

Phi Gam Standby Marks 20th Year

By Ned Dowd
 Albert Reeves, the gentleman, houseboy and jack of all trades of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, recently celebrated his 20th year of service for the Phi Gams.

Affectionately called "Phi" by present members and alumni he has watched grow up. Albert has been a fixture at the Phi Gams' Vance Hall since it opened in 1939.

Known in Carrboro as the unofficial mayor, Phi lives there in a bungalow with his wife and two children. In spite of the distance, Phi has seldom missed a day's work, the Phi Gams proudly boast.

Folks who know Phi say he is walking and talking catalogue of Orange County. Knowledge of local prices, where to get the item and the best item in the market is at his fingertips, the fraternity members say.

Phi has developed a remarkable faculty for remembering the faces and names of almost every graduated Phi Gam. For

GM Will Hold Photo Exhibit Open To All

A photography exhibit open to all students, faculty members and townspeople will be held in the Horace Williams Lounge of Graham Memorial the week of March 5.

Pictures entered in the contest must be 8 inches by 10 inches and must be mounted on 16 by 20 inch salon print mount. Dick Swartz, manager of the Graham Memorial Dark Room, will be available to give help to contestants.

The first three winners of the contest held in connection with the exhibit will be entered in a salon contest sponsored by the Georgia Institute of Technology. Pictures receiving honorable mention will also be entered in the contest.

Anyone holding a membership card to the Dark Room may use it for printing his pictures. Anyone not already a member may become one by contacting Dick Swartz and fulfilling the entrance requirements.

this reason and for the immense quantity of fraternity lore stored in his memory, Phi has become one of the fraternity's strongest links with the past.

One of the fraternity's favorite tales about Phi revolves around the Carolina-Tennessee game of 1947, played in Knoxville. He went on the trip to Tennessee with a few of "the boys," presented himself at the Vol Phi Gam house and introduced himself as "a Phi Gam from Carolina."

Immediately he began sending Vol pledges on errands. At game time, the story goes, Phi walked through the stadium gate importantly saying that he had "three boys on that field to take care of: Mr. Wardle, Mr. Rizzo and Mr. Fowle."

The most fitting tribute to the steadfast friend and loyal servant of so many Phi Gamma Deltas through the years could only be the one his "boys" have paid Albert "Phi" Reeves: He is the Phi Gamest of them all.

 at the same time keep the standards they have been operating under this year."

The student body might also get the benefit of some expanded services, Hauser said, "if there is enough money left after the Legislature corrects past budgeting mistakes."

The Jones referendum measure was vigorously defended yesterday by the SP floor leader.

"If a block fee raise is necessary," Jones stated, "we are sure the student body as a whole will know it and vote accordingly."

Hauser attacked the referendum, however, as a means of "passing the buck." He backed his stand by quoting a section of the student constitution passed by a campus-wide vote in the spring of 1946.

"The constitution," he commented, "specifically delegates the Legislature to raise or lower fees as long as they stay within a $20 maximum limit. The students voted to entrust the Legislature with that job, and some members of that body apparently want to shirk their duty."

"There are only three possible reasons why individual members of the Legislature would vote for a referendum," Hauser continued. "Those persons either are merely out to kill the fee raise, which a referendum would do, or they are afraid to act on the matter themselves because they fear political repercussions when election time comes, or some might honestly believe the raise is a matter which should be voted on directly by the students."

"The latter simply do not realize how vitally important the raise is to the student body, and how vital it is that the issue be kept off a political plane, which is where it would go as an election issue if a referendum were called."

will probably never be completely solved," Jones added, "but I don't think many of the workmen who saw them will forget them for quite some time. After all, it isn't every day that you dig up a couple of skeletons in a nice neighborhood."

French Club Meet

The French Club will meet tonight in Roland Parker lounge 2 of Graham Memorial. The meeting is scheduled for 7:30.

Seesaw Started Kitchell On Fun Career

Fall From Perch Brought Initial Laughs For Entertainment Committee Performer

Iva Kitchell, who will bring her one woman show of dance comedies to Memorial Hall next Tuesday at 8 o'clock under the auspices of the Student Entertainment Committee, says that her first laughs came quite unintentionally.

At the age of four, little Iva made her stage debut as Cupid, clad in cheesecloth, and flourishing a bow and arrow from a precarious perch on a seesaw. She was supposed to aim her arrow at a young couple, of course. However, her balance not being what it is now, the catastrophe that Iva had expected befell her.

She toppled from the seesaw and wept bitterly, not that she was hurt, but that the audience laughed at her. Her pride was wounded, and she would have left the theater then and there, if there had not been a stubborn streak in her.

The play was to run for three days, and little Iva was determined to hold her balance for the remaining performances.

In spite of the fact that she was plagued with stagefright, Iva did manage to stay on her perch. She was rewarded for her efforts with a bunch of daisies from one of her youthful admirers.

Iva thinks this was a most auspicious debut and that the laughter must have been an omen of things to come. It would certainly be hard to imagine a Kitchell performance nowadays, whether in Carnegie Hall or as part of her extensive cross-country tours, that was not accompanied by much merry laughter.

Miss Kitchell just naturally evokes laughter with her piqued grin and the funny twists to her burlesques of the ballet.
