Graduation Ceremonies Set For June 4; 900 To Receive Diplomas In Kenan Rites

Over 900 Carolina seniors of the Class of 1951 are slated to receive their diplomas at graduation exercises of the 157th Commencement Program in Kenan Stadium on June 4.

The ceremonies officially begin Saturday, June 2, with the Class Day program and class reunion suppers. The Baccalaureate sermon will be delivered on Sunday, with the occasion climaxed Monday evening by the Commencement address in Kenan Stadium.

Chancellor Robert B. House will preside over the Commencement program on Monday night, and Gov. W. Kerr Scott will present the degrees. The principal speaker for the evening has not yet been announced.

The Baccalaureate Sermon at the three-day exercises will be delivered Sunday morning by the Rev. James Luther Fowle, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Dr. Fowle, a native of Washington, N. C., was educated at Davidson College, Johns Hopkins Seminary, Princeton Theological Seminary, and Westminster College. He received his LL.D. from the University of Chattanooga in 1942.

Among the many class reunions set for Saturday afternoon will be that of the Class of 1926. Roy Armstrong and Norman Cordon have been named co-chairmen of the program which is being planned for the graduates of 25 years ago.

The class roster shows 731 living members, 302 of which are graduates. Advance reservations for the banquet they plan to have Sunday, June 3, indicate an attendance of more than 250.

A reception for seniors, parents, alumni, and faculty will be held Saturday evening at 9 o'clock beside the outdoor pool.

Carolina Tops Duke, Terps With 19 Men

By Bill Peacock

Carolina's defending champion Tar Heels led the way in the qualifying heats in the Southern Conference track meet here yesterday, sending 19 men into the finals as compared to the 13 and 12 of Maryland and Duke, respectively, their chief competitors.

The finals will be held today on the Fetzer Field track, the field events beginning at 2:00 p. m. and the track events at 2:30 p. m.

The trials held yesterday took the top six men from each event for the finals today. Trials were held in all events but the pole vault, high jump, mile run, two mile run and the mile relay.

The Carolina showing confirmed the belief that it is the team to beat in the meet, but the best news to Carolina was the withdrawal of Duke's Henry Poss from all events. Poss, one of the nation's best sprinters, was being heavily counted on for firsts in the 100 and 220-yard dashes and a good showing in the broad jump.

Poss pulled a muscle while broad jumping two weeks ago and has not been able to compete since. His loss practically eliminates the Blue Devils from the team race.

The race now lies chiefly between Carolina and Maryland and both teams had men who turned in performances in the field events which will probably stand up tomorrow. Turk Ogden of Carolina showed the form he had two weeks ago against Maryland to make the best throw in the discus trials, tossing 140 feet, 3 inches, almost seven feet better than the next best effort.

Jack Unterkofler of Maryland tossed the shot 47 feet, 5 3/8 inches or 15 inches better than Lawrence Hunt of West Virginia and Terp Pete Augsburg, the closest competitors, and that mark is also expected to stand.

A great race is in the making in the 100-yard dash where all three heats were won in nearly the same time. Bob Hudson, of Clemson who qualified in four different events, whipped Dave Willis of Carolina in his heat, winning in 10 flat. Blue Devil Bill Sykes and Carolina's Bill Crimmins qualified from the second heat, Sykes winning in 10 flat.

Duke's Piney Fields was the only man to break 10 seconds, winning his heat in 9.9 with Tar Heel Frank Scott the other man to qualify from the heat.

Stu Johnson of VPI turned in the best time in the 440, winning easily in 49.3. John Tate of Duke and Jim Hamrick of Carolina also qualified from that heat. Gene Brigham of Carolina won the second heat in 49.7, taking Jim Johnson of Maryland and Henry Shores of West Virginia by a

Ken Penegar Is New Head Of GM Board

Ken Penegar, a rising sophomore from Gastonia, was elected chairman of the Graham Memorial Board of Directors for the coming year at the first meeting of the new Board held recently.

Penegar, representative from the Publications Board, is one of eleven newly appointed members of the board representing campus organizations, alumni, the administration, and the faculty.

The new Board issued a request for applications for the position of Director of Graham Memorial to succeed Jim Rathburn, who will be leaving in September.

The Board stressed the fact that it is interested in obtaining a full-time permanent director instead of the previous two-year arrangements. Interested persons must see Rathburn at Graham Memorial before noon Wednesday.

