

More On Blackwood

A few days ago we voiced the belief that students were endangering their health by swimming in lakes with no protections against contagious infection. Since that time, a few points about the health department and its duties have been cleared up.

Dr. O. David Garvin, District Health Officer for Orange, Chatham, Person and Lee Counties, has issued a few statements regarding his position.

"The Health Department does not have rules or regulations giving them authority to approve or disapprove places for swimming.

"The Health Department does not recommend swimming or bathing in streams or artificial lakes.

"If you swim, we do not recommend swimming where health safeguards of chlorination, filtration, and recirculation exist.

"No cases of diseases or illnesses attributable to swimming have been reported to the Health Department by the physicians of the area.

"In the event of disease or illness reported attributable to swimming, the Health Department would investigate and if health hazards were found, would require correction or elimination or closure.

"State rules and regulations relative to ponds and lakes relate to mosquito breeding and malaria control."

In the first place, we have had an authentic report of a fungus infection incurred while swimming in Blackwoods Lake. This case, unfortunately was not treated or reported in Chapel Hill.

In the second place, it has been recommended by every responsible authority that swimmers do not use fishing lakes for swimming purposes, because they are a danger to health.

In the third place, the University maintains a sanitary and beautiful fresh-water pool for the use of students, which should be taken advantage of by everyone who cares for his health and safety, and that of the community.

There would be no problem at all, if students used the obvious swimming place, instead of going out of their respective ways to incur danger.

Not Guilty

by Barry Farber

Weight lifters, body builders, and physical culturists, I salute you. If you can hoist anything heavier than a dry martini over your head you're a better man than I am. Let me start from the beginning.

I developed chronic asthma and borderline anemia while still in the embryo stage. I could never breathe through my nose like the other kids and when I tried it sounded like a pair of corduroy pants calling its mate. . . . All was well until I ran into Alex.

Alex was musclebound, mostly from the neck up. He developed his monstrous physique by lifting wallets and he was the village dragon. Alex ruled the kids in the neighborhood with an iron hand and when he snapped, we functioned. One day I was sitting with a sweet little blond, I'll call her Nancy, down at the corner delicatessen store and Alex marched over and tried to break on me.

Now, Alex was a dynamic specimen of burly masculinity. I was so thin a backache and a stomach ache hit me in the same place. He had bulging biceps from his head to his feet. If every muscle in my body were removed it'd be a minor operation. Alex could have supplied a mattress factory just by harvesting the hair off his chest. I couldn't pull enough hair off my chest to make a wig for a grape. I stood there huffing and puffing and bluffing but Alex was already showing Nancy his brand new pectorals. I tiptoed home in tears.

It must have been fate because that very same night I glanced at the back of a Dick Tracy comic book and discovered how I, too, could enjoy muscular manhood merely by drinking milk, eating carrots, exercising every day, and reading Dick Tracy comic books. I clipped the coupon, threw a quarter in the envelop, chucked it in the mailbox, and waited for my muscles to harden.

I really hit the nail squarely on the thumb. For the next two months life was just a bed of neuroses and the only thing that got any harder was my arteries. It was like dropping a rose petal down the Grand Canyon and waiting for an echo. Finally I transformed myself from a one man slum to a self-made nobody and I was ready for action.

Again Nancy and I were playfully poking at a pickle, Pepsi, and pastrami down at the delicatessen. Again Alex sallied over with his biceps in full bloom and demanded my unconditional surrender. This was the moment I'd been praying for. I jumped up and grabbed him by the collar.

"Listen, you punk," I barked. "I'm sick and tired of your foolishness and if you don't clear out of this neighborhood by midnight there's gonna be a little man patting you in the face with a spade."

When I woke up a few hours later Nancy and Alex were happily salvaging a salami and talking seriously about a home and family. They now live in a small apartment near Newport News with their three lovely, muscular children.

So boys, you can flex those abdominals until Gabriel blows that high note but count me out. You can keep your filthy muscles. All they do is block your circulation and stretch your skin—and I'd say the same thing even if I had some.

wish to appear as soloists with the North Carolina Symphony next season will be held in Asheville on May 28, according to Benjamin Swalin, Symphony Director.

The auditions are scheduled for the George Vanderbilt Hotel Ballroom at 3 p.m. The Asheville auditions are preliminary to the final auditions to be held in Raleigh in September.

