Dean Of Women's Office Completes 44-State Survey

By Rolfe Neill
The Dean of Women's office has just completed a year's exhaustive survey in which it contacted 96 coed colleges and universities in 44 states to get trends in five categories.

The report is the work of Mrs. Betty Denny Jr., and Miss Marcella Harrer, personnel advisers here. They presented it this week-end at a state meeting of deans of women held at Duke University.

The results were tabulated in the categories of enrollment, housing, social regulations, student government, and administrative organization.

A great majority of men's dormitories have social rooms in which women students may visit, under chaperoned conditions. Thirty-nine of the 80 schools have housemothers in men's dormitories; 41 do not.

In 73 schools which have fraternity houses, 25 institutions have housemothers in every fraternity house, 18 in some houses, 30 schools have no fraternity housemothers.

It was shown that state institutions have the most women, up to 60 percent, whereas private schools do not go above 50 percent.

The smaller the school the higher the percentage of coed students living on campus, the survey pointed up. Forty-nine of 94 institutions answering reported sorority house accommodations on campus. With certain rigid stipulations, off-campus housing is permitted for undergraduate women on 89 campuses.

Yearly room rents in 35 state schools range from $54 to $250 with the lowest average room rent found for schools of 300 to 800 women students.

Candidates Called On False Promises

"No candidate for editor can determine the number of issues of The Daily Tar Heel to be published now or in the future. This is strictly a matter for the Publications Board to investigate and decide," Frank Allston, secretary of the Publications Board, said yesterday.

"We budgeted for six days a week in the fall and five days a week in the winter and spring in our original 1951-52 budget. When the Legislature knocked out $3,000, it made rebudgeting necessary. We shall have the paper at least five days a week," Allston continued.

SUE AMBLER, freshman from Chapel Hill, is running on the Student Party ticket for a seat in the Student Legislature from the town women's district in tomorrow's general election.

Election Will Make, Break DTH--Allston

Publications Board Secretary Frank Allston, candidate for editor of The Daily Tar Heel in tomorrow's general election, declared yesterday that the student paper "has a chance to become one of the nation's best collegiate newspapers or the worst, depending upon the outcome of this election."

"The election of an inexperienced person to the job or the election of someone who will offer no continuity of office may have disastrous effects on The Daily Tar Heel," Allston said. "I can not conceive of anyone holding this all-important position who is not thoroughly versed in newspapering and especially matters involving The Daily Tar Heel," continued the University Party nominee.

Allston is the only candidate running for editor who has served on the Publications Board. He also served on Board committees which investigated tabloid publication of The Daily Tar Heel, set new advertising rates.

Young Soprano

Masloff Concert Slated In Hill At 8:30 Tonight

Helen Masloff, young American soprano, will appear here tonight in Hill Hall at 8:30.

Miss Masloff is a native of Danville, Va. She comes of Polish and Latvian parentage and has sung since childhood. She graduated from Averett Junior College in Danville, then Mary Washington in Fredericksburg.

She taught in the public schools of Danville for two years, then went to New York to begin professional training with the distinguished coach Walter Golde, who has always demonstrated genuine interest in her ambition to be a professional singer, as well as faith in her success. Whenever possible, he appears with Miss Masloff as her accompanist.

Miss Masloff is now completing her first year as a professional singer. Each appearance has received enthusiasm from the audience, good critiques, complimentary letters from sponsors and inquiries from others who wish to engage her.

James Behind 'Family Plan' At Lenoir Hall

New Meal Method Seen As Saving As Much As 50%

A "family-style" meal plan for students eating in Lenoir Hall might cut food costs "as much as 50 percent" according to backer Ben James, independent candidate for president of the student body.

James said yesterday he had talked "at some length with several men in the Administration, and they have given me the impression that the plan can be worked if enough students back it."

He said the plan first would be experimented with on a voluntary basis in one of the side dining halls in Lenoir.

"The big advantage in this type of plan is the saving for the individual. It is believed that food costs for a student per month can be cut at least as much as 50 percent. And this is quite a saving for those men and women who are right on the financial borderline."

James listed the main disadvantage as smaller selection of foods.

Under James' plan, students would pay a set rate every month in advance. No rebates would be given for meals that are missed. However, if a student desired, he could give the plan a one-month trial with the option of continuing if he so desired.

"The big disadvantage of course is the lack of selection of food," James continued. "But under the family-style plan, food can usually be prepared better and much more economically. Then, too, there can be as much as 20 or more extra dollars per month in a student's pocket while using this plan."

The presidential aspirant said he believed "we definitely have need again for the cheaper family-style meal, especially in view of the high prices of meats and other foods these days."

Legalized Prostitution To Be Di Topic Tonight

The Dialectic Senate will debate tonight on whether prostitution should be legalized in North Carolina.

The public has been invited to the discussion, to begin at 8 o'clock in the Di Hall, third floor New West Building.

