

Regulations Re-Posted By Dance Committee

The Dance Committee will supervise the two dances to be held this weekend at Woollen Gymnasium. The Independent Coed Ball will reserve the Gym from 9:00 p.m. until 12:00 Friday night, and the Grail dance will be held there from 8:30 p.m.—11:30 p.m. Saturday night.

The committee would like to inform the new students and remind the upper-classmen of the following rules which must be obeyed at all Carolina dances:

Anyone showing signs of drinking or any other form of misconduct will be dealt with according to the discretion of the University Dance Committee.

Any girl desiring to leave the dance hall during the evening with the intention of returning must be accompanied by a chaperone during her entire absence from the dance.

Anyone giving the wrong

name will be automatically and indefinitely suspended.

Anyone bringing intoxicating beverages on the dance floor will be automatically and indefinitely suspended.

No smoking whatsoever and no refreshments of any kind are to be allowed on the dance floors of both Woollen and Woman's Gymnasiums.

Coach Marvin Allen, former faculty adviser for the dance committee, has been called back to the Navy. The vacant post will be filled by Dr. Hyman A. Cotton of the English Department.

Anyone interested in giving a dance must first contact Doctor Cotton before the Monday night prior to the weekend of the dance. Doctor Cotton may be reached at his office—214 Saunders Hall, or at his home—520 Hooper Lane. Ray Jefferies will remain as an adviser to the committee.

Viall Moves To New Post

ROBERT VIALL

Robert Viall has been appointed promotional director for the North Carolina Symphony, which has its headquarters here. He will be in command of the sustaining fund and membership drives.

Mr. Viall, who for the past four years was associated with the Civic Concert Service of New York, is replacing Albin Pikutis. Mr. Pikutis resigned to become executive secretary of the North Carolina League for Crippled Children.

In his work with the Civic Concert Service, he directed membership campaigns and acted as publicity director.

At present he is living on Wyrick Street in the airport development. He is a native of Oshkosh, Wis., and an alumnus of the University of Minnesota.

Council Hears Large Docket

Two students were suspended from the University this summer by the Men's Honor Council for violations of the Honor System, reports Allan Milledge, chairman of the Honor Council.

Another student, he says, left school without a trial after having been notified that he was charged.

For two other honor violations the students turned themselves in and each was placed on indefinite probation, according to the chairman, and in several other cases nine students were found not guilty of violations of the Honor Code.

For violations of the Campus Code five students were placed on indefinite probation and three were given reprimands.

Also one student was removed from probation, he said.

The violations for the summer included: cheating, lying, drinking in a classroom building, and fighting, he revealed.

Celestial Show At Planetarium

"Music of the Spheres," the current astronomical production of the Morehead Planetarium, is a show pointed at illustrating the movement of celestial bodies and their order, according to Manager Tony Jezaano.

The history of astronomy and the origin of planet motion is discussed as well as the scientists responsible for their discovery, he described.

For the first time since the planetarium opened two years ago, the manager announced, the Copernican Orrery or Planet Room will be used as an integral part of the presentation.

Morehead Planetarium with its seating capacity of 500 is open from 2 until 10 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. The time schedule differs slightly on the weekends.

The art gallery and jewel exhibits are open to the public throughout the day. Astronomy books and pamphlets are on sale at the ticket window.

The last show given previously in the Planetarium was titled "Eclipses of the Sun."

Police Chief Offers Help

On the opening of the school year, Chief W. T. Sloan of the Chapel Hill police expressed his wish to aid any student in any way possible and voiced his fondness for the student body of the University.

"We of the police department are happy to see students, new or old, arrive at Chapel Hill," he said. "The police department welcomes them here, and if the police department can help any student with any problems we will be more than glad to do it."

Sloan has been with the department for the past 27 years, and during that time, he says, he has come to believe that there was not a better group as a whole than the Carolina student body.

UNC Opera Class Opens In Raleigh

The University of North Carolina, through the facilities of its Extension Service, became the first in the nation to establish a full-time opera school when the Carolina Opera School opened in Raleigh on September 17.

