

Commencement Schedule Complete

William DeVane To Speak At Ceremonies In Kenan

By Bob Pace

Plans for the University's 157th Commencement were completed yesterday with the announcement by Dean of Students Fred Weaver that Dr. William Clyde DeVane, Dean of Yale College of Yale University, will be the featured speaker at the exercises in Kenan Stadium Monday.

The program for the weekend will get underway Saturday, June 2, which has been designated Class Day. The schedule of events for the day includes a luncheon at Lenoir Hall at 1 p.m. for seniors and their parents, alumni class reunions at 6:30, and an informal reception for seniors, alumni, guests, and faculty at Kessing Pool that evening.

The program will continue Sunday when the candidates for degrees gather at the Old Well at 10:30 a.m. The Baccalaureate Sermon will follow at 11 o'clock in Memorial Hall.

The Rev. James L. Fowle,

Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Chattanooga, Tennessee, will deliver the sermon. Mr. Fowle is a native Tar Heel, attended Davidson College, and maintains a summer residence in Washington.

At 1 o'clock alumni class meetings will be held. This will be followed by a band concert under Davie Poplar at 4:30, visits to the student art exhibit in Person Hall at 5:30, alumni reunion banquets at 6:30, and Haydn's "The Creation" by the Chapel Hill Choral Club and the University Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Joel Carter at 8:30 in Hill Hall.

Monday is Alumni Day and graduation exercises will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning with the last class meeting of the class of '51 in Gerard Hall. Caps and gowns will be worn.

At 11 o'clock the members of the faculty will hold a reception for degree candidates and their guests at Davie Poplar.

The alumni luncheon, including seniors and their guests, will be held in Lenoir Hall at 1 o'clock. J. Harold Lineberger, class of '26 and president of the General Alumni Association, will be toastmaster for the Luncheon.

The Carolina Playmakers will present a performance of new plays in the Playmaker Theatre at 2:30 p.m. Repeat performances will be given at 4 o'clock.

Candidates for degrees will assemble at the Morehead-Patterson Bell Tower at 6:15 that afternoon to form an academic procession. The University band will give a concert in Kenan Stadium at 6:30.

Graduation exercises will begin at 7 o'clock in Kenan Stadium.

Summer Heads Are Chosen

Ken Barton, Julian Mason Are Selected

Ken Barton and Julian Mason will serve as Student Body Presidents for the first and second sessions, respectively, of summer school, President Henry Bowers announced yesterday.

Bowers also released an incomplete list of appointments for the summer school Student Government Board, Women's Council, and Men's Council. Gil Marsh was named Secretary-Treasurer for both sessions.

Appointed so far to serve on the Summer Student Government Board are Bob Ellington, Ed Love (1st), Bill Wolf (2nd), John Vincent, Bob Evans, Joan Erskine, and Jim Lamm.

Serving on the Women's Honor Council will be Mary Nell Boddie, Princess Stelling, Jackie Leverett, Jackie Bumpcus (1st), Sandy Wilson (1st), and Libby Royal (1st).

Included in the members of the Men's Honor Council for the summer sessions are Allan Millidge, who was recently named chairman of the Council for next year, George Freeman, Bill Walker, Jim McLeod, Chinnis Hobson, and Dan Perry (1st).

Along with the appointments Bowers announced a new proposed plan which would replace Freshman Assembly in the orientation program. It is the introduction of a student government course to be taught by prominent members of the faculty.

There is a possibility that the new program will be instituted this summer. If not, it will likely be begun in the fall.

"This new orientation class should have a great effect on student interest in campus government," Bowers stated.

Counselors

All students who have been chosen to counsel freshmen in the fall are requested to leave their summer addresses with the Dean of Students in order that Orientation Chairman Ken Barton will be able to keep in touch with them over the summer.

Also any students chosen who will be unable to do the job should contact Barton immediately. If over the summer it becomes impossible to return, the Dean of Students office should be notified.

Last Issue Of Tarnation Scheduled Tomorrow

The campus' only humor magazine and second youngest publication will end a three-and-one-half year reign at Carolina when it is published for the last time tomorrow.

Tarnation, only 18 issues old, will die when it comes off the presses for the last time tomorrow. And for the first time in two years the magazine will return to its original 8 by 11 1/2-inch format.

Featuring 32 pages of mostly cartoons, jokes, and pictures, Tarnation will be delivered as usual throughout the dormitories, fraternities, and sororities on campus. Any student who fails to receive an issue should stop by the Tarnation office in the basement of Graham Memorial and pick one up before the end of the year.

Assistant Editor John Moore said yesterday that all publication deadlines have been met and barring any unforeseen difficulties Tarnation should be printed at the Colonial Press according to schedule tomorrow.

"This is the last issue of Tarnation and we have done our best to give the students what we think they want. I think everyone will like tomorrow's issue," Moore said. He termed it "the best yet."

The campus will be minus a humor magazine next year due to the expected drop in enrollment next fall and the resulting shortage of student fees. In drawing up the budget for next year the Student Legislature failed to appropriate funds for the continuation of Tarnation.