The bill reads, in full: "Whereas, prostitution always has and, in all probability, always will be a factor in our society, and

"Whereas, by ignoring or by outlawing the profession society is contributing to the spread of disease, the decadence in morals and the existence of crime among its members, and

"Whereas, the standards set by our society demand abstinence while the nature of man is not abstemious, and

"Whereas, most men have not mastered and have little desire to master the ability to sublimate,

"Therefore be resolved by the Senate of the Dialectic Literary Society of the University of North Carolina:

"Section I. That prostitution be legalized in North Carolina.

"Section II. That strict health inspection accompany the legalization of prostitution."

Bill Friday To Get New Post

Dean To Work In Special Job With President

New Assignment Made At Meeting Of 3 Chancellors

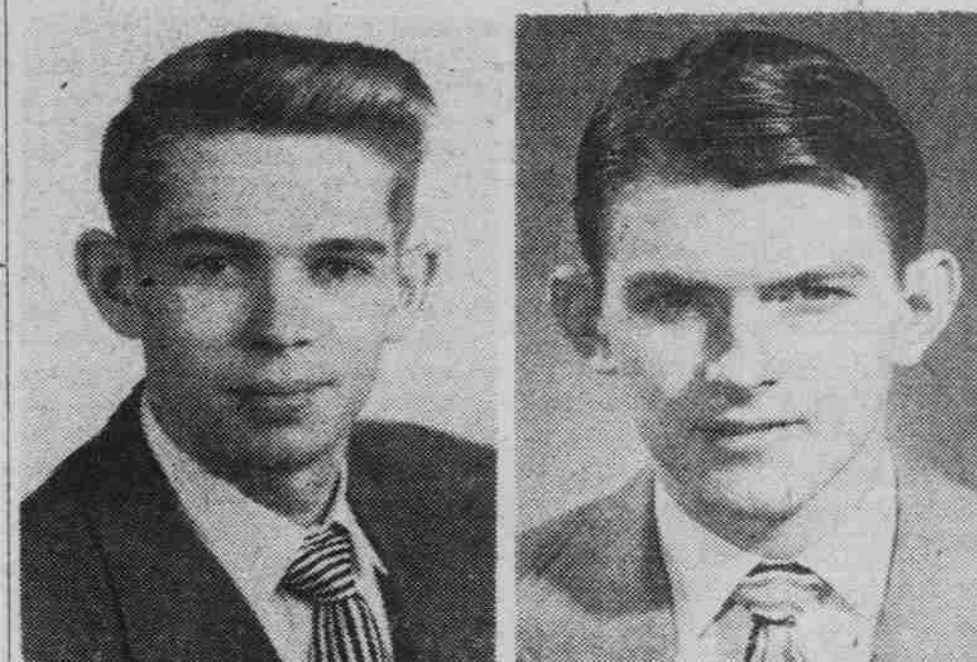

Special to The Daily Tar Heel RALEIGH, April 9 — William C. Friday, assistant Dean of Students at the University at Chapel Hill for the past three years, today was named special assistant on alumni affairs to Consolidated University President Gordon Gray.

The announcement was made by Gray following a meeting of the three chancellors here this afternoon.

In the new job which he will take over next Monday, Friday (See FRIDAY, page 3)

KEN PENEGAR, running on the Student Party slate for the at-large seat on the Publications Board in tomorrow's election. He is associate editor of the 1951 Yackety Yack, associate editor of The Carolina Quarterly, and a Tarnation staff member.

BRUCE MELTON AND FRANK ALLSTON (left and right) are two of the five candidates running in tomorrow's general election for editor of The Daily Tar Heel. Allston, present associate sports editor, is running on the University Party slate, while Melton is an independent. Melton issued a brief statement yesterday on the campaign: "I aim to give all my energy and ability possible to the editorship of The Daily Tar Heel if I am elected. It is up to the students to decide the editor of The Daily Tar Heel, and I will appreciate consideration on behalf of the student body tomorrow."

Parker Supporting Maynard As Editor

Daily Tar Heel Editor Roy Parker, Jr., yesterday endorsed independent candidate and present Associate Editor Don Maynard for the editorship of the campus daily.

At the same time, Maynard submitted to The Daily Tar Heel a petition bearing close to 300 signatures nominating him as an independent candidate. He had earlier in the campaign turned in a smaller petition with the required 25 nominating signatures to the Elections Board.

In his statement supporting Maynard for the editor's post, Parker stated:

"Don Maynard's three year's experience in every phase of The Daily Tar Heel and his valuable work as my assistant in the capacity of associate editor this year have proved his capabilities to myself and the staff.

"His consistent work as make-up man for the editorial page and his familiarity with handling editorial material give him far more qualification for the editorship than any of the other candidates.

"I heartily endorse Maynard for editor of The Daily Tar Heel."

Other staff members who joined in the endorsement were Managing Editor Chuck Hauser and Executive News Editor Rolfe Neill. The usual spring election staff nomination was not held this year.

