Automobile Registration Is Required

All students, both residents of North Carolina and those from other states, must register their automobiles with the Dean of Student's office or they will be acting in contempt of University trustee and State Department of Motor Vehicles regulations and thus face possible citation for violation of the State law, Ray Jefferies, assistant to the dean of students, yesterday asserted.

Under reciprocal agreements between North Carolina and other states, students are permitted to retain their out-of-state registration provided their automobiles are registered with the University.

Jefferies urged that these out-of-state students register their cars with his office as soon as possible, since L. C. Rosser, North Carolina Commissioner of the Department of Motor Vehicles, has warned the University that the State Highway Patrol has started checking on cars with non-North Carolina licenses and citing the drivers for violating the motor-vehicle laws if they have established residence in North Carolina and failed to obtain a North Carolina registration.

North Carolina students who keep automobiles here must also register them with the University, he said. This is in accordance with a trustee regulation.

Some 400 less student cars have been registered this year than last year, although from outward appearance the number of student cars has increased considerably.

Campus policemen will probably begin checking on such cars within the next few days, and after a preliminary warning will start issuing "parking tickets."

Students may register their automobiles with the Dean of Students in room 206 of the South Building, and Jefferies urges all of those who have failed to do so to register their machines immediately.

Interviews

Tonight is the last night for interviews for the State Student Legislature.

The interviews are being conducted in the Women's Council room in Graham Memorial from 7:30 until 9 p.m.

Delegates are being chosen on the basis of their knowledge of parliamentary procedure and of foreign and national affairs.

It is becoming more and more important that people take an active interest in the inner-workings of their government. The State Legislature hopes to spur this interest among the students of North Carolina. It is urged that all qualified persons wishing to be delegates attend the interviewing session.

Accountants To Hold Meet Here This Week

Various phases of federal and state taxation will be emphasized during the sessions of the 12th annual Accounting and Taxation Symposium to be held at Duke and Carolina on October 18, 19, and 20 under the sponsorship of the North Carolina Association of Certified Public Accountants.

Some of the important speakers who will participate in the symposium are J. William Hope, recently elected president of the American Institute of Accountants; Dr. Paul M. Gross, vice-president of Duke; Robert L. Lutz, partner, Ernst and Ernst, in charge of tax department of the New York Office; Thomas H. Dendy, New York, manager in the tax department of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co.; Nicholas St. Peter, Harrison, N. J., assistant divisional comptroller, General Motors and A. J. Bows, Arthur Anderson and Co., Atlanta.

The three-day sessions will open at Carolina Thursday morning and will move to Duke Friday for sessions there Friday morning and afternoon.

Irvin R. Squires of Greensboro, president of the North Carolina association of CPA's, will preside at the first session Thursday morning at 11 o'clock in Gerrard hall. The speaker will be Mrs. Pauline W. Horton of Raleigh, technical adviser to Wage and Public Contracts Division, W. S. Department of Labor.

Erle E. Peacock of Chapel Hill, a past president, will preside at the luncheon session when the University's welcome will be extended by Dean Thomas H. Carroll of the School of Business Administration.

Thursday afternoon's session will be presided over by another past president, Harry R. Borthwick of Winston-Salem, and will include addresses by several CPA figures.

The Friday night session will be shifted to Chapel Hill for a banquet session at which William J. Hope will be the principal speaker. The final session Saturday morning will be shifted back to Duke.

At the morning session Friday speakers will be Robert L. Lutz, and Thomas H. Dendy. Lutz will discuss "Excess Profits Taxes" and Dendy will talk on "Recent Developments in Federal Taxation." Nicholas St. Peter and A. J. Bows will speak at the Friday afternoon session. St. Peter's topic will be "Techniques of Cost Finding" and Bows will discuss "Opportunities for Constructive Services to Management."

Naval ROTC Deadline Set November 17

Applications for the nationwide competitive examination for the Navy College Training Program must be mailed to the Naval Examining Section, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N. J., to arrive not later than November 17, Captain John S. Keating, USN, Commander of the Naval ROTC unit at the University of North Carolina, announced here yesterday.

The competition for the 1952 Regular program of the ROTC will be conducted in designated areas in North Carolina on the morning of December 8, and in order to enter, the Princeton Naval Examining Section must have received the applicants' names by November 17, Captain Keating emphasized.

Application blanks may be obtained from any Navy Recruiting station, from inspection-instructors of organized Naval Reserve units and from Captain Keating in Chapel Hill.

Successful candidates will be given a four-year college education at government expense and will be commissioned as officers of the Navy or Marine Corps upon graduation, Captain said.

Travel Agency

The Graham Memorial Travel Agency will be closed Friday of this week and Monday of next week. Travel Agency telephone calls will be taken by the Graham Memorial Information Office, but full information and reservation service will not be offered on these days. Persons interested in doing business with the Travel Agency are urged to contact the Agency at 3882 by Thursday.

Remote Control Out; Local Men To Pick 'Em

A "live" Yackety Yack Beauty Contest will be held in Memorial Hall, November 15 at 8 o'clock, Barry Farber, contest chairman announced yesterday. No admission will be charged.

Contestants formerly have been judged by remote control. Last year pictures were sent to Hollywood director Cecil B. DeMille for selection. He picked Mary Elizabeth Fischelis, sponsored by Theta Chi, as Yack Beauty Queen.

Four men, selected because of their experience in judging "feminine pulchritude," have been chosen for the job of picking the Queen and 17 of her court for the 1952 yearbook. The judges are Norman Cordon and James Street, who judged the state contest for Miss North Carolina, William Meade Prince, author and illustrator of "The Southern Part of Heaven," and Foster Fitzsimons, dancer and author of "Bright Leaf."

Any campus organization can enter as many candidates as they wish. Include a $4.00 entrance fee to cover costs of flowers and printing with each entry. Send name and fee to Barry Farber, Box 987, Chapel Hill, before November 1.

Candidates will wear evening dresses. Francis Lavergne Johnson will do the photography for the Yack. Hair stylings for winners will be created by Y. Z. Cannon of the Carolina Beauty Shop. An orchid for each contestant and decorations will be supplied by the University Florist.

FRATERNITY BIDS

Rushees may pick up their fraternity bids today at Gerrard hall from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., IFC President Johnny Romison announced.

Maryland Weekend Plans Include Parade, Pep Rally to give support to their team.

Adding that he was sorry the University Club was unable to get hotel accommodation, Smith said that he hoped everyone would be able to stay in the town to attend the parade and pep rally.

"The Chief of Police in D. C. has been told to expect at least 1,000 people in the parade, so let's see if we can't make an impression on the Washingtonians," Smith added.

Vernon Crook, ticket office official, said some tickets to the Maryland game were still left but they were going fast. Persons desiring tickets should get to the office as soon as possible.

Directory

Proofs of the new student directory are back from the printers and are being corrected.

Students who have a correction to be made or wish to see if a correction is necessary can check the mimeographed copy on the bulletin board in the Y lobby.

John Riebel, Y secretary, urged every student to check his or her phone number, address and name as today was the last day corrections could be made.
