Dog Tradition At Carolina Again Coming Into Its Own

By Andy Taylor

A Carolina tradition almost as old as South Building or the Davie Poplar itself is coming back into its own on campus. The Carolina male population may be on the decline due to the draft, but the Army's K-9 Corps hasn't done a thing to effect the local dog colony. Chapel Hill's dogs are a legend throughout the state, and for the first time since the days of Dan The Dog things are beginning to look up from the local canine point of view.

It used to be that dogs were as much a part of the Y Court as the coffee and South Building steps. And nearly as many pups as people gathered there to socialize.

Dan, of course, is the embodiment of Carolina dog tradition. His official title was Bowler Boy's Danny, but folks everywhere knew him as just Dan The Dog.

When the venerable Dan was king, he held the undisputed right to attend any and all University classes and sporting events. He even made football trips with Tar Heel fans, and once got left behind.

In those days dogs rated just as much attention as professors and football players. It wasn't a football game unless play was halted at least once to run a stray dog from the field. And it was rumored that the dogs were trained to interrupt just when Carolina most needed the rest.

Dan died in the summer of 1948 and students and alumni across the state mourned his passing. Just after that the administration put a ban on Chapel Hill dogs, indignant students paraded through town in protest and the officials finally compromised with the dog-lovers.

But local canines seemed to lose heart with the loss of Dan and for the better part of two years Chapel Hill's dog family wasn't too much in evidence.

Dan's successors weren't long in taking up the cry to regain their lost dignity, however. Two years ago there was Cap, a thoroughbred, muscle-bound Boxer who hated coeds almost as much as he did cats.

Brownie was another favorite. She was strictly a Monogram sweater girl and went for the football players, especially All-American End Art Weiner.

Then there was Radar, who many claim was the only dog in Carolina history able to catch a squirrel. His counter can be presently found in the lumbering Irish Setter who spends half his time wasting his lungs on tree-bound squirrels and the other half begging doughnuts from his friends in the Y.

Pete is the current favorite in fraternity circles. He's a full-blooded Dalmatian and the youngest, and only four-legged, pledge of the Phi Gamma fraternity.

There are dozens of other dogs now roaming the campus. They all have their favorites among the students and it's getting to be so that a freshman doesn't become a part of campus life until he's been chosen as a friend by one of the canine populace.

Botto Re-Elected Council Chairman

Larry Botto, junior from Bradenton, Fla., was re-elected chairman of the Student Council at a meeting Thursday night, the student government office said yesterday.

Botto became the first Council chairman ever to be named to the post for two terms.

Elected to the Clerk job was Joan Charles, junior from Sea Girt, N. J.

The new chairman has recently been swamped under with campus honoraries. Monday night he was tapped into the Golden Fleece. Last week he became a member of the Order of the Old Well.

Botto has been active in campus government since coming to the University in 1948. He served as acting president of the student body during the 1949 summer term. He also served as head of the Traffic and Safety Committee and as a member of the Student Welfare Board. During his service as Student Council chairman last year, the group heard eight appeals.

Yesterday Botto praised the work of last year's Council, calling it the "hardest working" group in several years.

The new Clerk has been active in Glee Club and YWCA work and is serving her first term on the Council.

'SAE' Intruder Is Fined For Concealing Weapon

A mild-mannered California youth, who masqueraded as an out-of-state fraternity brother on the University campus, was fined $25 and costs in Recorder's Court yesterday on charges of carrying a concealed weapon.

Companion charges of vagrancy were not pressed against William Orlando Randall Jr., 29, of Beverly Hills, California. The college-looking bespectacled man was jailed Saturday night on request of members of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, who

Theatre Francais Presents Quack, Hilarious Comedy

The hilarious comedy of a quack French doctor, "Dr. Knock," will be presented by the University Theatre Francais, under the direction of Prof. Walter Creech, in the Playmakers Theatre here tonight and tomorrow night at 8:30.

One unusual feature of the play, which is being sponsored by the French Club, is the appearance of an old French automobile, executed out of odds and ends by Creech and his helpers. Part of it is an old iron bed, and the hood and horn are from Chapel Hill's first fire truck, 1916 model.

The role of the charlatan, Dr. Parpalaid, is being played by Dr. Urban T. Holmes, Kenan professor in the Department of Romance Languages, who was awarded the Legion of Honor by the French government last January.

Dr. Holmes is well known to Chapel Hill audiences for he has played a number of roles in Carolina Playmaker productions as well as in the annual productions by the French Club. One of his best known roles was the Lion in Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion."

Another talented Chapel Hill dramatist, Miss Josephine Sharky, will take the role of a miserly peasant woman frightened into taking expensive medical treatment from the quack doctor.

