

A-Bomb Super Carrier Is Proposed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—(AP)—Legislation for a 60,000-ton super aircraft carrier which presumably could put the Navy in the atom bomb business was introduced today as one of the first bills of the new Congress. Hearings start Jan. 9.

In the background as Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee offered the measure were the same explosive issues which brought the "Admirals' Revolt" and a sensational Congressional investigation in 1949.

The basic disputes then were over the roles to be assigned to be the Navy and the Air Force in carrying long-range war to an enemy, and the division of funds to prepare for those roles.

The Air Force, which has primary responsibility for strategic bombing under the service unification program, never liked Navy plans for a 65,000-ton atom bomb carrier. Air enthusiasts argued it would be a vulnerable target, not specially valuable for Navy operations on and close to the sea and inefficient as compared for long strikes.

Louis Johnson, then Secretary of Defense, cancelled construction of the proposed U.S.S. United States in April, 1949, after the keel for the huge ship had been laid at Newport News. He said he did so after receiving the views of the joint chiefs of staff and conferring with President Truman.

High Naval officers reacted with indignation which broke in to the open a few months later. There were accusations of fraud in the selection of the B-36 bomber as the Air Force's main strategic reliance, and criticism of the effectiveness of the plane itself. Naval officers claimed they had fighters that could knock the air giants out of the sky day or night at any altitude. They derided the idea that an enemy couldn't do that too.

A protracted Congressional investigation resulted in exoneration of all officials accused of political favoritism and other misdeeds in connection with the B-36 program, and committee acceptance of the view that the B-36 was the best plane in sight for its worldwide job.

Meantime there was a shakeup in the Navy high command, including the ouster of Admiral Louis Denfeld, chief of Naval operations, who had sided with his admirals.

Sponsors of the new proposal for an outside carrier said it is not a revival of the idea of the U.S.S. United States. Navy spokesmen have said its design is even more up-to-date.

Truman Inks New Tax Bill, Hints Worse

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—(AP)—President Truman signed the $3,300,000,000 excess profits tax into law today and served notice that "more and much heavier taxes" will be needed.

The new law, second tax hike since the outbreak of the Korean war, hits corporations alone. In signing it, however, Mr. Truman said that in the coming months "we shall have a canvass and recanvass every revenue possibility" to keep the nation's financial situation stable under the impact of the costly rearmament effort.

His language clearly opened the possibility of heavier taxes on individuals.

Revenue from the excess profits tax, combined with existing levies on individuals and corporations, is expected to funnel a record $45,000,000,000 a year into the Treasury. In wartime 1945, collections hit the previous high—$43,900,000,000.

Mr. Truman complimented the lawmakers on their speed in writing the complex legislation, and remarked that through their efforts federal revenues will be increased very substantially.

"However," he said in a statement, "the task ahead of us will require more and much heavier taxes. I shall, in due course, submit to the Congress recommendations for substantial tax increases."

"Excessive exemptions and relief provisions create inequities and reduce the government's revenues needlessly," he said.

All-Opponent

Bob Williams was brilliant quarterbacking the Notre Dame T-formation this year and made several All-America teams. He threw two touchdown passes to whip Carolina, 14-7.

Bill Miller, the 198-pound Deacon powerhouse, beat out Andy Kozar of Tennessee and Billy Cox of Duke for the fourth spot in the backfield. Miller was the hard-charging fullback who ran well outside and inside to keep the Carolina defense bunched as the Tar Heels lost, 14-7, to Wake Forest.

The top ends on the mythical team both caught two touchdown passes against the Tar Heels. Jim Mutscheller took two from Bob Williams, the second one providing the margin of victory for the Irish, and Gene Schroeder, 6 ft. 2 in. star from Virginia, caught scoring passes of 43 and 22 yards to match Papi's touchdown output. Vito Ragazzo of William and Mary and Elmer Wingate of Maryland both were narrowly topped by Schroeder.

Tennessee's Pearman and Elmer Costa of State were named to the tackle posts. Pearman, a 210-pound hefty, earned Lineman of the Week mention after his rugged play as the Vols spanked Carolina, 16-0. Costa, top man in the tough Wolfpack line, made the All-Southern Conference team and the AP All-America second team. His play contributed largely to the showing of underdog State which lost a thriller to Carolina, 13-7.

Ted Daffer, at 185, a little man as linemen go, was one of the key men in the Vol line which gave up only 20 yards rushing to Carolina. Bob Ward, another "watch-charm" guard was an All-American who played a brilliant defensive game while the rest of the Terps made a sporty showing.

Jerry Groom, Irish co-captain and All-American, was one of the holdovers from last year's great Notre Dame team.

'Flicker' Expert Of Movies Dies At 71

CHICAGO, Jan. 3—(AP)—The man who took the flicker out of motion pictures died today at the age of 71.

He was Albert S. Howell, inventor and founder and board chairman of Bell and Howell Company, maker of photographic instruments. He retired from active duty with the company in 1940 but maintained his association with the company to carry on a specialized engineering project.

In 1949 he was elected chairman of the board of the company. Howell's work in motion pictures won him the Wetherill Medal of the Franklin Institute. It also placed his name in gold alongside those of Thomas A. Edison and George Eastman on the memorial plaque of the American Society of Cinematographers in Hollywood. Howell was a member of the society.
