

Gantt Scores Only Teedee For Team

Gaylord Led All Backs In Rushing

The Tar Heels came right back, running from the T, single wing with variations and the buck lateral against Maryland's 8-2-1 defense. The first offense stalled and Wallace put the Terps in a hole with a punt which went out of bounds on the nine. Fred Hefener punted out to Skeet Hesmer who carried the return from the Maryland 49 to the 41.

A Maryland offside penalty took the ball to the 24 and Williams went for a yard and then for four yards wide to the left for a first down on the 19. He then went wide to the right to the 12. Wiess went over left guard to the four and Gantt scored on a wide reverse to the left. Abie Williams kicked the extra point with 8:30 gone in the first quarter.

Maryland's second and winning touchdown came after the Tar Heels blew one of their two fine chances to score in the first half. The Tar Heels opened the second half with a first down on the nine-yard line, made by Gaylord on a spinner. Williams was tossed back to the 24 by Tackle Dick Modzelewski and then Hesmer and Williams missed on passes.

The Terps took over on their own 24 and went 76 yards for the winning score. On second down Scorbath tried to pass, couldn't, and ran to the 30. Chester Hanulak went wide to right with a pitchout to the Maryland 41 and Felton went wide to the left to the Carolina 41.

A plunge by Felton and a Scorbath-Weidensaul pass carried to the 29. Hanulak turned right end to the 19 and Ed Fullerton went wide to the right to the 11 and on the play safety man Williams was injured.

The Terps scored the winning touchdown when Shemonski took a pitchout, ran to the right and threw to Right End Lou Weidensaul in the end zone. Weidensaul had slipped behind Dick Lackey, subbing for Williams. Decker again converted, this time at 5:14 in the second period.

Lackey intercepted a Scorbath pass on the Carolina 32 and ran it back to the Maryland 14 for a first down at the end of the 2nd period, but the Maryland defense stiffened and threw Wallace for two straight losses back to the 20 and a Wissman to Hesmer screen pass gained nothing to end the threat.

The Tar Heels, powered by Gaylord, a sophomore from Charlotte, had first downs on the 27, in the third period, and on the 31, 24, 24, and 13-yard lines in the fourth period.

Williams missed on a pass to Baker from the 27-yard line to end the first scoring threat in the second half. With a first down on the 31, Williams had a pass intercepted by Joe Petruzzo on the 14 and Wissman had a pass intercepted for Baker from the 24 intercepted by Bernie Faloney on the five.

A first down on the 30 after Glen Nickerson recovered his second fumble of the day gained nothing. Wissman fell at the 38 trying to pass and later Baker fell at the 26 after catching a pass. With fourth and four, Wallace could get nothing on a reverse.

The last missed-chance was the previously mentioned one in which Gantt could not hold a fourth down pass from Williams.

Gaylord led all backs in rushing with 85 yards in 18 tries for a 4.7 average. Bob Gantt got 50 yards in 10 tries and Wiess made 38 yards in six carries.

Happy Felton led the Maryland rushers with 74 yards in 12 tries and Ed Modzelewski made 59 yards in 10 trips. Maryland had the edge in rushing, gaining 256 yards to 202 for Carolina. They got 231 yards passing for 135 from Carolina but the Tar Heels led in total first downs, 19 to 14.

Ullman Has Two Books Published

A two volume work, entitled "The Labors of Hercules," by Dr. Berthold L. Ullman, Kenan professor and head of the classics department here, has just been published by a firm in Zurich, Switzerland.

It is the first printed edition of a Latin work written about five and a half centuries ago by the famous Florentine Chancellor, Coluccio Salutati, an important figure in the development of the Italian Renaissance, Dr. Ullman explained.

Coach Carl Admires His Team Greatly

The 1951 Tar Heels are not Coach Carl Snavely's greatest football team, by any stretch of the imagination, but it is doubtful that he ever fielded a combination he admired more or liked better, somewhat on a sheer personal basis.

When his guard is down, the coach will tell you about it. It is obvious that he has a rare, personal, almost sentimental attachment for his boys of '51. In both victory and defeat he stands by them staunchly, championing their talents, spirit and general worthiness.

Maybe it doesn't say so in those biting weekly football letters he gets out to them. Naturally they are critiques with all stops out. But I'm letting the athletes in on the real truth. Their coach thinks they are pretty dog-goned good.

With so many sophomores and freshmen on the bus this year, competition has been unusually keen in many positions. That has made for the best squad spirit in recent years. The players are hustlers, give every day's work the old college try. Professor Snavely has been quick to see it and it's a deal he likes, as you can imagine.

And while the team took a bad licking at dear old Austin, Texas, also was bumped off by Georgia, and Maryland did it today, the players were never inept. Not in Snavely's books. They have been game and organized at all times, and they are not adverse to scrapping. He'll still take them,—win, lose or draw.

Before the season's opener with N. C. State, Coach Snavely said: "This team is going to be all right. They are a fine bunch of boys." After the game he hadn't changed his mind.

On Friday before Georgia, after issuing a somewhat more conservative and restrained forecast for the press, Snavely confided to intimates that he thought the Tar Heels would win. They didn't, but the head man continued to regard his charges fondly and praised them in defeat.

After Friday's workout at Austin, Snavely said: "Our boys will play a good game. I have no doubt about that." As it turned out, they were well creamed by the Longhorns and perhaps the coach was a little perplexed and bewildered over some of the aspects of that contest, but he was quick to defend his Tar Heels.

First Soccer Game Slated For Monday

Carolina Jayvee soccer men will have their first chance to test their toes this year when they meet the N. C. State booters at Raleigh tomorrow at 3 p.m.

Coach Ted Bondi, former All-American from Brockport State Teachers College in New York who is in his first year here, says that although the boys have worked together only one day, they will be fast and aggressive. He revealed that he intends to substitute freely in the contest and that all 19 Jayvees may have their chance before the final whistle blows.

Even though the majority of the players are inexperienced, the team looks promising and should prove troublesome for the five opponents on their schedule for this season, he says.

Deac Tickets

Tickets for the Carolina-Wake Forest game next Saturday will be on sale Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week for one dollar and the correct page from a student athletic passbook. ID cards must accompany pass books.

Exchanges for tickets will cease at 5 p.m. Wednesday and all tickets purchased after that will cost the regular price of $3.50.

Students may purchase guest tickets at the same time the exchange is made for the price of $3.50.

DICK WEISS, halfback for the Tar Heels, set up the first and only touchdown for the Tar Heels yesterday against Maryland when he took the ball on the 12-yard line and carried to the four. Bob Gantt, taking over there, carried across the stripe for the tally. Weiss carried the ball six times during the game for an average of 6.3 yards per time. He led the team in average yards but came third in the total yardage gained.

"He always makes such a production of putting in the Angostura*."