Letters

Editor:

We noticed with interest your editorial yesterday morning on a plan for the area in front of South Building. You may be interested to know that we have for some months been engaged on the preparation of a future plan not only for the whole of the campus but for the whole of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro area. This plan is to be presented to a group of interested people, including members of the administration, faculty and town officials on May 29th, and we hope that it will be of real value both to the University and to the towns of Chapel Hill and Carrboro.

We also take this opportunity of congratulating you and your staff on the tremendous improvement which has taken place in THE DAILY TAR HEEL within the few weeks since you took over.

Congratulations.

Jim Wilson
Jack Gural

Roy Parker's Column

There is a course on the correspondence course list that ought to be investigated by students who really want to get the most out of their college education. Its—"Old Roman Band Instruments." How could anybody leave UNC without getting into such a fascinating subject?

The group of folks that the Column is most envious of are those who can wear that square-cornered Phi Beta Kappa key. Last week ninety-nine more Tar Heels won the right to wear that treasured token. They are the people who have made the most of what they came here for. Congratulations to all of them, and especially co-president Ed Love. The lanky Love was an old Stacy dorm neighbor of ours. Even then he could learn more in an hour of studying than anybody else could in a week.

Best bet for the next cadet boss of the AROTC is Jack Strickland. He won the award for being the most outstanding third-year man and is one of the new Phi Betes. Outside bets are Larry Botto or Ben James.

The Monogram has made the most of its newly instituted scholarships. The monetary rewards go to outstanding high school athletes—but only to those adept at sports other than football. Carolina has long fallen behind other schools in the area in its recruitment of athletes in sports other than football. With the days of Choo Choo behind us, its time for UNC to get hot on a more all-round sports program. The Monogram Club scholarships are a good step in the right athletic direction. The scholarships are financed by proceeds from the annual Blue-White football game.

Unsung faculty member department: One of those obscure courses that is made worthwhile by its teacher is Psychology 25. The course is a favorite with students anxious to get off their General College science requirements. But its usually considered a dull, unwholesome course.

Not so when Professor W. J. Daniels is the man doing the teaching. Daniels—who looks like a former fullback—can make motor responses, white rat experiments and mental disorders something as vital as Curve Inn beer. His tales of his work in a mental institution are funnier than Jerry Lewis' antics.

gle, Kannapolis, and Robert Candler Vaughn, Winston-Salem.

-Famine-

(Continued from page 1)
222, Chapel Hill.

At the present time there is a bill before Congress requesting for grain and other food, but the situation has become so desperate to wait until the bill has passed.

-Initiation-

(Continued from page 1)

Oaks; Lewis Rose Chapman, Jr., Union, N. J.; Edward Sanderlin Coley, Elizabeth City; Robert William Davidson, Mooresville; Robert Edward Goodman, El Paso, Texas; Edwar Love, III, Lincolnton; Frank Warwick Steed, Durham; Thomas Warwick Steed, Jr., Raleigh; Richard James Tug-

-Trustees-

(Continued from page 1)

Gray said that the next addition to his office should be a Director of Development. He pointed out that these new offices are being created as necessary components of the Greater University's long-range planning program.

-Mills-

(Continued from Page 1)

Abernathy, a native of Hickory and a member of the class of '22, while at the University was managing editor of the Yackety Yack, and was for two years business manager of the humor magazine. After graduating from the University, Abernathy entered the advertising field in Philadelphia which later led to a position in the Charles W. Hoyt Advertising Agency there.

Twenty years ago he established his own publishing company in Atlanta, Ga., and at the present he is serving as its president.

Having offices in New York and Chicago, his company publishes eight business journals.

Symphony Auditions Slated In Asheville

Preliminary auditions for musicians of western Carolina who

Reviews And Previews

The exhibition of drawings and paintings of George Bireline currently being held in the Horace Williams-Thomas Wolfe lounge in Graham Memorial is especially interesting in its subject matter. It ranges from contorted figures to abstractions, some of which are remarkable in their subtle coloring.

The pictures will be on display until May 27. The work should attract more students than have so far seen it. Mr. Bireline is the illustrator for the spring issue of the Carolina Quarter.

Mary Gray Clarke

ADAM AND EVALYN a British farce which showed at the Varsity last week showed that excellent acting and good directing cannot always save an insipid plot.

Through a chain of improbable circumstances, an unusually soft-hearted crook becomes the guardian of an unbelievably pert ingenue.

