The fraternity initiated 82 new freshman members at the meeting.

Council Rules Election Law Holds

Beaman Appeal Is Refused By Highest Court

Council Also Says No Co-Candidacies Lawful On Campus

By Don Maynard

After a lengthy, two hour and 10 minute session, the Student Council voted unanimously last night to support the recent controversial Elections Law change in campus office candidate qualifications.

And in a surprise move, the Council decided five to three that "only one person may be nominated for a campus office," disallowing political party co-nominations.

The Council sat in special session to hear the appeal of University Party head cheerleader candidate Allman Beaman who was disqualified for academic reasons under the newly passed Elections Law amendment bill.

But the startling move came when Julian Mason, Elections Board chairman, requested the Council for an interpretation of the Constitutional section relating to the constitutionality of co-nominations to campus offices.

The Council decided that only one person may run for any campus office, explaining that the Constitution mentions only "a," "an," or "the" in reference to candidates for offices. Co-nominations are unconstitutional, Botto said.

Beaman had asked the campus supreme court to determine the constitutionality of the law which requires all candidates to maintain a C average for three quarters prior to running for office.

Council Chairman Larry Botto said no ex post facto ruling exists "in fact" in the Student Constitution. He said the only mention made was a reference to the North Carolina Constitution which states there shall be no ex post facto law passed punishing or taxing for a crime committed before existence of a law.

In his formal statement, Botto said: "The provisions of this bill are not in opposition with the provisions of the State and Federal Constitutions, and therefore the Student Constitution, in that these provisions constitute qualifications rather than punishments or taxes for acts previously committed."

31 Per Cent Covered

Eclipse Of Sun Will Be Visible To Carolina Students Tomorrow

Weather permitting, Carolina students will be able to observe an eclipse of the sun late tomorrow afternoon.

Those who watch the eclipse from here will see our moon steadily obscure the sun until it is 31 per cent covered, according to Dr. Douglas Duke, professor of astronomy and acting director of the Morehead Planetarium.

The actual percentage of the sun covered will vary from about 29 per cent in the northernmost part of the state to 34 per cent in the extreme southeastern part, he says.

The eclipse will begin at 4:58 p.m., eastern time when the moon begins to cross in front of the sun, the first bite appearing in the lower left hand part of the sun's disk. Maximum covering of the sun will not occur until 5:45 p.m., at which time the left third of the sun will be obscured. After this moment the moon will gradually pass out from in front of the sun, however, the sun will set at 6:15 p.m., before the eclipse is completely over.

Those interested in watching this fascinating natural phenomenon should either obtain a very dark photographic negative or smoke a piece of glass over a match or candle through which to observe the sun," Dr. Duke says. "This is necessary because of the overwhelming brightness of our daytime star which makes it impossible to look directly at it without some method of reduc-

Chest Drive To End; Gifts Total $2,387

With the annual Campus Chest drive due to wind up today, Treasurer Charlie Fox announced last night that a total of $2,387 had so far been contributed by some 1,342 students.

This accounts for an average of approximately $1.77 per student. No faculty donations have yet been totaled.

The present total is not as high as that hoped for by Chest officials. However, there are still some 20 or 30 solicitors, some of them representing whole dormitories, who have yet to be heard from.

Fox asked that these workers be prompt in turning in reports to him at Chest headquarters in the Y by deadline time tonight. He said that it was extremely important that these reports be filed by tonight so that a sum total of all contributions could be computed.

The Campus Chest booth in the lobby of the Y will be open all day today to accept contributions from students who have not been contacted by solicitors. Students wishing to give to the Chest may also mail donations in care of box 1058, Chapel Hill.

Last year the campaign netted upwards of $4,300. All of the money taken in the drive goes into a central fund to be distributed among six different causes.

Playmakers' Show To Open Thursday

"Lo, the Angel," an original three-act drama by Nancy Wallace Henderson, will have its premier at the Playmakers Theatre Thursday and Friday nights at 7:30.

It is a student production, under the direction of Tom Patterson, who joined the Playmaker staff last fall, and there will be no admission charge.

The play is a study of a Southern Negro family, and the problem of an aged grandmother's fanatic religious faith. Such a faith, Mrs. Henderson says, may lead to both happiness and tragedy. The play also contains a good sampling of the rich folk humor often found in backregions of the South.

The cast of 13 will be headlined by Anne Leslie of Jamaica, N. Y., as Liza Bethune, a Negro mother who must make the decision between searching for her wayward daughter or relying on the passive faith of her own aged mother.

Miss Leslie has appeared earlier this season in "The Madwoman of Chailiot" and "A Spell for Davy." Her work has professional polish acquired by engagements with the Taconic Playhouse in New York, the Martha's Vineyard Playhouse in Massachusetts and the Gallery-Goers, a company touring out of New York.

Frances Thompson of Wilmington will play the grandmother, a difficult character role. She is presently employed as a secretary in the Law Department, and has worked in the Playmaker productions of "Twelfth Night" and "Medea."

The role of Reverend Grimes will be handled by Tommy Rezuto of Asheville, a junior majoring in dramatic art. He has performed in "Of Thee I Sing" and "First String Concerto" thus far this season.

