Cage Coaches Decry 'Fix'

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF Basketball Coaches has officially mounted its high horse and is currently decrying the "laxity on the part of college administrations" to actively uphold the standards which discourage gambling in collegiate basketball. John Bunn of Springfield College, chairman of the association's special committee on gambling, recently released a committee report loaded with whereas and resolves. The report, distributed to athletic directors, coaches, and college presidents, actually did little more than reaffirm, in a few hundred words, the Basketball Coaches' Creed which calls for emphasis on playing the game rather than winning it. Despite all that, however, the report does show that the men who make the game what it is—or at least what it is supposed to be—are sincerely interested in ridding the sport of the ugly mark left by the recent gambling expose.

Madison Square Garden, long the gambling rival of the Riviera, might be to blame for the thriving betting business, but the coaches seem to think otherwise. They also brush away the easy alibi that the whole stinking mess stems from the fact that every boy wearing a basketball uniform is an apprentice crook. "The fault lies not in our stars but in ourselves," they contend.

"We recognize that as coaches we must more aggressively espouse high ethical standards with our players," the report declares, adding the self-condemning note that "We have focused by vicious and often illegal recruiting practices an over-emphasis on winning teams and the income therefrom."

Eight Easy Doses

THE REMEDY PRESCRIBED BY the coaches association is just enough to replace Hadaool for one week in the cage fan's diet—if he takes two doses on Saturday night. The committee's eight resolutions call for 1) reaffirmation of the Coaches Creed, 2) a pledge to follow the standards of the various conferences, 3) the confining of interest in recruiting practices to the respective campuses, trusting the integrity of other institutions to do the same, 4) a recommendation to college administrators to exercise a closer and more active supervision of all phases of athletics, 5) a recommendation to state legislatures and to Congress that legislation be enacted to provide "severe penalties" for anyone who accepts a bribe for the purpose of altering the outcome of an athletic contest, 6) a recommendation that conferences and institutions review their regulations concerning participation on teams outside the school, 7) a recommendation that coaches recognize the need for more careful selection and guidance of players who make up their squad, and 8) a recommendation that conferences and institutions review their statement of principles and policies for the control of athletics toward the goal of standardizing these principles and policies.

Simple, huh? The whole thing sounds like another United Nations plan. And that doesn't seem to be working too well at present except for those who are going to violate the code of civilization anyway. It seems and more active supervision of all phases of athletics, 5) a recommendation—in one ear and out the other with only the thought of talking advantage of those who do abide by the principles. At least that will probably be the idea of certain victory-conscious institutions which no longer play for fun. Athletic directors like our own Coach Bob Fetzer who believe that competition and sportsmanship are the true essence of the game are, unfortunately, few and far between. The committee's recommendations are generally good but—if you'll pardon the expression—it's a good bet that violations won't be cut down too much until the coaches themselves really bend down on point No. 7 and make careful selections before handing out fancy scholarships to athletes with the "gimmies." At least the coaches have made a start in the right direction.

Chal Port Expected To Start Today Against Demon Deacs At Wake Forest

Strong-armed Chal Port, who has won two important games for the Tar Heels in the past week, will get the important assignment of keeping Carolina's baseball team atop the Big Four race when the Tar Heels meet Wake Forest at Baptist Hollow at 3:30 p.m. today.

Port, Carolina's top pitcher with a 6-2 record, will probably be opposed by one of the Deacons' left-handers, Max Eller or Rip Coleman.

Carolina has had little trouble with Wake Forest, whipping the Demon Deacons, 9-0, and 6-3 in the two games they have played.

Wake Forest is currently tied with N. C. State for last place in the Big Four with a 3-4 record.

Max Eller got rough treatment from Carolina in his only start against the Tar Heels. He allowed six hits in three innings, including a double by pitcher Bill McGinn and a triple by Catcher Dick Weiss.

Port racked up his fifth win of the year at the expense of the Deacons last Wednesday. He was never in serious trouble, but gave up a 360-foot home run to Junior Floyd. The right-handed fireballer got his sixth win of the year Monday in a relief job

Williams Netters Swamp Tar Heels By 7 To 2

Carolina Drops Second Match Of Yankee Tour

Special to The Daily Tar Heel

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., May 1—Williams College pulled one of the major upsets of the season today when its tennis team trounced Carolina by a 7-2 score. A small crowd of some 100 fans sat in perfect weather to watch Carolina suffer its second defeat of the current road trip.

