Sue Sends S. O. S.

Junior class pictures for the Yack are being taken NOW. Excellent photographers and Editor Sue Lindsey's staff are waiting every day this week until Friday from 1 till 9 p.m. to take your picture. She would like for all you fine looking Juniors to come and grace the Yack with your picture.

Only 473 sophomores of the 1006 registered this quarter came to have their picture taken. Miss Lindsey is hoping for better response from the Junior class.

Miss Lindsey requested, "Juniors should come at the first part of the week so as to avoid the rush at the end of the week, as there will be no extension of the dates."

The remainder of the schedule is as follows:

Law students: October 2-4.

Seniors: October 8-12.

Graduate Students: October 8-10.

Miss Lindsey emphasized, "it costs nothing to have your picture taken."

Groups Act On Segregation; Davis Calls Special Session

By O. Mac White

Council Sets Meeting Site

The interim council of the State Student Legislature laid groundwork for the mass meeting of student legislators to be held in Raleigh at a short Sunday session on the campus of Woman's College in Greensboro.

Miss Rosemary Boney, student leader at Woman's College and editor of the Carolinian, presided over the meeting which was well attended by delegates from the student governments of colleges throughout the state.

The mid-November meeting of state student legislators will be held in the House and Senate chambers of the State Capitol in Raleigh. Doctor Robert Lee Humber, noted World Federalist, will address the assembly on the topic, "The Political Role of the Student in Securing World Peace."

Carolina delegates to the interim council were Joan King, and John Schnorrenberg. Schnorrenberg is chairman of the calendar committee.

Playmaker Season Ducats On Sale Today

Season tickets for the full program of five major productions by the Carolina Playmakers will go on sale today at the Playmakers' business office in Swain Hall and at Ledbetter-Pickard's on East Franklin St.

Only 1,000 of these season books, which permit the holder to see all five Playmaker productions for the established price of four, will be issued.

Just Tell 'em What's Lost, State Patrol Will Find It

By Jeannette Chance

Saturday proved that highway patrolmen go beyond the call of duty in directing traffic and watching games on football weekends.

A little gray-haired woman approached a patrolman. "Will you help me look for my car?" she requested. "I can't find it."

Willing to assist, he asked, "Do you remember where you parked it?"

"Not exactly," she answered, "but it was in a big place with lots of other cars."

Trying again, he asked, "After you parked, did you go in the north or south side of the stadium?"

Her confused eyes brightened as she said, "The one with all the trees just outside."

Well, suppose you just give me the license number and I'll see what I can do," he told her.

Boom!

Such is the keynote of student reaction to the University administration's alleged policy of Negro segregation.

Since Henry Bowers, president of the student body, went on record Friday condemning the policy, three Chapel Hill student church groups and one campus student group have passed resolutions to the same effect.

Bunny Davis, vice-president of the student body, has called a special meeting of the student of legislature for 7:30 o'clock tonight to consider a resolution on Negro segregation.

According to Davis, all legislators must be present at the session, and if not, in accordance with the legislators by-laws, will be unseated.

In their Sunday night meetings the Baptist Student Union, the Presbyterian Student Group, the Wesley Foundation Methodist Group, and the Episcopal Canterbury Club devoted most of their meetings to consideration and adoption of resolutions affirming the organizations' belief in non-segregation.

Such resolutions passed in all but the Canterbury Club. And this group referred it to an executive committee for the purpose of wording such a statement.

Late yesterday afternoon the YWCA cabinet voted to take a stand for non-segregation, and entrusted to a special committee the job of wording the resolution.

The YMCA held a meeting last night to consider a like resolution, but at the time of this writing no action has been taken.

Unidentified sources intimate that even more student groups will take a stand on the issue in the very near future.

The Baptist Student Union in its resolution restated the principles of the Southern Baptist Convention in opposition to racial prejudice, and continued, "In view of the above principles and in light of our previous stand on racial segregation, we reaffirm our belief in the Christian doctrine of the dignity of the individual and in the equality of rights and privileges of all our fellow students.

"The recent ruling segregating some members of our student body is in violation of these principles, and we pledge ourselves to support every effort on the part of the Administration to bring University policies in line with these historic and inviolable foundations of our Christian democracy."

The Presbyterian group in its resolution reaffirmed its belief "that men as men have certain inalienable rights with which they are endowed by their Creator; that all men, being created by one God, are entitled to equal opportunities for enjoyment, redemption, and self-fulfillment.

"In accordance with our belief we are soely distressed over the action of the administration of the University of North Carolina in restricting the opportunities of the Negro students."

Wettach Lists Visiting Laws

"The Coed Visiting Agreement, which was passed by the Coed Senate last October, will continue in effect this year," said Mrs. Betty Denny of Dean of Women's Office.

The agreement governs the conduct of women students in fraternity houses. Coeds are honor bound to conform to these regulations.

No woman student may enter any fraternity house prior to 11 a.m. and may not remain after coed hours, according to the agreement. Also, a coed is not permitted to drink in a fraternity house, nor is she permitted to remain in the presence of anyone who is drinking.

Violations of the Coed Visiting Agreement are handled by the Women's Council.

Evening Art Classes Set

Art classes for Chapel Hill and Durham residents, in addition to students, will be given each week throughout the fall quarter by the University Art Department, it was announced today.

George Kachergis, assistant professor of art, will teach the classes to be held in Person Hall every Wednesday night, beginning tomorrow night at 7 p.m., and continue for 10 weeks. A minimum fee will be charged upon registration at 7 p.m.

The course will consist of sketching from models, problems in drawing and composition, and the use of various mediums.

Scott-Critic Will Speak At Inaugural

Robert Thompson, editor of the High Point Enterprise and outspoken critic of the Scott administration, will speak at the inaugural ceremonies for new officers of the Philanthropic Assembly tonight at 8:30 in the Phi Hall on the third floor of New East Building.

Thompson, one of Dr. Frank Porter Graham's chief critics in the 1950 Senatorial campaign, will speak on "The Current Political Situation in North Carolina" with special emphasis on the gubernatorial race in 1952. Thompson has been boosting Dr. Casper Warren, former president of the State Baptist Convention for the governorship.

Officers to be inaugurated at tonight's session are J. Albert House of Hobgood, Speaker; Robert Pace of Morrisville, Speaker pro-tem; Solomon Cherry of Roxobel, Parliamentarian; Kent Jackson of High Point, Critic; Robert Gorham of Rocky Mount, Sergeant-at-arms; Jim Fouts of Lexington, Clerk; and Franz Roberts of Hillsboro, Treasurer.

All interested persons are invited to attend the Inaugural ceremonies, after which a reception will be held.

Veep Wilson To Speak At W. C. Friday

Dr. Logan Wilson, vice-president for Academic Affairs of the Consolidated University, will speak at the Founder's Day ceremonies which are to be held at Woman's College on Friday.

Wilson, a new member of the University administration, who hails from Texas, will make his first formal appearance at the college.

Wilson's speech, as well as other parts of the ceremonies will be broadcast throughout the state.

Music for the occasion will be furnished by the College choir, with George M. Thompson directing.

The program which is scheduled for 8:00 p.m. in Aycock Auditorium, marks the fifty-ninth celebration of the occasion.

Dr. Baity Addresses Faculty Club Today

Dr. Herman G. Baity of the School of Public Health will address the Faculty Club at its first luncheon meeting of the year in the Carolina Inn at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

His topic will be "Observations Along the Iron Curtain." When Dr. Baity was in Europe this summer, making sanitary engineering surveys for the United Nations, he traveled in Balkan territory bordering on Soviet satellites and in Finland which borders Soviet Russia.
