NUMBER 64

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1951

LULONG OGBURN, Miss North Carolina of 1951, lays on a stretcher outside of a Durham supper club after having been "murdered" by George Grune as a preliminary to the annual moot trial sponsored by Phi Alpha Delta law fraternity. Bending over the "body" are Tommy Medlin, her date, and Punchy Grimes of The Daily Tar Heel.

Mock Murder Trial Set To Commence Tomorrow

By Bill "Punchy" Grimes

George Grune, Duke football player, will go on trial for his life, tomorrow morning, charged with murdering LuLong Ogburn, Miss North Carolina of 1951, in a Durham supper club. The trial and sentence, however, will be as fake as was the stabbing of the beauty queen.

Tim Valentine, who will act as one of the five assistant district attorneys, reported that the Durham grand jury has indicted Grune on a charge of first degree murder.

Group Names New Leader

George Freeman, senior pre-law student from Raleigh, was chosen Chairman of the Men's Honor Council last night to succeed Allan Milledge, who will graduate from the University next week.

Elected to fill the post of clerk, which Freeman vacated to assume the chairmanship, was Joe Privott of Edenton.

Correction

The Daily Tar Heel will resume publication January 3, next January 4 as stated in yesterday's paper. This is the first day of classes for the winter quarter.

All staffers, old and new, are asked to return to school one day early to put out the first issue.

The deadlines for that issue will be the same as previous, 3:30 p.m. the afternoon before publication.

Faculty Gives Varied Views On Dean Issue

More opinions from faculty members have been voiced on the subject of the appointment of Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

In yesterday's newspaper it was reported that Dean of the General College Corydon P. Spruill had been suggested as a candidate to fill the post but that some University faculty members had opposed the suggestion on the grounds that Spruill was a "commerce" man.

However this is not the complete case, according to some faculty sources. Last spring when a move was made to make foreign languages (basic elements in the general liberal educational philosophy) elective instead of required, Spruill supported the liberal arts courses and maintained that they should be required.

Spruill, who graduated in 1920 from the University and went to Oxford on a Rhodes scholarship where he received a bachelor of literature degree, has always believed in a liberal education, it is reported.

Economics is considered an integral part of the liberal arts school. Spruill is a professor in the department of economics and is also a professor of economics in the business administration school.

Appointment of the post was originally planned to be made by January, Chancellor Robert B. House had indicated, but because a study committee to define the duties of the arts and sciences dean was organized and other reasons the appointment has been delayed.

House has been in Florida with other University officials attending the annual Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools convention. He is expected to be at work in his office today.

Nurses Given Nix On Hostess Jobs

Dean Kemble, head of the nursing school, yesterday disapproved a plan for six freshmen nurses to serve as hostesses in the Pine room of Lenoir Hall.

The nurses were to serve as hostesses in the afternoons this week. The plan was to start as an experiment and if it proved successful would have been continued next quarter.

Dean Kemble in explaining to the manager of the Pine room said she thought the girls had enough work to do without acting as hostesses there.

The girls would have entertained the other students who wished to dance or talk.

UNC Employee Faces Indictment For Malpractices

A prominent employee may be indicted Monday for using University labor and materials in the construction of his home, the Daily Tar Heel learned yesterday.

District Solicitor William Murdock said in Durham yesterday that he will be in Chapel Hill today to confer with University officials on the matter.

Already in Murdock's hands is a report from the State Bureau of Investigation, which reportedly has been investigating the alleged misuse of University property for the past few weeks.

Murdock said that if the additional evidence expected to be obtained tomorrow so warrants, he will present the case to the Orange County Grand Jury when the Superior Court convenes in Hillsboro Monday.

RALEIGH, December 6—The State Bureau of Investigation tonight confirmed reports that it has been "looking into" a case of alleged misuse of State properties in Chapel Hill.

They would give no further details of the incident, said to involve a supervisor at the University of North Carolina.

Students Leaving UNC Must Order Yacks Now

Students graduating this quarter or leaving school as the result of an invitation to join Uncle Sam and his buddies, will have to order their 1952 Yacks today if they want to be sure to receive one when they are published.

Editor Sue Lindsey said yesterday the number of Yacks were set and students not here all three quarters could not be assured of a copy unless they ordered one now.

Students ordering a Yack, must pay $1.75 for each quarter they are not in school and $.75 to cover mailing charges.

Ordinarily, the student pays this amount in block fees at the beginning of each quarter, Editor Lindsey said.

Students must place their order in the Yack office on second floor Graham Memorial today and the Yacks will be mailed to them when they are distributed next Spring.

Selden To Read 'Christmas Carol'

Prof. Samuel Selden, director of the Carolina Playmakers, who will read Dickens' famous "Christmas Carol" at a program in the Playmakers Theater at Chapel Hill Sunday night at 8 o'clock.

The program will also include collections for the Orange County Empty Stocking Fund to provide money, clothing, food and toys to needy children on Christmas day.