Renaissance Music In Hill Tomorrow

An informal concert of Renaissance music will be presented in the Choral Room of Hill Hall tomorrow night at 8:30.

Richard Cox will sing a group of English Lute songs and James Haar will perform selections from the English Virginal school on the harpsichord. Two vocal groups will present one act of a madrigal-comedy, "The Old Man," by Banchieri, a motet by Dufay and some sacred music of the English school.

U. S. Artillery Routs Ko-Reds In Stronghold

French Elements Aid In Breaking Communist Line

Compiled from Daily Tar Heel Wires
TOKYO, Tuesday, March 6—Screaming artillery supported U. S. infantry today in the rout of an estimated 6,000 North Koreans from a mountain stronghold in central Korea.

The U. S. 7th Division and the U. S. 2nd Division combined with French elements to hit Communist strongholds from three sides. Under the pressure of the combined attack the Reds were forced to flee to a hastily built new line of resistance to the north.

"I'm going to destroy those damn Reds if they don't check out farther over those hills," Col. William "Buffalo Bill" Quinn, commander of the attack forces said.

In an attempt to establish an effective counter-assault, the Reds fought sharply from well dug-in positions for a short time before the Allies broke their lines.

The Reds were remnants of the North Korean 3rd Corps. Quinn, who only two days ago led an attack which was believed to have put the North Korean 15th Division out of action, said:

"We've got the 15th, and now the First is No. 1 on our hit parade."

AF Selectors To Visit Here

The Air Force Selection Team will visit the campus from 9 to 5 o'clock on March 12 to interview applicants for the aviation cadet training program.

Students may apply for pilot and navigator training and if accepted will be completely processed here. The team will be in the Y.

All college students may apply if they have not already received notice of induction to the armed forces.

The selection team is composed of a group of experienced pilots headed by Major Leslie McLaurin.

Gaiety And Good Cheer

'Bastien And Bastienna' In Hill Hall March 29-30

Gaiety and good cheer are being stressed in the Music Department production of Mozart's "Bastien and Bastienna," which will be presented on a twin opera bill in Hill Hall March 29-31.

"Down in the Valley," a modern folk opera by Kurt Weill, will also be featured on the program.

"Bastien and Bastienna" was written by Mozart when he was only 12 years old. He had written two oratorical or cantata type operas before that, but this is considered his first work which displays any maturity and accomplishment of technique on the part of the artist.

The plot has to do with the traditional young lovers, Bastien and Bastienna in this case.

Bastien is sung by William Hoover and the role of Bastienna is played by Maude-Baynor Foy. Both have had considerable experience in opera productions.

The part of the village seer will be taken by John Gittings. Also featured in the production will be the performance of a seven-year-old ballerina, Cheryl Strowd. The show is being directed by Wray Thompson, who also directed "The Second Man."

Student Party Puts Off Veep 'Til Tomorrow

Party Eliminates Maynard, Allston; Hopkins Pulls Out

By Chuck Hauser

Daily Tar Heel reporter Walter Dear last night turned up as a dark horse to defeat Associate Editor Don Maynard and Assistant Sports Editor Frank Allston, Jr., for the Student Party nomination for the editorship of The Daily Tar Heel for the coming year. Dear won the nomination

Don Maynard, Associate Editor of The Daily Tar Heel, late last night declared as an independent candidate for the editorship of the campus newspaper.

He was the third person to enter the race. Reporter Walt Dear won the Student Party nomination last night, and the University Party nominated Frank Allston, Jr., some time ago.

Maynard said he was running "because the amount of interest in my candidacy leads me to believe that the Student Party made its decision for reasons of political expediency, and not on the basis of an honest appraisal of the candidates."

on a single ballot after one hour and 35 minutes of discussion of the three candidates. The vote was Dear 19, Maynard 8, Allston 5.

A fourth candidate nominated for the post at the Student Party meeting last week waited until last night to withdraw his name from consideration. Letter-to-the-editor writer Jack Hopkins withdrew in favor of Dear's candidacy.

The party will meet tomorrow night at 9 p.m. in Graham Memorial to name its candidates for vice president of the student body, Carolina Athletic Association officials, class officers and Legislature seats.

The SP took no other action during its meeting, although the agenda for the evening called for nomination for vice president.

Discussion on the candidates revealed that only Dear is assured of returning to school in the fall. Maynard, will receive a Navy commission upon graduation in June. Allston expects his draft board to allow him to return for another year of school, and in the meantime, he has applied for admission to a Naval reserve training program in Durham.

Dear, a native of Jersey City, N. J., is a sophomore. His Daily Tar Heel experience has included reporting and some work as a night editor.

Dear was given the SP editorial nomination to replace Editor Roy Parker, Jr., who was nominated for a second term but was disqualified under provisions of the new elections law.

Easter Switch

The one-day Easter vacation has been changed to a two-day holiday, Dean William S. Wells, chairman of the Schedule Committee, said yesterday.

Since Easter falls on the first weekend of the spring quarter, classes originally scheduled for Saturday, March 24, in place of Monday, March 19, will be held instead on Saturday, March 21. Wells also announced that classes will be held this Saturday in place of Monday classes and that the Saturday schedule will follow Monday's.