The School trains singers for professional careers in opera and concert work. Credit toward a degree is given by the University for many of the courses offered by the School.

Working in co-operation with the School are the Grass Roots Opera Company of the National Federation of Music Clubs and the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs.

The faculty includes Robert C. Bird, formerly with the Fort Worth Civic Opera Association, as director; John Seagle, now on leave of absence as head of Trinity University Voice Department, San Antonio, Tex., as artistic director and voice teacher; and Mrs. Estelle Rucker, formerly accompanist of Helen Traubel and other Metropolitan singers, as pianist-voice coach.

Norman Cordon, former Metropolitan star, head of the North Carolina music program and opera consultant to the School, and Russell Grumman, Extension Director, are credited with having supplied this "missing link" between school and stage.

CPU Opens New Series

Sunday night at 8:00 the Carolina Political Union will begin its annual series of roundtable discussions on subjects of a political nature.

The topic of this first discussion will be on draft deferments. The CPU is a group of students organized to provide a forum for such discussions as this, and to bring to the campus prominent speakers on political issues.

Any student who is interested in work of this type is invited to attend Sunday night or contact Tommy Sumner, chairman of the Union.

In the short span of its existence, actually less than two decades, the CPU has brought to Carolina such speakers as President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt, and Norman Thomas.

The program of speakers for the coming year has not been announced, but it is expected to include figures prominent both in the state and the nation.

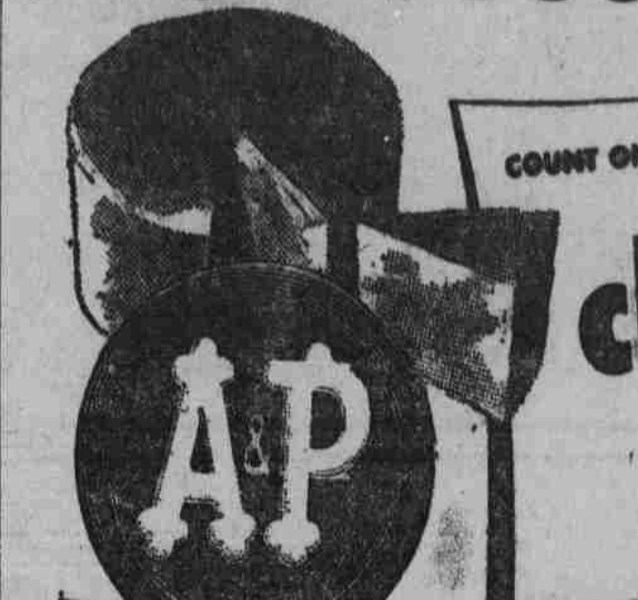

Red Cross Needs Blood

A Red Cross Bloodmobile unit will be at Graham Memorial Oct. 10 and 11 to gain blood from draft exempt students to be used to save lives of American soldiers in Korea who aren't safe from anything. R. H. Wettach, chairman of the local Red Cross blood donor committee, announced yesterday.

Last year Bloodmobile units worked the University twice and

High Enrollment Figures For Military Departments

Both the Air Force and Navy Reserve Officer's Training Corps announced higher enrollment figures for this year yesterday.

The Air Force unit has almost doubled its enrollment with 750 students as compared to last year's 450. This summer 100 new students joined the Air program while 300 entered this fall. This makes the Air Science department one of the largest departments in the University.

The Naval ROTC has accepted 90 new students since June. The total enrollment is 319 as compared with last year's 295. There are 77 contract students and 39 regulars.

Contract students have a contract with the Navy to take Naval Science courses for four years, participate in one cruise during their junior year, and agree to serve two years if called by the Secretary of the Navy. After their junior year they receive financial aid. They are commissioned as ensigns in the Naval Reserve. The regular students are paid $50 a month, take a cruise every year, and are commissioned directly after graduation besides taking the Naval Science courses.

Six alternates for the Naval program have registered as Naval Science students and will become contract students if any of the present contract students leave school.
