Tar Heels Meet Maryland Today

By Bill Peacock

COLLEGE PARK, Md. Oct. 19—The advance guard of the Carolina football team arrived here tonight and found the nation's capital excited over the "revenge game" between the popular University of Maryland Terrapins and Carolina which will be played in Byrd Stadium before a near capacity crowd of 40,000 fans here tomorrow.

The Terps, darlings of the local fans after their tremendous victories over Washington and Lee, George Washington and Georgia, are confident of their first victory over the Tar Heels since 1926. Folks in these parts are taking Maryland and giving better than 14 points, so well do they like their chances.

On paper the Terps appear invincible. They are the seventh-ranked team nationally and come into the game with the third best rushing offense and the 5th best total offense. Coach Jim Tatum, a former coach and player at Carolina, has two sets of backs who have moved the ball equally well from the split-T formation.

Tatum will probably start Jack Scarbath, brilliant at times last year, at quarterback, Bob Shemonski, the top scorer in the con-

It is interesting to note that Shemonski has yet to score this year and Modzlewski leads the teams with five touchdowns. The Terps have stayed on the ground almost exclusively this year, averaging only six passes a game. But their running attack has been devastating and has been good for an average of 342 yards a game.

All interesting side-light to the game is the personal battle between the two teams. (See UNDEFEATED, page 3)

Survey Shows Employers Satisfied With '50 Grads

Students who get jobs or register with the Placement Bureau do good work, according to their employers, a recent survey of employer opinions of the class of 1950 graduates showed.

The survey, conducted under the direction of J. M. Galloway, head of the University Placement Service, shows that employers were pleased with the work that Carolina grads did. Eighty-six per cent thought that the college training here was more than adequate, while 63 per cent liked the general attitude of the Carolina workers and 26 per cent not only liked this attitude but were enthusiastic about it.

A Carolina education helps an individual to get along with others, according to the survey. Ninety-three per cent didn't need to read Dale Carnegie's books.

Of the 289 employers who were asked to give their opinions, 90 per cent responded. They sent back 264 questionnaires and most answered them in full. The employers surveyed are located in this state and many of the students employed by out of state firms are working in this area.

Those students rated were those receiving an AB or BS degree, those registered with the Placement Bureau or who reported the name and job of their employer, and who were in non-teaching or non-governmental jobs.

Of the 28 per cent who left their first jobs within a year, 60 per cent left to accept other jobs, or for personal reasons, 26 per cent.

Of the 28 per cent who left their first jobs within a year, 79 per cent could get a recommendation and only 5 per cent were fired.

Some of the remarks on the general appraisal performance on the job and on other aspects of college training, were favorable. Some were not. One employer said, "I do not like the attitude of most of your graduates." One out-of-state employer remarked, "We have three UNC men on our permanent sales staff and we think very highly of the University of North Carolina."

Johnson Is Treasurer

Tom Johnson, junior from Fayetteville, is the newly-elected treasurer of Aycock Dorm. Since neither Johnson, Charlie Highsmith, or Lynn Mann, the three candidates for the office, received a majority in the October 2 election, a run-off was scheduled for October 9 between the two high men, Johnson and Highsmith. However, Highsmith a Greensboro boy, conceded to obviate the run-off.

Other dorm officers are:

President Ronald Jones, Vice-Pres. Johnny Mills, Secretary Bob Brehme, IDC Representative Rod Cotten.

Exams Slated For US Jobs

College seniors and graduate students who are interested in jobs with the Federal Government will have an opportunity to take the Junior Management Assistant and Junior Professional Assistant examinations on December 8 in Chapel Hill. Applications must be mailed by November 13.

The Junior Management Assistant examination is for persons with background in public or business administration or the social sciences. Successful candidates will be assigned to work which will prepare them for promotion to higher level administrative, staff, and planning positions.

The Junior Professional Assistant examination is given to recruit young people who display outstanding promise for development into high grade professional workers in the fields of bacteriology, economics, geography, geophysics, social science, and statistics.

The State Department, for example, uses the JMA as part of the selection process in their Foreign Affairs Intern Program.

The examinations are given only once a year, and students graduating in June should apply now.

Further details are available in the Placement Office, 209 South and at any first class Post Office.

Eleven Cadets Given Honor

Eleven Air Force ROTC Cadets have been designated Distinguished Military Students, Lt. Col. Jesse J. Moorhead, Professor of Air Science and Tactics announced here today.

