Two Suspended By Honor Council

Two students were suspended from the University for indefinite periods for violations of the honor code in action by the Men's Honor Council last week, Clerk Buddy Vaden said yesterday.

One student, brought before the Council because of an alleged violation of the Honor Code in a Latin test, admitted that he had cheated on the examination. The other suspended student, a senior, was charged with stealing money from the newspaper stands in Lenoir Hall.

Newspapermen had complained that money had been taken from their collection boxes on many previous occasions. One newsman had lost sums totaling $60 in the past few months.

The newsmen, who had informed the Honor Council of losses, began a watch of the news stands after the Lenoir closing hours. One night last week they saw a student reach into one of the boxes and he admitted his guilt.

A witness identified the student as the one he had seen on another occasion empty the coin box. The guilty student was suspended indefinitely with no recommendations.

In another case before the Council last week a student was exonerated of charges of an Honor Code violation.

Communism To Be Topic Of Speaker

His appearance is being sponsored by the Departments of Political Science and Philosophy.

Well known for his anti-Communist activities, he has done a great deal of writing and public speaking in his one-man campaign against the spread of Communist ideology in this country.