Dick Squires, Williams' number one man, started things off by coming from behind to beat Del Sylvia, Tar Heel ace. Squires lost the first set to Sylvia, 3-5, but beat the tired Carolinian, 6-3, 6-4, in the last two sets to take his match.

Squires' win seemed to set the pace for his mates. Bob Luxenberg won the second match, 6-3, 6-0, for Carolina, but the last four Williams men won their matches in straight sets. Izlar, Booker, Duval and Alexander fell to the inspired Williams team.

Carolina got its only other point in the third doubles match where Buchanan and Booker fought hard to win, 9-7, 6-1.

The Williams win was the first over Carolina since the series began in 1933. Carolina's players appeared tired from their trip which has carried them from Chapel Hill to New England states. The Tar Heels were at the year's lowest ebb in today's match.

The loss gives Carolina a 17-4 record for the year. The Tar Heels have previously lost to Virginia, Harvard, and Michigan State. Carolina defeated the Williams outfit, 8-5, in an early-season match at Chapel Hill. They had the services of Bud Ager and Charlie Lambeth at that time, however.

The summary:

Singles: Squires (W) defeated Sylvia, 3-5, 6-3, 6-4; Luxenberg (UNC) defeated Treman, 6-3, 6-0; Norton (W) defeated Alexander, 6-0, 6-2; Kent (W) defeated Izlar, 6-3, 6-2; Symington (W) defeated Booker, 6-1, 6-3; Dickinson (W) defeated Duval, 6-1, 6-0.

Doubles: Squires and Kent (W) defeated Alexander and Sylvia, 6-4, 6-2; Norton and Treman (W) defeated Luxenberg and Izlar, 6-1, 7-5; Buchanan and Booker (UNC) defeated Symington and Muller, 9-7, 6-1.

Tar Babies Top Reynolds Netters, 9-0

Freshman tennis Coach Clark Taylor's young netters coasted to a 9-0 decision over R. J. Reynolds High School of Winston-Salem yesterday on the local courts.

Holding the local tennis spotlight while their varsity mates were seeing action on the Northern front, the frosh swept to straight-set victories in five of the six singles matches.

Only in the number one singles match did the Tar Babies drop a set in singles competition. Richard Sapp was forced to overcome a 4-6 deficit in order to defeat Tom Lamb, the number one Reynolds netter, 4-6, 6-0, 6-3.

Tar Baby Bitsy Seabrook followed by stopping Bobby West, 6-4, 6-2, and Julius Green, playing in the number three spot for Carolina, polished off Stebbins Ingram, 6-1, 6-4.

Jim Kelly outlasted Will Allred, 6-4, 9-7, Peter Chase defeated Jim Crews, and Bob Balkin blanked Robin Mickle, 6-0, 6-0, to give the locals a 6-0 lead.

John Moore and Bob Wright rounded out the Tar Baby victory by topping Crews and Mickle, 11-9, 6-3, in a hard-fought doubles match.

The summary:

Singles: Richard Sapp (UNC) defeated Tom Lamb, 4-6, 6-0, 6-3; Bitsy Seabrook (UNC) defeated Bobby West, 6-4, 6-2; Julius Green (UNC) defeated Stebbins Ingram, 6-1, 6-4; Jim Kelly (UNC) defeated Will Allred, 6-4, 9-7; Peter Chase (UNC) defeated Jim Crews, 6-4, 9-7; Bob Balkin (UNC) defeated Robin Mickle, 6-0, 6-0.

Doubles: Sapp-Seabrook defeated Lamb-Ingram, 6-1, 6-2; Kelly-Green defeated West-Allred, 4-6, 6-6, 6-1; John Moore-Bob Wright defeated Crews-Mickle, 11-9, 6-3.

Clark Taylor, captain of last season's Carolina tennis team, is tutoring the freshman net team this season.

must win at least three to be assured of the loop crown and a spot in the NCAA playoffs.

UNC Golfers Meet Strong Duke Outfit

Carolina's undefeated golfers will be out to break a long-standstill by shutting out Duke's undefeated divot-diggers on the Hope Valley Course.

Since 1937, when Carolina won the only meet of the season between the two links outfits by a close, 10-8 count, Duke has been undefeated in dual matches with the Tar Heel golf outfits. And in the annual Southern Conference meets, Duke has won 12 of the 15 tournaments held.