This honor, which allows these Cadets to apply for Regular Air Force Commissions, is awarded for outstanding scholastic and military records in the University.

Belt-Tightening Is Only Way To Win Fight

It's going to take more belt-tightening on the part of this country before "we fool the enemy who confidently expects us to commit financial suicide," J. William Hope, Bridgeport, Conn., newly-elected president of the American Institute of Accountants, asserted here last night.

"Though we may be very comfortable at present, with everything somehow seeming to work out all right—regardless of the calamity howlers—it appears that sound judgment should make it eminently necessary for us all to agree to a cutting down of the frills and wastes in government to pull in our belts, work a little harder, and sacrifice a few of our comforts under an austerity program enforced by a non-political governmental administration," Hope said.

Addressing a banquet session of the 12th annual Symposium on Taxation and Accounting at the Carolina Inn here tonight, Hope was introduced by Allen E. Strand, Greensboro, president of the North Carolina State Board of Certified Public Accountant Examiners. Frank L. Jackson, Mayor of Davidson and former Business Manager of Davidson College, was toastmaster.

The Symposium, which will continue through Saturday noon, is being sponsored at Carolina and Duke by the North Carolina Association of Certified Public Accountants. This morning's and this afternoon's sessions were held at Duke. The final meeting consisting of a tax panel to be conducted by Fred G. Eighorn, Greensboro, and John F. Prescott, Raleigh, both past president of the Association, will be held in Chapel Hill Saturday morning.

Hope, discussing the government's fiscal policy, said "we must realize that the central government has no income of its own that it can use for relief of the states, local governments and individuals; we the people finally pay all of the bills. The re-routing of expenditures from us through the federal government does nothing more than add more costs to the transactions; common sense should tell us how economically unsound this procedure actually is; and the sooner we stop this riding on the Washington merry-go-round snatching at Santa Claus's brass ring, the sooner we will get back on a sound operating basis."

Hope said that the national debt of 256 billion dollars sounds staggering until it is checked against the productive capacity asset which currently yields annually an amount in value approximating the total of the debt.

Cadet Corps Of Maryland Will Appear

The Air Division of the Corps of Cadets of the University of Maryland will march on the field immediately prior to the Maryland-North Carolina game today. The Division, some 2600 strong, will be commended by Cadet Colone Gene M. Chomko, an army veteran who is a senior in the College of Military Science and whose home is in Olyphant, Pennsylvania and has been designated a distinguished military student.

The Corps of Cadets will commence their march-on at 1345. They will first face the visiting stand, execute a salute, about face and at this time the Corps of Sponsors will join their units, participate in a salute to the home stands and join their units in the march-off as the Corps takes their place in the stands.

Polio Head Named Here

For the second consecutive year W. Frank Phillips of Charlotte has been named by Basil O'Connor, President of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, to lead the March of Dimes Campaign in North Carolina.

The campaign opens in the state and nation on January 2 and continues through the 31.

Not Squirrels Again!

A Dorm Residents Terrified As Haints Spook-up Halls

By Joe Raff

Call for Sherlock! What is the mysterious sound erupting from the walls of "A" dormitory? For three years the "Ghost of A" has been ejecting its shrill call day and night. What is the answer?

The sinister menace of solitude breaks the silence of quiet halls and three-occupant rooms throughout the gloom of day and darkness of night.

Strange noises are heard by the boys of "A" dorm and no one as yet has solved the creaking corridor mystery. No one seems to have the answer. Theories are flying hot and heavy. Some "Dick Tracys" have come up with leads, but proof is still lacking to convict the ectoplasmic squeak of haunting the dormitory.

One boy asserts that the origin is in the showerroom and that the ghost is nothing more than an un-oiled hot water faucet. Others say that it is a lazy occupant who continually turns and twists in bed. Still more believe that the uninvited guest is a squirrel en-chambered within the walls and for three years has been trying to gnaw his way to freedom.

What is the answer? We hate to think our 100 per cent "A" dorm ghost is only a rusty knob, or sloth-like student, or even a imprisoned rodent.

Maybe someday we'll solve the caper, but right now we still have our doubts as to whether the sound is an honest-to-goodness cry of a Civil War hero or a cold, unromantic squeak in the water pipes.