Office space of Tarnation, which will cease publication after this spring, has been declared available at the end of this quarter for use by other campus organizations. Organizations that have a need for office space should turn in an application to Rathburn before noon Wednesday.

Band Concert Here Sunday

The Chapel Hill High School Band, directed by Hubert Henderson, and the University Band, directed by Earl Slocum, will combine forces for an out-door lawn concert to be held on campus near Davie Poplar tomorrow afternoon at 4:30.

The combined bands, numbering 130 players, will present a concert of light music and marches.

300 Freshmen

A total of 300 freshmen will enter the University for the first time this summer school, Dean of Admissions Roy Armstrong said yesterday.

The total was about half what had been anticipated. University officials had expected nearly 600 first-year students to enter because of the emergency-caused draft situation.

A full program of orientation for the new Tar Heels has been planned by the Orientation Committee, which announced its counselor list yesterday.

Service Places 300 Graduates Quarterly Is Scheduled For Issue Next Tuesday

The Carolina Quarterly will reach the newsstands next Tuesday, Editor Lyn Miller announced yesterday.

According to Associate Editor Ken Penegar, it is the best edition since the founding of the magazine in 1947.

The featured story is Donald Betts' 1951 Annual Carolina Quarterly Fiction Award short story, "Mutation." It is a study in friendship involving a child's approach to civil living, Penegar stated.

Betts is a graduate student in horticulture at N. C. State College. He is a veteran, having served in North Africa and Europe, and has done quite a bit of traveling to out-of-the-way places.

The author has a keen love of botany and horticulture, he says, and hopes in time to be able to fuse these sciences with his writing.

Also featured in the Quarterly are three articles. Robert Boies Sharpe of the English Department has written a literary criticism entitled, "For the Criticism of Modern Tragedy."

B. L. Ullman and Walter Allen, Jr., both of the Classics Department, have prepared an article on comparative literature called "A Goodly Heritage."

Penegar named as of special interest "Proust du Temps Perdu" by W. Bernard Fleischmann is a graduate student in English, Austrian born, and a graduate of St. John's College in Annapolis, Md.

Other than those mentioned there will be three short stories, three articles, and numerous poems.

Radio Meet Slated Here

North Carolina high school students will, for the first time, have a chance to study radio broadcasting at the University this summer in the first annual North Carolina High School Radio Institute.

It is jointly sponsored by the Communication Center and the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters in cooperation with the University Extension Division.

Applications are now being accepted for the two-week long institute, which will include work-

Playmakers To Hold Last Tryout

The Carolina Playmakers will hold informal tryouts for the final student production of the season at the Playmaker Theatre on Tuesday at 4 and 7:30 p. m. The production is slated for two performances on June 4th.

A total cast of 15 men and women are needed, and the auditions are open to all students, faculty and Chapel Hillians. The directors hope a large turnout will help them put the cap on a highly successful Playmaker season.

Editors Institute Meeting Here

Some 50 editors from Virginia and the Carolinas are comparing notes on their coverage of the recent Southern textile strike at the third annual Industrial Editors Institute meeting in Chapel Hill this weekend.

A panel on "The Editor and Labor Relations" will be one of the highlights of the session whose overall theme is "The Editor in Community and Labor Relations." "The Bur-Mil Review," published by Burlington Mills, Inc., for its employees and the "Fieldcrest Mill Whistle" of Fieldcrest Mills, Spray, are typical of the publications whose editors are on hand for the meeting.

The Institute is a function of the South Atlantic Council of Industrial Editors and is sponsored by the University Schools of Journalism and of Business Administration. K. F. Bevan, Jr., Vick Chemical Co., Greensboro, is chairman of this year's Institute.

A panel discussion on "The Editor and Labor Relations" include W. Otis Marlowe, Fieldcrest Mills and this year's Council president; Vernon Foster, Spartan Mills, Spartanburg, S. C., and Eugene Miller, staff writer for the Greensboro Daily News.

This panel was held yesterday afternoon at the Carolina Inn, where all Institute sessions will be held, and the panel moderator was Prof. J. L. Morrison of the School of Journalism.

Others participating in the Friday program, which was opened with a note of welcome from University Chancellor W. D. Carmichael, Jr., were J. A. Reagan, Jr., Sonoco Products Co., Hartsville, S. C. and Morris T. Hicks, General Electric Co., New York.
