

Tar Heel Trackmen Take Eleventh Indoor Game Title

ANOTHER PICTURE

By Buddy Vaden

Full Of Surprises

BASKETBALL COACH TOM SCOTT is probably just as surprised as the rest of the Southern Conference that his basketball team finished the season with a blast of power that put them way up in fifth place in the Conference and easily assured them a spot in the Conference tournament at Durham next weekend. Scott, who is pretty much of an optimist, couldn't see many bright spots for the coming winter way back in late November.

But look what's happened. The Tar Heels started off on the right foot by defeating two minor league clubs, Elon and Richmond, then suffered three successive losses to VPI, Elon (Of all things), and George Washington. From that point until the trip to Miami, things went on in a hit or miss fashion.

But with the double win over Miami the Tar Heels perked up and won seven out of their next eight games. As a matter of fact, they lost only four games after their trip to Florida. (Florida Chamber of Commerce take note—what great power did that State have on Tom Scott's boys?). Two of those losses were to you-know-who, one to Wake Forest, and another to George Washington.

What happened to the Tar Heels after the Christmas holidays? They surely weren't getting the breaks. First one player and then another got hurt or sick. Of the top eight players, only Dick Patterson and Bill White managed to stay healthy.

They Made Some Changes

THE BIG CHANGE seemed to be caused by the return of Charlie Thorne, the superb work of sub Patterson, and the rapid improvement of Guard Howard Deasy. Previously, it had been Nemo Nearman who kept the Tar Heels on their feet. Nearman set the single game high scoring record for the year at 25 points against Richmond, and kept on pouring points through the hoop until he became the Conference's leading scorer. Today he is still near the top in Conference scoring—and that's in a conference with All-America candidates Dick Dickey, Sammy Ranzino, Chet Giermak, and Jim Slaughter.

But now they're in the tournament with ease and after the Loop's basketball committee meeting in Durham this morning they will start planning tourney strategy. Of the seven other teams in the event the Tar Heels have defeated all but George Washington and N. C. State. But those two teams were given a few worried moments when they played the Tar Heels in Chapel Hill.

When the Colonials appeared here in early December they won the ball game in the last three minutes, after trailing most of the way. The Tar Heels were tied up at the 17 minute mark, only to let the Colonials score ten points in the final minutes. As for the State-Carolina game here State was lucky to have won that one. Carolina led until the fading minutes and State barely won the game, 61-57, with a last minute burst of power.

The Wolfpack has never gotten off light in tournament games with the Tar Heels. For the past two years the Tar Heels have run up against State in the semi-finals and both times the Wolfpack squeezed by on the skin of their Ranzino and Company.

West Raleigh fans will laugh, but these Tar Heels have a chance of winning the tournament this year. They're always hot in Durham and with a full staff on hand for the event this year, they could pull the upset of the decade. It would be a big job, but after all, who thought Truman was going to win?

Some Track And Football

TRACK DEPARTMENT: There is more and more talk going around that the Indoor Games will be moved to Raleigh next year. The Coliseum would make an excellent home for the Indoor Games as far as the building itself is concerned. There are facilities for three times as many spectators as can be accommodated in Chapel Hill. The floor itself would allow more room for the various events.

However, can State College adequately supply facilities for the 600-odd athletes who annually participate in the affair as economically and as effectively as they are taken care of in Chapel Hill? Another point: For a long time Chapel Hill has been the track center of the Southern Conference. Maryland is the only school in the loop that has seriously threatened the Tar Heel domination. It's always nice to have the Conference championships at the home of the school that has performed best in that sport.

Football news: With only three more days of winter grid drills left on the sports calendar, more people are beginning to wonder if Carl Snavelly is going to stick with his "Y" formation. At the start it looked like a great idea, but now they're beginning to see some of its weaknesses. The Y has more deception than the single wing and for plays up the middle it's fine, but when they start trying to go around the ends they run into trouble. That's what the Carolina Coaches' Club has found in recent weeks. And it was evident in yesterday's lengthy scrimmage.

Coaches Roll Call—at yesterday's session 12 coaches were on hand. Among them Box Cox, Ted Hazelwood, Heywood Fowle, Russ Murphey, George Radman, Jim Camp, Walt Pupa, Sid Varney, Bob Mitten, Bill Flamisch, Ray Straight, and Snavelly.

Straight has been in Chapel Hill for a few days talking with the boys. A graduate of Davis and Elkins, Straight was a big wheel in his day. A collegiate tackle and center, he went to Marshall College in West Virginia and has been there 13 years. His status in Chapel Hill is at the present a big question mark?

Looking good department: Ernest Liberati, Bud Carson, C. C. White, Billy O'Brien, and Joe Dougherty all looked good in yesterday's drills. For a fullback Carson is mighty small—and mighty fast and hard-driving for his 160-pounds.

Piling up a big point margin in the dashes and hurdles, Carolina's powerful team retained its 1949 title in the Southern Conference Indoor Games here last night as the Tar Heels outscored second-place Maryland, 60-38½.

Navy's future admirals sailed to a comparatively easy win in the non-conference division with 27 points. Defending champ Georgia Tech edged out Florida for second-place.

For the second straight year it was Carolina's ace Bill Albans who led the locals to victory. The blond Olympic ace scored three first places and figured in a two-way tie for second to end up as the meet's outstanding individual.

Maryland got off to an early start in the meet when shot putter Jack Unterkofler heaved the iron ball 49 ft. 7 ¾ in. for a new Indoor Games record, shattering Steve Lach's 1942 record of 47 ft. 6 ½ in. Defending champ Jim O'Leary of Duke took second.

Albans won the broad jump with a leap of 22 ft. 8 ½ in. while teammate Jack Moody came in with second place.

Moody had his moments of glory later, upsetting the favored Albans in the high jump and winning with a leap of 6 ft. 4 in. Albans and Bob Monroe of Virginia Tech tied for second-place honors with 6 ft. 3 in. leaps.

Carolina gathered strength in the conference 60-yard dash as Dave Willis and Frank Scott took one-two and Tar Heel Bill Crimmins grabbed off fourth. Willis was timed in 6.5.

LSU's Joe Preston repeated his 1949 win in the non-conference 60 as he clipped off a 6.5.

In the conference 70-yard high hurdles Carolina added points on Albans' second victory of the night and Bob Morrow's second place finish. Time for the event was 8.6.

Dick Taylor, Carolina hurdler last year, nipped freshman coach Dick Maxwell at the tape to win the Special Invitation 70-yard high hurdle event in 8.6. Wes Flint, former Harvard star, ran third.

Sam Magill ran away with the conference two-mile run, beating Tyson Creamer of Maryland by 40 yards. Magill lapped the entire field and received a thunderous ovation at the finish line.

Maryland's ace miler Bob Palmer retained the West Mile Trophy with his 4:30 victory in that event. Teammate Lindy Kehoe took second.

Maryland's Jim Umbarger took a first in the conference half-mile while teammate Gus Meier ran a tight second. Carolina's Laddie Terrell took third.

Tommy Scott, Tennessee distance star, won the non-conference mile in 4:23 to whack three and nine-tenths second off his (See CONFERENCE, page 4)
