back on the team. In addition, he will do the punting.

Therefore the Irish backfield will contain a freshman, two sophomores, and a junior in what Leahy calls his "teen-agers." The other sophomore is fullback Neil Worden, a powerful plunger who leads the team in yards gained with 448. He has average 3.8 yards in 118 carries.

The "old man" in the backfield is quarterback John Mazur. Mazur, a six two inch, 198 pounder, follows the old Notre Dame tradition of fine quarterbacking. He is a fine faker in the T-formation and its variations and a good passer. He has completed 42 of 92 passes for 600 yards and five touchdowns.

Notre Dame has a team which is at least as dependent on inexperienced players as Carolina, but it has responded well and has won five of seven games.

Leahy, who brought in the huddle formation that Carolina has adopted, has a new offensive wrinkle this year—the I-formation. He has used the formation only a few times in each game, but it has thrown the opposition defense off so well that it has been a consistent long gainer.

The Tar Heels are expected to use every new trick they can produce to stop the Irish and put an end to their own losing streak. In addition, a win would help call off the wolves who are after Coach Snavelly.

The starting backfield for Carolina will have four veterans: Frank Wissman at tailback, Dick Wiess at fullback, Bob Gantt at wingback, and Skeet Hesmer at blocking back. Wissman, whose fourth quarter play against Virginia last week was very good, will probably handle most of the offense and is expected to do more passing than Carolina has used in the past weeks. He has bettered Mazur in completion averages with 56 percent average to 45 by Mazur. Connie Gravitte and Larry Parker will do most of the relief at this position.

Wiess, Carolina's top ground-gainer with 365 yards and a 4-1 average, will be relieved by sophomore John Gaylord. With George Foti out at blockingback, Van Weatherspoon and Red Patterson will spell Hesmer. Gantt will be relieved by Jackie Cooke, who has played very little this year.

JOHN LATTNER, WHOSE AVERAGE gain of 6.4 is tops on the Notre Dame team, will start in place of regular right halfback Billy Barrett, who will miss the game due to a sprained ankle. The sophomore star from Chicago is probably the most versatile back on the team and is a fine linebacker.

Bud Wallace, and Tom Adler, a pair of converted backs who did well at end last week in a new experiment, will again start at the flanks. Wallace is the team's top receiver with 12 catches going for 184 yards and two scores. Adler, who had not played before last week, caught three passes.

The remaining offensive team will have Dalt Ruffin and Tom Higgins at the tackles, Doc Venters and Dick Gruver at the guards, and Andy Miketa at center.

Notre Dame's fine line will be lead by Captain Jim Mutscheller, the vastly underrated right end whose two touchdown passes beat Carolina 14-7, last year. Mutscheller weighs 197 pounds and another heavy veteran Chet Ostrowski, holds down the other end. Bob Toneff, a 220-pounder who has received considerable All-America mention, plays right and 210-pounder Fred Poehler is the left tackle. Virgil Bardash and Tom Seamen are the guards and 222 pound Art Hunter is the center.

Leahy Adds New Wrinkle, I-Formation, To Irish Offense

Notre Dame Coach Frank Leahy, whose T-formation has been the model for coaches all over the country, has come up with a new wrinkle in his offensive game which has been good for a long gain or a score almost every time it has been used this year.

The new formation is the I-formation, in which all four backs line up perpendicular to the center. This is the latest of many new gimmicks produced by the Irish coach. In the past he has had the crossed T and double quarterback, now seldom used, and the new huddle formation, adopted by Carolina and almost all other teams in the country.

The I-formation has been used sparingly—just often enough to throw the opposition and give the fans and writers a thrill. The quarterback lines up behind the center in the usual T position and behind him in a single file are

The quarterback gets the ball from the center, spins and either hands off or fakes to mates who rush by him to the left and right. Fake runs always precede passes.

Red Smith of the New York Herald-Tribune quoted Leahy as follows:

A questioner asked Leahy if critics would say the system had no outside strength. "They would," he answered. "But if you always fake a line thrust first, don't the backersup have to commit themselves at the threatened points, either leaving the middle open or setting up pitchouts?" "I hope so," Leahy said.

Booters Play Terps Monday

Coach Alan Moore's Carolina soccer team takes on Maryland's Terps here Monday in its final match of the season.

The Tar Heels have compiled a season's record of four wins, three losses and a tie. In the Southern Conference standings the Tar Heels have won three matches, lost one and tied one.

The game will have an important bearing on the conference race, which finds the Terps, defending champions, again leading. Duke follows Maryland with only one defeat, while Carolina and State both have a defeat and a tie.