Maynard has been a staff member of The Daily Tar Heel for three years, serving as columnist, reporter, feature editor and is presently associate editor of the newspaper. In addition to his present job, Maynard has been reporting the activities in President Gordon Gray's South Building office. He is author of the column, "Rolling Stones."

Issue Is Set By Penegar In Statement

Dick Penegar, University Party candidate for president of the student body, last night called representation "the most important issue in this campaign."

In a statement released to The Daily Tar Heel about 7 p.m., Penegar said benefits for the student body were not campaign issues, since "both parties propose essentially the same benefits." The candidate also said the "matter of continued policy" was not an issue, "for a political party has no policy aside from that of its members. As the membership changes, so changes the policy."

The University Party, Penegar said, "has a consistently representative group of students who directly represent a larger portion of the student body."

The statement continued: "There can be little discussion on the basic political philosophy

UP Schedules Parade Today Through Town

Pre-Voting Rally To Start At 7:15 At 'A' Dormitory

An election-eve parade, beginning at 7:15 tonight, "will climax University Party publicity efforts to turn out a large vote in tomorrow's campus elections," Chairman Dick Jenrette said yesterday.

Plans for the parade were announced by Jenrette and Publicity Chairman Frank Daniels and H. V. Murray. They urged all interested parties to "come down and join the parade." All participants will assemble in front of A Dormitory at 7:15.

According to Daniels, a motorcade of about 25 cars will follow the parade. Included will be convertibles loaded with "the best looking girls on campus." Other features will be torch-bearing marchers and a band to liven up the affair.

The UP's major candidates—Dick Penegar for student body president, Frank Allston for Daily Tar Heel editor, and Allen Tate for secretary-treasurer—will be present, Daniels said.

G. A. Harden Wants 6-Day Tabloid DTH

Glenn Harden, independent candidate for editor of The Daily Tar Heel, yesterday advanced the idea of a tabloid six-day-a-week paper and an Associated Press radio wire to save the students money.

She said the tabloid could be published with an enrollment as low as 3,000.

"A tabloid would bring about the timely coverage of news which is impossible under the present curtailed publication schedule and in addition, the lowered cost would permit the return of syndicated columns and comic strips to the pages of The Daily Tar Heel," the Greensboro journalism senior said.

She said $600 could be saved by substituting the Associated Press radio wire for the AP news wire.

Yesterday she reiterated a four-point program for the paper:

"1. Students have a right to expect an honest paper open to everyone, an editorial policy that is responsible and responsive to the student body . . . and an adequate and accurate coverage of all phases of student life.

"2. A Daily Tar Heel, if necessary at the expense of such luxuries as wire services or page size.

"3. Systemized circulation procedures.

"4. An intelligent program of acquiring new staff members and training personnel."

Glenn was elected queen of Manley Dormitory at a meeting last week and will preside at the dorm's party to be held this Friday.

Expense Accounts

Elections Board Chairman Julian Mason said yesterday that all campaign expense accounts must be made by all candidates, even those who incur no expenses during the campaign. For example, a doubly-endorsed candidate with no opposition would have to report to the Board that he had no campaign expenditures in order to be elected to office.

Men should turn in their statements to Mason at 306 Aycock, and women may turn theirs in at the student government office.

House Lists Two Plans If In Office

Al House, independent candidate for vice-president of the Senior Class and Bi-Partisan Board nominee for the Men's Honor Council, yesterday released a campaign platform based on service to the student body.

His platform includes: (1) revitalization of the office of class vice-president in an effort to secure for the class of '52 more social functions and a better class unity and recognition.

2. Conscientious devotion to the duties of the Honor Council and the tempering of justice with reason and.

3. Continued work on the Inter-Dormitory Council Maintenance Committee which has been instrumental in getting additional telephones, fire extinguishers, and improved maintenance service for the dorms.

House entered in the fall of 1948. He served as president of Alexander Dormitory his freshman year, and president of Manley Dormitory in 1950. He is a member of the Philanthropic Assembly, and has held the office of clerk for three quarters and Critic one quarter. He has served for three years on the IDC. His sophomore year he was an officer of Phi Eta Sigma. He is a member of the Student Legislature, but will not seek re-election in order that he may run for the Men's Council.

His work as adviser for Lewis Dormitory has resulted in the opening of a social room and the publication of a dormitory newspaper. His supporters term him "a sincere, conscientious, and hard worker whose only motive is to serve his fellow students."

Ready For School

NORFOLK, Va., April 9—At least one student at the University of North Carolina plans to be ready for any eventuality.

That's the opinion of Hipage Company, custom house brokers here.

The brokers yesterday were clearing the trunk of an unidentified Belgian student for Chapel Hill. The manifest—in French—had been translated to English "as nearly as possible."

It contained the usual items of wearing apparel, books and paper. But it also listed this item:

"... Dices for playing in little box . . ."
