"Even before walking out on the platform, we realized that the theater was very much alive. Cockroaches three inches in length scurried all over the floor, taking occasional flying leaps. "Here and there a native stage attendant, clad only in red undershirts, put his bare heel forcefully on one of these monsters, which then exploded with the sound of a loud cap pistol. "The jungle atmosphere thickened as we started to play. Fluttering bats overhead cast menacing shadows over my notes. My thin-clad ankles, defenseless upon the pedals, were fine bait for mosquitoes. (Continued from page 1) failed to materialize. During the second and third acts, Miller's face took on a deepening frown. After the play, the cast and the visiting professionals gathered at a party. All were waiting to hear Miller's verdict. The producer, who had been paying a hundred dollars a month to hold the option, came in late. He crossed the hushed room and spoke gently to playwright Lamson. "I'm sorry," he said, "that's the end of the option." There was nothing more to be said. "That isn't the end of the

World Peace Is Supported By Notables

By Wink Locklair
What ideals or beliefs could be so expressed in a written statement that 150 North Carolina business, professional, political and educational leaders would sign their names to it and give it their active support? At this portentous stage in world affairs, only some declaration of infinite importance toward the establishment of world peace would likely attract such an appreciable number of prominent citizens. However, such a document has been endorsed in this State. It is a petition which Senator Clyde R. Hoey has presented to the United States Senate, favoring the cause of limited world federal government by endorsing the World Federation Resolution now pending in both Houses of Congress.

The Resolution is sponsored by 105 Representatives, including Representatives Chatham of North Carolina, and by 21 Senators, including Senator Frank Graham. It would declare it to be the sense of Congress that a fundamental objective of the foreign policy of the United States should be to support and strengthen the United Nations and develop it into a world federation with powers limited but adequate for the preservation of peace through enactment, interpretation and enforcement of world law. The petition which Senator Hoey offered contained what might be the first on a state-wide basis, signed by so many leaders with such diverse backgrounds.

It has the name of every member," Casey points out, "I was able to see the opening of her new play, 'Respectfully Yours,' at the Blackfriars in New York, shortly after that. It ran for a month in New York." Mike, whose home is Turners Falls, Mass., is a gentle-speaking lad with a winning smile. He is not a bit awed by the fact that he wrote a play which will be the first full length original play toured by the famed Playmakers. He isn't even awed that New York producers and motion picture companies are interested in his play. He's busy writing another comedy. Samuel French, Inc., play

Southern CIO Organizer Speaks Here On Tuesday

George Baldanzi of Patterson, N. J., executive vice-president of the Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, who is director of the CIO's Southern organization campaign, will speak on "What Labor Wants" in Gerrard Hall Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. The YMCA is sponsoring the address. Prof. Paul Guthrie of the School of Commerce will introduce Baldanzi, and officers of the "Y" will preside. The speaker was president of the United Textile Workers of America, AFL, at the time of the merger of that organization with the TWUA. He was elected executive vice-president of the latter group at its first constitutional convention in 1939 and was re-elected to that office at succeeding biennial conventions. Baldanzi represented the CIO on a five-man international labor commission which went to Italy in 1944 to investigate that country's labor movement.

UNC Debater Invited To Hearst Talk Battle

The University of North Carolina is one of three Southern colleges invited to participate in an oratorical contest sponsored by the Hearst newspaper chain, Debate Council President Dave Pittman said yesterday. Carolina will send one contestant to West Point April 28-29 to speak for six minutes on "The Policies of James Madison." The final contest will be held in the Metropolitan Opera House in New York May 10, when prizes ranging from $50-$1000 U. S. Savings bonds will be presented. Trial dates for the University representatives will be announced later, but anyone interested in trying out for the oratorical contest should contact Dave Pittman as soon as possible. The two other Southern schools entering the contest are the University of Virginia and The Citadel. There will be 60 high schools and colleges represented in the contest.

"I first thought this was a new idea," Casey grins, amused at himself, "but I've found out that an Italian Renaissance writer named Ariosto had the same idea about 400 years ago." Mike, with typical Black-Irish determination, has several strong opinions about the function of stage plays. These ideas are based on a well-founded background of acting, directing, and designing at Williams College, the Parkway Playhouse in Burnsville, in addition to personal contact with many Broadway theater workers. Since accepting a graduate assistantship in the Department of Dramatic Art here, Casey has worked closely with Walter

Prichard Eaton, visiting lecturer who formerly taught playwriting at Yale University, said "I believe that most modern plays fail to fulfill one of the primary functions of good theater," says Mike. "A play should both entertain and instruct, but too many writers are so busy instructing that they forget to be properly entertaining." "Angels Full Front" follows Mike's ideas about entertaining. He has kept the plot simple, with the story centering around Pa Sullivan and his eternal struggle with the women in his family. cents for the booklet. The regular price at schools that are

Washington-Lee took an early lead in the scholastic division with a morning first place in the high jump. Jim McFadden, fresh from a basketball game in Arlington Friday night, leaped 5 ft 8 in. The Arlingtonians came back in the 60-yard dash to sweep first and second places. Mack Byrd tied the existing record of 6.5 seconds in winning for the third straight while Stu McGowan was a close second.

Shortly afterwards Frank Scott joined Albans and Morrow to give the Tar Heels a one-two-three in the conference low hurdles. Duke's Tommy Reeves barely edged out UNC's Mert Norcross for fourth place. Jim Kennedy of Navy won the non-conference lows.