The magazine was born in the spring of 1947 with the idea in mind of replacing the Carolina Magazine with a strictly humor publication. This came about the following spring when the Carolina Magazine was voted out and Tarnation in as the result of a campus-wide referendum.

The fall of 1949 saw the first pocket-size issue of Tarnation, the idea and work of Tom Kerr, then editor. Editor Herb Nachman has followed the pocket size format for the first three issues this year. For the last issue, however, the editors decided to go back to the old regular size format.

Mrs. Wettach Named Acting Dean Of Coeds

Mrs. Alpha Burkart Wettach will serve as Acting Dean of Women for next year, Chancellor R. B. House announced yesterday.

The wife of R. H. Wettach, member of the law school faculty, Mrs. Wettach will take the place of Dean Katherine Kennedy Carmichael who will be on leave starting June 10 on a Fulbright lecture scholarship in the Philippines.

Mrs. Wettach is a member of the faculty where she is actively engaged in teaching and has had training and experience in the field of student welfare.

She graduated from the University of Pittsburg and received her M.A. in psychology in 1923 at Columbia University. She then received a fellowship in mental hygiene at the New York School of Social Work.

Connected with the University since 1924 in different capacities, she served on the YWCA Advisory Board for nine years and is now a special lecturer in the Psychology Department. She has served as psychologist of the Institute for Social Research.

Mrs. Wettach is a member of the Chapel Hill School Board and chairman of the Recreation Commission. During the war she served as director of the military service center.

First Issues To Be Given Undergrads

The first of the 1950-51 Yackety Yacks will be available to students on Tuesday, Editor Jim Mills announced last night.

Mills asked, however, that seniors who will be here until graduation refrain from picking up their copies until the end of the week when more are scheduled to arrive from the printery in Charlotte.

Mills said that the first 500 of the yearbooks would be on hand Tuesday and that students, preferably undergraduates who will be leaving the campus for the summer during exam week, may begin picking them up in Graham Memorial Tuesday afternoon.

Mills will drive to Charlotte Monday to pick up the first issues of the Yack himself.

The rest of the yearbooks will continue to arrive in small shipments throughout the week. There will be plenty of yearbooks for everybody, Mills assured students.

The editor asked that students who will be here for graduation or at least the end of next week wait until the end of the week to come by for their issues of the Yack.

This will help greatly in distributing the books, Mills said. It will save many students standing in line twice and also save mailing costs and work, which would result if students leaving early were not able to take home their yearbooks with them.

"I hope everyone will cooperate with us in this effort," Mills said.

It was announced yesterday that Mills has been honored with the Abernathy award, which is given annually to the student who contributes most to campus publications.

He will graduate in June, and plans to enter the Air Force. He was associate editor of the 1950 Yackety Yack before being elected to hold down the top position for the publication this year. Mills is a radio major.

Back To Normal

The Publications Board voted yesterday afternoon to put The Daily Tar Heel back on a six-day week, regular size basis for the fall quarter of next year.

The Board defeated by a two vote margin a proposal by Editor Glenn Harden to keep the campus daily on a tabloid basis.

The group also negotiated a contract with the Colonial Press of Carrboro for the printing of next year's Tar Heel.

Members said that enough money is now on hand to publish a full size paper six days a week during the fall and possibly five days a week for the winter and spring quarters.

Summer School Enrollment Not Expected To Drop Much

By John Cronson

Except for a marked increase in the enrollment of the Graduate and Professional schools this summer, the size of the summer session student body is expected to parallel former years, according to Guy B. Phillips, Dean of the University summer session.

The expected increase in the enrollment in the Graduate and Professional divisions will be caused by GI's eager to take advantage of the GI bill, he said.

The GI's enrolled will fall into roughly three categories, said Colonel F. C. Shepard, military affairs and selective service advisor.

They are: 1. A number of veterans will lose their GI Bill benefits if they have not resumed their education by July 25; 2. Teachers studying for advanced degrees who have taught nine months of school, and 3. students who were not enrolled during the Spring quarter who must be in school on July 25 to be qualified for GI aid.

Another unique feature of the 1951 summer session will be the admission of some 250 freshmen. This shows an increase of at least 500% in freshman enrollment in the summer quarter.

A special orientation period will be held for them prior to the first day of classes June 11. This orientation will be similar to the one held in the fall, but shorter. By taking advantage of the summer session each year, the matriculating freshman can complete his undergraduate work in three years or less.

Aside from innovations in the enrollment pattern, many new features will appear this summer. Among these are a new Master of Education degree authorized by the Graduate School Board, the North Carolina School Week from June 24 to 30, the Fourth Annual Carolina Folk Festival, the French House, and the English Institute.

During North Carolina School Week three conferences will be held. They are the Elementary Education Conference, The Principals' Conference, and the Superintendents' or Administrators' Conference.

All students planning to attend the first session are urged to make room reservations before June 11.
