Football—Year Round Sport

Football, the collegiate sport of kings, steps back into the public eye again next week for a four week stand on the lower regions of Navy Field. Yep, the seasonal sessions of football preparation get under way a week from today—and for the first time in four years, without the services of Charlie Justice, Art Weiner, Kenny Powell, and a host of others who stepped into their blue and white uniforms for the last time Jan. 2 in Dallas.

From now on the wheels in the backfield will not revolve around Justice, the greatest football player (and of sentence). Boys like Dick Bunting, Billy Hayes, Goo Goo Gant, Fred Sherman, George Verchick, Dick Wiess and many other lesser known individuals will be the knights from Chapel Hill who will go out in the world next September to tussle with Notre Dame, Tennessee, Duke, Georgia, and the rest. And on the ends comparatively new faces will begin to appear. Old Standbys Weiner and Powell by that time will be fighting it out with the pros.

Next year's schedule, although not officially released from Athletic officials, has been almost completely pieced together from releases by Carolina's opponents and Coach Carl Snaveley has already spent considerable time mapping plans for next year's grid wars.

Jayvee Team Coming

In a communique (French for he told me a few things) from the football office, Snaveley reported that, unlike former years, he will be operating not only freshman and varsity teams, but is mapping out an attractive schedule for a jayvee squad. And that calls for an added supply of talent. So where will the Gray Fox get it? Well, he ought to get it right in his own back yard. There are enough potential better than average football players horsing around on the grass in front of Graham Memorial and laying around on their backs reading love stories to supply the varsity and junior varsity squads with sufficient talent to last through two or three seasons.

It really isn't such a silly idea to go out for football if you have an A medical rating from the infirmary. And you don't need an excess of high or prep school experience. Take a look at Eddie Knox, first rate blocking back who lived through three bowl games. Knox, who had little high school experience, was unknown to the coaches when he entered the University. He wasn't big, but he liked to play football and he went out and learned. So what does he end up with?—three Bowl game watches, trips to Dallas, New Orleans, New York, and points East, West, and South, and a wealth of experience he won't forget.

And Knox isn't the only one who just happened to come out for football without being offered scholarships, and anything else they offer. George Verchick, Pete Rywak, Ed Washington, Tommy Stevens, Jim Hendrick, Louis Bledsoe, and many more were unheard of before they showed up to get a uniform from Sarge Keller.

So you get already to go out for football come next Wednesday and then you think, what kind of a chance do I have when they have guys like Wallace, Cooke, and Ellington coming up from the freshman team? Well, those freshmen played the T and will be learning all over again. On top of that, Snaveley says, "We are planning radical changes in the offense of the varsity teams next year"—so everybody will be starting out on an equal footing. And what do you have to lose? But look what you've got to gain!

Back To The Boys

Speaking of candidates for football teams, the size of last year's freshman squad was most disappointing. The boys who had been asked to come out were there most of the time, but Crowell Little could have used some of the talent that was among the class of '53 but was afraid to drop by the football field.

College football isn't what it used to be. The war veterans have given the game back to the boys—its rightful place. Most all the family men are home taking care of their families now and the youngsters are the ones who are doing the playing. Take a look at Mr. Bunting, and Mr. Gant, and Mr. Stevens, and Mr. King and the rest. They aren't the old men who did the playing during the war years. They're just the average college guy who decided he wanted to compete in intercollegiate sports.

There are great values in football for every boy who makes an honest effort to play the game and every person who feels he has some natural ability, no matter how little, ought to take advantage of the opportunity which is offered him here. He can make a contribution to his school, the team, and will do something for himself.

Why not try it?

Coliseum Sold Out For Tonight's Game

RALEIGH, Jan. 24—(AP)—The "sold-out" sign was hung up today by N. C. State College athletic officials for tomorrow's basketball game between the Wolfpack and Louisville.

It marks the third time this season that State has sold out its 12,000-seat Coliseum. Previous capacity crowds were on Jan. 3 when the Pack met San Francisco and Jan. 14 for the State-LaSalle scrap.

So far this season the Coliseum has drawn more than 175,000 spectators.

Although unrated nationally, Louisville has won 18 of 21 games. State was ranked 10th in the nation in today's Associated Press Poll.

Crusaders Still Tops; State 10th In Ratings

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—(AP)—Unbeaten Holy Cross came out on top today by a huge margin as the Country's No. 1 college basketball team in the fourth weekly Associated Press poll.

The Crusaders, winners of 14 games, collected 118 out of a possible 166 first-place votes in capturing the first spot for the second straight time.

Sports writers and broadcasters from coast to coast named Duquesne for second place. The Pittsburgh Dukes, only other undefeated major five (13-0), received only four first-place nominations in jumping from last week's sixth spot.

Long Island (13-2) stayed in third position, even though North Carolina State whipped the Brooklyn five last week. Clair Bee's Blackbirds convinced 10 voters they're the Nation's best.

