

Called Liar

Ken Barton Praised; Attacked By Roberts

Student Party candidate for president Ken Barton was both attacked and praised yesterday.

Robert Pace who recently more or less withdrew from the presidential race said he was throwing his support to Barton; and UP chairman Biff Roberts call the SP nominee a liar.

Pace, who was forced to withdraw due to a provision in the elections law, said he would support Barton. He praised Barton's "personal honesty and sincerity."

Barton's actions, Pace said, "show that he is interested not in Ken Barton but in a better and more wholesome self-governing student community." Pace said he made his decision to support Barton after considering the issues in the campaign.

"The campaign of the University Party," Pace asserted, is just plain disgusting and their McCarthy tactics have no place on this campus. I cannot condone such actions and maintain my self-respect."

University Party chairman Biff Roberts, meanwhile, charged Barton with making "some outright lies." Roberts said it was "a shame that a person who uses such cheap tactics should be allowed to run for president."

Roberts objected specifically to Barton's statement to The Daily Tar Heel on Sunday. Barton said then that the recent action of (See ROBERTS, Page 6)

Horton Charges Mud Slung To Obsure Issues

Ham Horton, UP nominee for president, yesterday charged that his opposition had obscured the issues of the campaign by "simple mud-slinging and . . . trying to divide the student body falsely along fraternity non-fraternity lines."

This was done, Horton said, "to divert attention from the three issues of the campaign."

He listed the issues as "(1) the clique and not the students rule student government, (2) the present SP administration has accomplished nothing constructive for the student body, and (3) SP

ALL SMILES. Independent Ted Frankel yesterday was awaiting hopefully the results of Wednesday's election. He is running for the vice presidency (Legislature speaker).

MAX BALLINGER, running independently for the sophomore class presidency, promises to "rejuvenate the office and use it to help re-install some of the lost Carolina spirit."

Woman Industrial Relations Pioneer Going To England

by Jody Levey

White-haired vivacious Miss Mary B. Gilson, one of the few women pioneers in the field of industrial relations, will leave this week for an extended trip abroad.

She will spend most of her eight months away from the United States visiting friends in England. Since this is her first trip there since 1936, she is eager to observe changes and trends in the British economy she became so familiar with while working there.

Miss Gilson will return to America in October after a trip to Finland.

Greatly interested in activities at the University, Miss Gilson probably is best known to the campus at large by her occasional letters to The Daily Tar Heel on a wide range of student subjects.

She chatted and smiled during an interview and spoke warmly of the present day college curri-

A member of the Elections Board will be in the Student Government offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial from 4 until 6 o'clock today to accept the accounts.

Candidates for all offices, whether opposed or not, must hand in a record of expenses. If no expenses have been incurred the candidates must hand in a signed statement to that effect before the deadline.

Judiciary Change Endorsed By UP, SP, Council Chairmen

Would Revamp Setup of Campus Courts; Clarify All Procedure

The chairmen of the three honor councils and both campus political parties yesterday endorsed the constitutional judiciary amendment to be voted on in tomorrow's election.

Larry Botto, Student council chairman; Joyce Evans, Women's council chairman; George Freeman, Men's council chairman; Biff Roberts, University party chairman, and Dave Kerley, Student party chairman, endorsed the following statement (Botto goes into detail on today's editorial page):

"For many years our judiciary system has been groping around not sure exactly from whence it derives its powers or in what spheres it should use them. The main difficulty has been the relationship of the Student council to the whole of student government, and to the other courts. Is it the 'supreme court' and if so what procedures should it follow?

"First, the amendment definitely establishes the Student council as the supreme guardian of the student constitution; all of the agencies of student government are responsible to it for adhering to the student constitution. Secondly, the appeal from the lower courts is clarified and is definitely established on the solid ground of constitutional rights.

"Also, the membership of the Student council is made to include a graduate student (since the student council has constitutional authority over the Law and Medical courts, they should have representation) and finally, the section of the student constitution on offenses and punishments is reworded and put into plain language.

"The amendment is a long needed clarification of the procedural structure of our Honor System and should merit the close attention of all students. It will appear on a special ballot in the general election."

Student Disputes News Story

J. Kenneth Lee, Negro law student here, yesterday took issue with a Greensboro Daily News story which said he denied the practice of racial bias in the UNC Law school.

He referred to a story in Monday's Daily News which was an account of his talk at a meeting there Sunday opening the NAACP's local membership drive. The Greensboro paper said in part:

"J. Kenneth Lee, Negro law student at the University of North Carolina, yesterday denied reports that the law school faculty is deliberately trying to 'funk out' Negro students.

"He added that deficiencies in previous education made the course harder for Negroes. He described the law school (UNC) as "vastly superior" to the Negro law school at North Carolina college in Durham.

"Lee placed the major blame for discrimination against Negroes on the Negro himself.

"Lee cited the indifference and fear which prevents Negroes from using their political, economic, and legal power to secure equal rights . . ."

Lee told The Daily Tar Heel in a statement:

"I did not understand that the issue of discrimination or non-discrimination at UNC was in any (See STUDENT, Page 6)

Mental Wizard, Polgar, To Be Here Next Week

Fabulous Dr. Franz Polgar, the mental wizard, returns to Memorial Hall on Tuesday, April 15, 1952, at 8:00 p. m., with his eye-opening "Miracles of the Mind" program featuring feats of memory, hypnotism, and mental telepathy.

Presented under the auspices of the Student Entertainment Committee, "America's greatest one-man show" is the fourth in a series of presentations to be brought to the campus this year. Dr. Polgar performed here to capacity audiences in 1949 and 1950, and has been brought back by popular demand. Billed as a man who can read minds, memorize entire magazines at a single sitting, and hypnotize many persons simultaneously, he has done just that to amazed and delighted audiences the world over.