Other members of the cast, all speaking French, include Marion Walter, who takes the role of Dr. Parpalaid's wife; Director Creech, who portrays Dr. Knock; Glenn Martin, Ed Grady, Carolyn Payne, Mary Spainhour, John Ingle, Claude Rayborn, Richard Lewis, Ted Creech, Kenneth Stuckey, and Yette Rhyne.

There will be no admission charge for the play, sponsored by the French Club for the benefit of American Aid to France.

Di Kills Bill To Restrict DTH Policy

Di Senate officials announced yesterday that a bill to restrict the editorial policy of The Daily Tar Heel was defeated by the Di at its weekly meeting.

The bill, which provided for the recall of an editor who took a stand editorially on campus politics, was voted down on the general principle that such a measure would restrict the paper far beyond the limits usually recognized under the freedom of the press.

Di members decided that under this rule the editor would be hamstrung as to be unable to take any definite stands.

An earlier bill, opposing the admission of Spain to the Atlantic Pact, was adopted by a voice vote.

YMCA Delegation To Visit In Three Cities

Delegations of students and administrators from the University Young Men's Christian Association will meet with University and YMCA alumni in Greensboro, Winston-Salem, and Raleigh today, tomorrow and Saturday in a program designed to orient new YMCA cabinet members and give them a chance to talk with former members and view YMCA programs in the three cities.

The group will visit Winston-Salem today and will lead a chapel service and take part in a student forum at Salem College. They will have supper at the YMCA there, with North Carolina alumni who were active in YMCA work in Chapel Hill. Claude Shotts, general secretary of the University YMCA, and Donald Hayman, secretary of the YMCA Advisory Board, will lead the group.

Local arranging committee in Winston-Salem is headed by Judge H. Gardner Hudson. Other members of the committee are Rev. Douglas Rights, pastor of the Trinity Moravian Church, and Chris Blackwell.

Few Entrants For Debates

Very few teams have been entered for the intramural debates to be held May 9-10. The closing entry date is Saturday.

All interested organizations should contact by telephone Dick Jaffe at 5241, Fred Scher at 9011, or Lacy Thornberg at F-3021.

Keys will be awarded to all those entering, and a trophy will be presented to the winning organization.

The topic to be debated is "Resolved: that the non-communist nations should wage a preventive war against Russia and her satellites."

May Day Planned Saturday

Burial Service For Randolph Will Be Today

PHILIP RANDOLPH

Funeral for Philip S. Randolph, Sr., 55, executive director of the North Carolina League for Crippled Children, who died in Veterans Hospital in Fayetteville Monday night, will be held here today at the Episcopal Church. Burial will be in Chapel Hill.

The Rev. David Yates will officiate. The time for the funeral has not been set pending the arrival of Philip Randolph, Jr., a Navy pilot.

Formerly Eastern Area Representative of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis in the state, Mr. Randolph was appointed to head the North Carolina League for Crippled Children in 1949.

An alumnus of the University and fullback on the Carolina football team in 1922-23, he was formerly finance director of the National Youth Administration for this state for a number of years. He was a native of Asheville.

Surviving are his wife, the former Alma Wadley of Mississippi, and two sons, Philip, Jr., and Reynolds, a student at UNC.

Solons To Elect Officers Tonight

The University Party, traditionally in the majority in the Student Legislature, will have its hottest fight in years tonight when the solons meet in the first session of the 11th Assembly to elect officers and committee chairmen.

Parents Day Will Feature Gray Speech

Gordon Gray will address University students and their parents Sunday afternoon as the highlight of the first Parents Day at the University.

He will speak at 2 o'clock in Memorial Hall.

Parents Day, to which parents of all University students are invited, is being sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity. Purpose of the day is to give parents of students an opportunity to visit the campus and meet the faculty and administration.

The program of events will begin with a luncheon at Lenoir Hall at noon for which reservations must be made. President Gray's address will follow at 2 o'clock. He will be presented by Chancellor R. B. House.

Tickets for the luncheon will go on sale in the Y today between 9 a.m. and 2 o'clock this afternoon and tomorrow from 9 until 12 o'clock noon. The price of admission is $1 and all students planning to attend the luncheon must purchase tickets.

Other features of the program will be guided tours of the campus at 3 o'clock. A lawn concert by the University Band under the direction of Prof. Earl Slocum at Davie Poplar at 4 o'clock, and a faculty-student reception in Graham Memorial at 5 o'clock.

APO Selects New Officers

Jerry Shuping, law student from Asheboro, was recently elected president of Rho chapter of Alpha Phi Omega national service fraternity. Jerry served as chairman of the Campus Projects Committee for the past year.

