to collect the ballots in this week's cigarette contest ahead of the regular Friday deadline of 3 o'clock, since the Clemson-South Carolina game was being played before the deadline.

Those ballots picked up Thursday will count with respect to the Clemson-South Carolina game, but on all ballots picked up yesterday, that game will be disregarded. Ballot boxes in the contest are located in the Scuttlebutt, the Y, the Circus Room, and the Soda Sellar, Warriner said.

The Phillip Morris contest offers weekly cigarette prizes for correct scorecasting of the games listed in the Phillip Morris ad each Tuesday. Phillip Morris wrappers serving as the ballots. In addition to the regular weekly prizes, at the end of the season there will be three grand prizes of first, second, and third place to the living group, club, and fraternity which has turned in the most wrappers per capita. These prizes are on display in the Y lobby.

Winners for the week ending Oct. 15 were: Jean Rankin, Lynn Hammock, Ted McDonnell, Belk C. Troutman, Johnny Robison, Bill Wilder, Mary Rice, Henry Gheen, and E. L. Albenesius.

In an attempt to drain Lake Mattamuskeet in North Carolina, a pumping station capable of pumping 1,250 gallons of water a minute was especially built.

CAMPUS BRIEFS

THE JOHNSTON County Club will meet at 7 o'clock Monday evening in 203 Alumni Building. This is the club's second meeting of the current year, and all students from Johnston County are urged to attend. Definite plans for a Christmas Dance will be made at that time, according to Secretary James Rose.

THE EXECUTIVE Committee and officers of the Young Democrats Club will meet Monday afternoon in Roland Parker Lounge No. 1 in Graham Memorial at 4:30. The meeting is open to all interested persons, and organizers are requested to bring all new membership cards with them.

NEW MEMBERS of the Pharmacy Senate gave initiation speeches at the group's meeting last Tuesday evening. James Davis spoke on "Aureomycin," Alene Warren on "Why I Am Studying Pharmacy."

Senators Hear Johnson Defend Military Policies

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21—(P)—Secretary of Defense Johnson declared today that admirals who charge U. S. naval power is being scuttled have built their case on "straw men and false rumors." Appearing before the House Armed Services Committee, Johnson defended the unified military policies he administers and vowed to continue his economy drive.

The committee rang down the curtain on its investigation of

W. C. Dance Set Tonight

The first informal dance of the season to take place at the Woman's College of the University will be held tonight at 8:30 in W. C.'s Rosenthal Gymnasium, Pete Gerns, former president of the Inter-Dorm Council, announced yesterday.

Jane Edmunds, social chairman of the planning committee, has asked 150 male dormitory students from here to attend the dance.
