TAILBACK LARRY PARKER was hauled down for only a two-yard gain on this second period run. The freshman star advanced the ball from the Carolina 22 to the 25 before he was stopped. Number 77 is Tackle Tom Higgins, who played a fine game on offense and Guard Ken Yarborough (76) is in the background. The gamecock is unidentified.

Frosh Back Sets Up Score, Passes To Baker For Another

By BILL PEACOCK

The Carolina football team revealed a threat in Larry Parker and an improved runner in Billy Williams as they downed South Carolina, 21-6, for an easy Southern Conference victory before 30,000 homecoming fans here yesterday in Kenan Stadium.

Parker, the highly publicized freshman from Charlotte who had played very little on offense pre-

Ran, Blocked Tackled Hard —Enright Says

"Your defense had Steve stopped cold all the way," said Rex Enright, South Carolina's head coach, in the field house after the game.

He was referring to Steve Wadiak, the Gamecock back standout who couldn't break away all afternoon. "We tried to set up his plays, but he still couldn't get loose," Enright added.

The South Carolina coach heaped praise on the play of the Tar Heels but singled out no individual. "They blocked hard, ran hard, and outplayed us all the way. North Carolina had a very fine football team, but the difference was up front in the line. They ran through us everywhere, inside, around the ends, and through the air," he commented.

Enright thought the Gamecocks had a chance to stop the rugged Carolina line but when the second half play started, he knew the turning point had come.

Gamecocks singled out for good play by their coach were ends George Norris and Bob Kahle. Enright thought the Tar Heels played an all around game, saying, "You couldn't name an outstanding player. Eleven men beat us, not one."

The players, in the dressing room after the game, thought yesterday's contest was the best they had played this season. They were disappointed at the loss but not dejected over the score.

viously, started the game and stayed in as the team's tailback until the fourth quarter when he was relieved by Williams and Frank Wissman.

Parker tossed an 11-yard pass to End Bill Baker for one touchdown and set up another with a beautiful 61-yard kickoff return. He passed only six times, completing four. His rushing average shows he carried nine times for six yards, but one of those "carries" was a 17-yard loss inflicted while trying to pass. Otherwise he would have a record of 23 yards on eight carries.

Williams' play was almost solely in the second half, but he showed a great improvement while he was in. He went 102 yards on 11 carries, including one beautiful 39-yard run for a score. Williams seemed to be running faster, and gave indications that he had mastered the cutback and the trick of staying with his interference.

Steve, Th' Cadillac, Wadiak, was well bottled up by the stout Carolina defense. Wadiak carried 11 times for 22 yards. The South Carolina backs were fast and clever runners, but they were not given sufficient interference, and threatened only a few times.

Carolina had the same trouble with cashing in on first half scoring chances, but their play on the whole was improved, especially on offense. The line play of Tom Higgins was especially good.

The Tar Heels made 19 first downs to 7 for the Gamecocks and gained a fine total of 235 yards rushing and 112 yards passing, while the Gamecocks could get only 92 yards on the ground and 99 yards in the air.

Carolina went all the way to the three yard line at the opening of the game, but could not score when on fourth down Parker could not find a pass receiver. A few minutes later they got down to the 15, but Wissman was unable to complete a pass in three attempts.

Steve Wadiak set up the Tar Heels' first score by fumbling the ball on his own 13 and Bud Wallace recovered for Carolina. Parker went one yard over right tackle, Wiess got another yard on a spinner over the middle, and ball war between the states.

Cards Fill Air As Williams Scores

The war between the states, football war, assumed the same aspect as the original war between the states. The South lost again.

With the South Carolinians sitting on the north side of the stadium and the sun shining in their eyes, they were forced to don the UNC cardboard sun shields, thereby losing their identity but not their spirit.

The Gamecock fans received the card stunts at half-time with great admiration. The loudest cheer from the north side came when the Confederate flag was presented.

The particular stunt was shown twice for the benefit of the Collier's photographer who was here to get pictures to use in connection with the feature upcoming on the Confederate flag fad.

When the stunt was presented for the second time, the second half of the ball game was just beginning. Parker took the kickoff and showing a spark of the famous "Choo-Choo" carried the ball back to about the Gamecocks' 40-yard-line, the students in the card section forgot about the stunts. Pandemonium broke loose. The cards began to sail through the air; the pleading of "Oky-Doke" Green, card stunt emcee, failed to stop the sailing of the cards.

Also enjoyed during the half-time ceremonies were the majorettes of the South Carolina Band. The Tar Heel fans usually do not get a chance to see the graceful acrobatics of majorettes such as the ones who performed for the USC Band yesterday.

All in all, Carolina came out on the top side of the score with mixed feeling among the fans.

Conference With Negroes, Officials Reverses Policy

The University changed its policy regarding the student segregation in Kenan Stadium because of a suggestion made by Negro students last week, it was learned yesterday.

J. Kenneth Lee, law student from Greensboro, stated last Saturday, "It is not our desire to stir up any trouble, but no one has consulted us in this matter. There is no disagreement that couldn't be worked out in a friendly manner if the administration would merely talk with us."

A conference was held early last week between University officials and Negro students. As a result of the meeting, the administration's policy was switched.

A letter explaining the University's position was given to the students when they received the passbooks Friday afternoon, from the University. Three weeks ago, one of the students, James Walker, was given free tickets to Section K but was denied a passbook for the games.

The text of the letter follows: "You know from our conversation and the Trustees responsible for such matters believe it wise to observe, for the present, the custom of segregation at North Carolina intercollegiate athletic games.

These games are public occasions. They are not wholly student affairs, as are all curricular essentials; classes, laboratories, and libraries. Nor are they solely student extra-curricular activities, as are student dining halls, dormitories, publications, literary societies, and fraternities. (Only twelve per cent of the people who attend football games are students.) Intercollegiate games are "state-wide" assemblages and the people of North Carolina do not regard them as exclusively University functions.

We believe you understand the wisdom and prudence of our position. We are following your suggestion that we give you a student athletic pass-book and trust your good judgment. The University has faith in you. We believe you will cooperate with us