Other officers selected for the coming year were First Vice-President Joe Arnold, Atlanta; Second Vice-President Thornton M. Long, Winston-Salem; Recording Secretary Al Rumbough, Mars Hill; Corresponding Secretary Jim Alexander, Greensboro; Treasurer George Rodgers, Charlotte; Alumni Secretary Bob Farmer, West End; and Historian Myron Banks, Raleigh.

New Sociology Prof Boasts Much First-Hand Knowledge

University students enrolled in the graduate sociology course, "Peoples of the Pacific," have a professor whose knowledge of the people and culture of the area was gained through first-hand experience.

Dr. Frank M. LeBar, newly appointed faculty member in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology and research assistant in the Institute for Research in Social Science, did his field work on the Island of Truk in Micronesia, located in the South Pacific. In addition he gained considerable experience during World War II when he was with the Office of Strategic Services in the China-Burma-India theater.

As a member of a team of anthropologists from Yale University, where he was working for his Ph.D. degree, Dr. LeBar lived on a small island with the natives for six months.

Beauty Court Will Be Feted At Skit, Dance

The annual May Day celebration at the University will be held Saturday with the crowning of Arden Boisseau as May Queen in the Forest Theater in the afternoon, followed by a May Day Dance in Woollen Gymnasium Saturday night.

The afternoon program, which will be highlighted by the presentation of the May Court, will feature dramatizations of scenes from Louis Carroll's books Alice in Wonderland and Through the Looking Glass.

Such characters as those seen in the Mad Tea Pot—the Cheshire Cat, Humpty-Dumpty, and the Meek Turtle—will be used in the skits. Sue Mendlesohn will fill the leading role of Alice.

The dance is free, informal, and will last from 9 until 12. The Belltones will perform during intermission. Immediately following intermission a figure will be formed by the May Queen, her court, and their dates.

Arden's attendants in the court are Rosie Varn, Dodie Boyer, Nancy Norwood, Tiny Morrow, Tink Gobbel, Carol Cubine, Kash Davis, Mary Wood, Scotty Everett, and Edna Matthes.

Music for the dance will be furnished by Frank Justice and his orchestra. It will be chaperoned by President and Mrs. Gordon Gray, Chancellor and Mrs. R. B. House, William Friday, and Dean Katherine Carmichael.

The afternoon skits will be under the direction of Nancy Henderson, a graduate student in Dramatic Arts. The choreography will be directed by John and Charlotte Lehman.

Sue Mendlesohn, who stars as Alice, is a member of the Playmakers and was in the chorus production, "Of Thee I Sing" last quarter.

Other members of the cast: Adair Beasley, John Caldwell, Elaine Gibson, Nancy Green, Charles Hadley, Norman Hull-Ryde, Jane Marie, Lou Overton, Patti Pantell, Sandy Riach, John Taylor, Ellen Tredway, and Connie Tyson.

Gray To Talk At Inaugural Here Tonight

The annual Frank Porter Graham Student Government Inaugural Banquet for all students recently elected to campus offices will be held in the Green Room of Lenoir Hall at 6 o'clock tonight.

This banquet will also climax the current Coed Leadership Training Program.

The highlight will be an informal address by Consolidated University President Gordon Gray, who will be introduced by Chancellor R. B. House of the University.

Before Gray's address the new officers of the student body will be introduced. They are: Henry Bowers, president; Bunny Davis, vice president; Jim McIntyre, secretary-treasurer; and Joanne Page, speaker of the Coed Senate.

John Sanders, past president of the student body, will give the welcome to guests.

Staff Meeting

There will be a meeting of all Daily Tar Heel staff members and all students interested in working for the paper in Roland Parker Lounge 2 of Graham Memorial at 7 o'clock this afternoon.

Anyone interested in coming to work on the paper will be welcomed at the meeting.

W&M Admits First Negro To College

Special to The Daily Tar Heel
WILLIAMSBURG, May 2—The College of William and Mary has joined other Southern schools in admitting Negro students to its graduate schools, it was announced yesterday by college officials.

Hulton L. Willis, an instructor in a Norfolk public school and a 1949 graduate of Virginia State College for Negroes, is the first of his race to be accepted under a policy adopted by the William and Mary board to admit qualified Negroes for graduate work not offered at a state-supported school for Negroes.

This policy was adopted after a federal court ordered the University of Virginia to admit Negroes to its law school.

Willis, a native of Pittsburgh and a World War II veteran, will do graduate work in physical education at W & M—the nation's second oldest college.

Pay Up

All students who have not paid up their pledges to the Campus Chest must do so today. A booth will be set up in the Y Court to accept all payments.

Fifty percent of the pledges still remain to be paid and Chest Chairman Bob Payne said yesterday that students who had pledged money and not paid it were "seriously defeating the effort to get the funds tabulated and distributed to the various organizations."