Kentucky (11-4), loser of three of its last five starts, moved up a notch to fourth. Notre Dame handed Adolph Rupp his latest last night, 64-51. Six voted for Kentucky as the No. 1 Five.

St. John's of Brooklyn, leader in the first two polls, fell from second to fifth. The Redmen (15-2) received six first-place ballots.

Bradley (15-3) finished sixth, with eight first-place nods. The speedy Braves were upset by Detroit Saturday, a major factor in dropping them from fourth.

LaSalle of Philadelphia (11-2) climbed to seventh place from last week's 10th. The Explorers have won their last seven, including four tough ones in Western Kentucky, Bowling Green, North Carolina State, and St. Joseph's.

Continuing its downward descent, Indiana, (12-2) also fell one rung, to ninth. The Hoosiers drew two no. 1 votes as did North Carolina State.

The Wolfpack (13-3) placed 10th, barely behind Indiana. U.C.L.A., ninth last week, fell out of the top 10 and North Carolina State is the new member.

The top teams (first-place ballots in parentheses; records not include Tuesday night's games; first place worth 10 points, second, nine, and so on):

TEAM	Record	Points
1. Holy Cross (118)	14-0	1,600
2. Duquesne (4)	13-0	1,024
3. Long Island (10)	13-2	826
4. Kentucky (8)	11-4	792
5. St. John's (6)	15-2	754
6. Bradley (8)	15-3	698
7. LaSalle (6)	11-2	534
8. C.C.N.Y.	9-2	446
9. Indiana (2)	12-2	384
10. N. Car. State (2)	13-3	384

Fencers Meet State In Opener Tomorrow

The newly organized Carolina Fencing Club held elimination trials yesterday to decide the nine men who will fence against State tomorrow night in the first match of the season for the local swordsmen.

The team is shaping up very well for its first real team competition, said Coach Franz Ross yesterday.

A total of 27 bouts in three divisions—foil, epee, and saber—is scheduled tomorrow night, with two matches to be played off at a time.

The meet with State will inaugurate an ambitious schedule for the local fencers who have a tentative match with VMI on the books in addition to a triangle meet with Virginia and Johns Hopkins and a four-way affair with State, Virginia, and Kentucky. —VIC GOLDBERG

Seven Of UNC's '50 Grid Games Already Known

Although the Athletic Department has not released the 1950 gridiron card for the Tar Heels, seven of Carolina's opponents have released the dates on which their games with Carolina will be played.

Notre Dame, Tennessee, South Carolina, N. C. State, and Duke all released their schedules recently and they were carried by the Associated Press.

The Washington Post recently carried the University of Maryland schedule which included a game with Carolina in Kenan Stadium on November 11. According to the accompanying story, Maryland officials said the game might be shifted to the Terps' new College Park stadium.

Tennessee's schedule included a game with Coach Carl Snaveley's forces on November 4, a week later than the game was played during the past three years. The contest is carded for Knoxville.

South Carolina has been dropped from the third week to the next to final week. The Gamecocks will make their first appearance in Kenan Stadium since before the war on November 18, the usual week of the Duke game.

The Duke game is the biggest departure from past form. Instead of meeting the Blue Devils in the next to last game as has been the practice in the past, the Duksters will come to Chapel Hill during the Thanksgiving week-end for a November 25 game.

Virginia's schedule, which was also recently released, carded the Carolina game for October 21 in Charlottesville, the first time in the long history of the Carolina-Virginia series that this contest has not been played on the Thanksgiving weekend.

Gill Going?

Line Coach Jim Gill has asked for and received permission to negotiate for a new job, Director of Athletics R. A. Fetzer revealed yesterday.

Gill has yet to say definitely whether or not he will leave Carolina, but even so there are two positions on the grid staff that have to be filled. Marvin Bass' return to William and Mary cost the Tar Heels their defensive line coach and Freshman Coach Crowell Little has left to take over the position of head coach at Davidson.

Fetzer said that a new staff for Coach Carl Snaveley will probably be set by February 1.

Kappler Back at Cage Practice

Forward Hugo Kappler reported to basketball practice yesterday after a bout with virus pneumonia, but the Tar Heel forward is expected to see only limited action in this weekend's pair of Conference games against VPI and Davidson.

Kappler, who was in the infirmary for a week, missed the South Carolina and State games, but his replacement, Dick Patterson, performed well in both contests. Kappler just took a light workout yesterday and Patterson will probably play the majority of the time this weekend.

BUTLER'S MADE EVERYTHING BUT THE TEAM SINCE HE STARTED USING VITALIS!

You'll be the star in the girls' eyes—if you use your head—and "Live-Action" Vitalis care. Give that mop on top the famous "60-second workout." 50 seconds scalp massage (feel the difference!)... 10 seconds to comb (and will the winner see the difference!). You'll look neat 'n natural. Bye-bye loose flaky dandruff and dryness, too. So latch on to Vitalis—see the man at the drug store or barber shop pronto.