Duke is undefeated in 13 matches this year, while Carolina will be going after its 13th in the battle with the Blue Devils.

The Carolina team, one of the best Tar Heel teams in years, has rolled to wins over Davidson, East Carolina, Ohio University, Cornell, Holy Cross, Amherst, Williams, Virginia, Michigan, Georgetown, N. C. State and Wake Forest. The Tar Heels are led by such stars as Rodney McKnight, Bob Black, Captain Frank Brooks, Frank Eckert, Lew Brown and Jim Feree, all outstanding strokers.

The Duke team, in rolling to wins over Georgia Tech, Georgia, Clemson, Williams, N. C. State, Michigan, William and Mary, Richmond, Maryland, George Washington, Wake Forest and Davidson (twice), has not been held to less than a seven-point winning margin. That came in downing Georgia, 17-10.

The Duke team is led by co-captains Mike Souchak and Lou McLennan. Other members of the team are Jim Pollock, George Toms, Dick Foster, Henry Clark and Paul Hardin.

Other top performances include a 21 flat 220 and 23.5 in the 220-yard low hurdles.

Another record-breaking engineer is Jim Shivers who, when last seen by local fans, was taking two firsts in the Indoor Games, including setting a new mark in the low hurdles. The old record, incidentally, was held by teammate Fowlkes. Shivers is a fine sprinter also, and will double in the 100.

Bob Knox of Georgia Tech was overshadowed in the shot put by Navy's Bob Cameron who set a record in that event in the In-

Lore Wins 11th DTH Athlete Of Week Award For Shutout Victory Over Duke

By Bill Peacock

Bill Lore, a sophomore knuckleballer, pitched his way to the 11th Daily Tar Heel Athlete of the Week title by shutting out Duke with a breezy four hitter.

The tall right-hander from Smithfield turned in his best game of the season, stopping the hard-hitting Blue Devils, 14-0, and striking out eight and walking only three along the way.

Second place in the sports department voting went to golfer Rod McKnight, and third spot to trackman Billy Joyner. Honorable mention to Tennis Players Buddy Ager, and Del Sylvia, Trackman Dave Willis, and Baseballers Sleepy Senter and Chal Port.

Lore joined the hit parade against Blue Devil pitcher George Carver and hit a triple, driving in one run. But he was tougher on the mound, and was in trouble only once.

With one out in the seventh and men on first and third, Lore forced Pinchhitter Bob Bensinger to hit into a double play to preserve his shutout.

Number one man Rodney McKnight lead the Carolina golfers last week in their victories over Wake Forest and State, both times with sub-par scores. Against Wake Forest in their 18^{3/4}-8^{1/4} victory, McKnight shot a three under par 69 to tie for low score with Carolina's Bob Black and the Deacons' Dick Tiddy.

The undefeated linksmen, led by McKnight's 71 whipped State, 21-6 without any trouble. McKnight was again three under par until the 16th hole which he bogied. He still had enough to beat Bill King, 3-0.

Billy Joyner came within one-quarter inch of the University outdoor high jump record by leaping 6 feet, 4 5-8 inches against State last week. His performance was the top one as the Tar Heels swamped the Wolfpack, 112-12.

Webster Wrests Bat Lead From Gibbons In Big Four

Special to The Daily Tar Heel

DURHAM, May 1—Duke University's Bill Werber, tied with teammate John Gibbons for the Big Four batting leadership last week, has taken over the lead by himself this week, averages released today show.

Werber, southpaw first sacker for the Blue Devils, is hitting a hefty .474 after five league games. He has collected nine hits in 19 trips to the plate.

Runner-up in the bat parade is Tow Powers of Duke, with a .429 average, while N. C. State's Joe Fuscoe is third with a .423 mark.

Carolina's third baseman, John Senter of Raleigh, is tops in the hits department, with 12, while Tar Heel Shortstop Joe Brookshire is ahead in runs scored, with nine. Besides leading in hits, Senter is tops in runs-batted-in with nine, and is tied with State's Dick McGillis for the home run crown, with two.

Wake Forest's Doc Murphey and Duke's John Gibbons are tied for lead in the doubles department, with three each, while Carolina's Dick Weiss and State's McGillis and Don Cheek are in a three-way tie for the triples lead, with two each. Duke's Bill Bergeron and Wake's Joe Coloni are ahead in stolen bases, with three each.