After the care of expensive dress-makers and boarding schools has turned the winsome innocent into a virtuous vamp, the crook marries her.

Sentimentality and stale humor make even heavier work for the excellent cast.

ADAM AND EVALYN is only valuable as proof of one point: When the English movie industry is at its best, it turns out productions that are hard to beat. At its worst, however, it feeds audiences improbabilities and foolishness that not even Hollywood "B" productions would dare to feature.

B. Fleischmann

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where it is published by the Publications Board during the regular sessions of the University except Monday, examination and vacation periods, and during the official summer terms. Printing is done by Colonial Press, Inc., Chapel Hill, N. C. Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription price: $8 per year, 3 per quarter. Reproduction of the masthead, flag, or the name "The Daily Tar Heel," is prohibited without express permission of the Publications Board.

Editor-in-Chief: Glenn Harden
Business Manager: Oliver Watkins
Managing Editor: Andy Taylor
Associate Editor: Walt Dear
News Editor: Mac White
Sports Editor: Zane Robbins
Society Editor: Nancy Burgess
Office Manager: Jim Schenck
Advertising Manager: Marie Costello
Circulation Manager: Wade Bryant
Subscription Manager: Tom McCall
Asst. Sports Ed.: Billy Peacock
News Staff: Bruce Melton, Joe Cherry, Billy Grimes, Robert Wilson, Tommy Sumner, Paul Barwick, Bob Pace, Vardy Buckalew, Roy Parker, Donald Wrenn. Sports Staff: Biff Roberts, Ed Starnes, Buddy Northart, Bill Hughes, Art Groenbaum, Hall Ward, Martha Nash. Business Staff: Hubert Breeze, Bruce Marger, Joyce Evans, Bert Wade, Sylvia Newoon, Frances Minter.
Society Staff: Mary Nell Boddie, Franny Sweet, Diane McComb.

For This Issue: Night Editors
Billy (Punchy) Grimes, Rolfe Neill

Crossword Puzzle

- ACROSS
- 1. Cyprinoid fish
- 6. Philippine island
- 8. Sumac tree
- 9. Salt
- 12. State positively
- 13. Flower
- 14. Self
- 15. Vessel used in distillation
- 17. Having a yellowish color
- 19. Frozen water
- 20. Lubricated
- 21. Fabled monster at the earth's center
- 22. Type measures
- 24. Precious metal
- 27. Always
- 28. Long narrow board
- 20. Cut down
- 31. Accomplish
- 32. Expressing sorrow
- 25. You and I
- 36. New Zealand tree
- 39. Portent
- 39. End of a loaf of bread
- 41. Optical glass
- 43. Unit of work
- 44. Nobleman
- 45. Inclines
- 47. Bitter vetch
- 48. Flexible
- 50. Self-centered person
- 53. Goddess of dawn
- 54. Saviors
- 56. Part of a minstrel show
- 57. Likely

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
12				13				14
15				16		17		18
		19				20
21	22					23		24	25	26
27						28		29	30
31			32	33				34		35
36		37		38				39	40
41			42	43				44
			45	46			47
48	49					50			51	52
53				54	55			56
57				58				59

GAB	EFT	CHAFE
IRE	LEA	HUMAN
BENEFAC	TOR	IT
ENID	SKIP	SALE
SAG	UTES	SPUR
	NOSED	STORE
SCARED		TEASED
TONES		CHART
ARCS		FROMRAS
IVY		SOCARBOLT
NI		PARTICIPLE
ENVOY		ETAHER
DEEDS		RED EYE

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

- 55. Narrow piece of wood
- 59. Novice
- DOWN
- 1. Salutation
- 8. Withdraw
- 4. Get
- 5. Skill
- 6. Not any
- 7. Helping
- 8. Repeat
- 9. Infrequently
- 10. Past
- 11. Of small height
- 16. Note of the scale
- 18. Support for furniture
- 20. Ancient implements of warfare
- 21. Commemorative metal disk
- 22. Call forth
- 23. Simple
- 25. Let down
- 26. Reside
- 29. Exclamation
- 33. Behold
- 34. Kind of cigar
- 37. Join the colors
- 40. Without difficulty
- 42. Ocean
- 46. Insects
- 47. For example abbr.
- 48. Vegetable
- 49. Cut off
- 50. American time zone: abbr.
- 51. Title of a knight
- 52. Also
- 55. Egyptian sun god