NEWS IN BRIEF

COLUMBUS, Ohio—More than 1,200 convicts at state prison, apparently spurred by Illinois felons, made this correctional institution a mass of flame last night by setting fire to virtually every building within the prison walls. Only one guard was reported held hostage, however, and no deaths were reported. The warden said the prisoners were "completely out of our control." The guards have orders to fire with machine-guns if necessary, the warden added.

CHESTER, Ill.—Unruly convicts ended their four-day rebellion at Menard State Prison yesterday and released their seven hostages before Gov. Adlai Stevenson carried out plans for making a personal appeal to them. The convicts capitulated after an ultimatum was delivered by Michael Seyfrit, state director of public safety.

EN ROUTE WITH EISENHOWER—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower headed for Chicago by plane yesterday after three hard-driving days in New York where he said, in a climactic speech, the Democrats are trying to destroy him with a super-smeat. "They have made wild charges, spread vile rumors, and played fast and loose with the truth," he said.

WASHINGTON—The great campaign debate over sending South Koreans into the line to replace American soldiers in Korea mushroomed like an atomic explosion yesterday. The Defense Department countered mounting

SUAB Votes Continuation Of Film Series

Responding to student requests, the Student Union Activities Board has voted to continue its series of renowned movies.

The next series will consist of two films, "Paisan" and "Orpheus."

The first film, "Paisan," directed by Roberto Rosellini, will be shown Nov. 19. This is the only picture that will be shown on Wednesday rather than Thursday night.

"Paisan" is the sequel to "Open City" made by the same director in 1945. A 1946 picture, "Paisan" shows the impact of war on a native population and a foreign soldiery. Beginning with the landing in Sicily the film follows the American and British armies through the invasion and liberation.

The majority of the dialogue is in English but there are English sub-titles for the German and Italian speeches.

This motion picture was winner of first prize awards at Cannes, Brussels and Venice Film Festivals. Life magazine writes about the film, "The best picture since V-E Day about Americans in World War II."

The second picture, "Orpheus," is a modern 1949 version of the Greek legend by the same title.

Jean Cocteau uses surrealist cinema techniques to create this psychological study of death. Three motorcycle riders as the three fates show the type of modern twist Cocteau has put in his film. "Orpheus" in the film goes into the underworld to plead for the fate of his wife. Death, as a princess is in love with him and would have him forget his dying wife whose existence depends upon his behavior in the nether world.

Easily readable sub-titles are used to supplement the French dialogue.

Series subscriptions will be sold beginning Nov. 6 at the main office in Graham Memorial. No individual tickets can be sold. The series price is 60 cents.

Lost: Pair Of Contact Lenses

Dartmouth Fakes News On Befuddled Harvard

Special to THE DAILY TAR HEEL. CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 31—An infamous deed, perpetrated recently by young journalists, has the Harvard University faculty and administration in a state of confusion.

The hocus-pocus went on around 5:30 in the morning when a paper purporting to be the usual copy of the "Harvard Crimson" was circulated around all the Harvard dormitories, the Business School, the Graduate School of Design and some Law School Dorms.

The catch was that the paper was a fake arranged by the staff of The Dartmouth in Hanover, N. H. Typical sample of its contents was: Lost: one (1) pair of contact lenses belonging to a desperate football star named Dick Clasby; misplaced somewhere on revamped Soldier's Field, which has been condemned as structurally unsafe. In order to be sure that no one missed the bigger, better Crimson, hawkers sold the parody copies in Harvard Square and in parking lots outside Soldier's Field to visiting alumni and friends who had not yet learned of the hoax.

At Radcliffe College and at Wellesley, the jokers did their best to induce a mob scene by switching the Crimson in time for the regular newsgirls to deliver the fakes.

Dartmouth had been so successful that Harvard had not come out of the fog by late afternoon. Spies from the interior reported that many members of the University were still laboring under the hoax.

Copies also found their way into the administration buildings and in the home of University President James Conant.

Holsten Says Service Now Is Different

By John Jamison

"The Armed Forces aren't like they used to be," said Assistant Dean of Students Roy Holsten yesterday, pondering his recently completed tour of Lackland Air Force Base at San Antonio, Texas.

"The boys no longer stand nude in a supply line waiting to be issued 150 pounds of gear which doesn't fit. Now their dignity is spared, the uniforms fit, and the equipment is carried by truck to the recruits' barracks."

Holsten and Col. F. C. Shepard, military affairs adviser here, just returned from the three-day tour with much praise for the completely new training philosophy being used by the Air Force.

"For instance, the boys are given a series of eight lectures on citizenship, with emphasis on the processes of government," Holsten said. "They benefit from a new policy of multiple management, whereby they can act as a group to have their petitions considered and answered by their superiors."

Holsten and Shepard were among 19 North Carolinians invited by the Air Force to inspect facilities and training methods at Lackland. The Tar Heel entourage on one occasion met in an auditorium with several hundred service men and women from North Carolina. After a brief "pep rally," the service people expressed "great appreciation for the interest shown by the folks at home."

The civilian group was made up of persons in a position to advise young men and women on questions about the Air Force. Representatives were present from various state newspapers, radio stations, UNC, Woman's College, Duke, the Agricultural and Technical College at Greensboro and North Carolina College at Durham.

COL. LAWRENCE WESTBROOK, above, has been fired from the Democratic National Committee by National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell, in Washington, for participating in negotiation of a contract with the United States Government.

Harry Davis, associate director of the Playmakers, will stage this delightful farce comedy of small-town corruption, which has been adapted for the American stage by John Anderson. The play requires a cast of 15 men and four women. For those interested in reading the script in advance, copies are available in the Reserve Reading Room of the University library.

Public Health Officials Here For Six Days

Ten public health officials of Western Germany are here to spend six days observing the work of the School of Public Health.

Now on a tour of the United States, the doctors will visit a number of schools of public health and last week they were guests of the American Public Health Association in Cleveland.

The group visited the School of Public Health, Memorial Hospital, and other units of the Division of Health Affairs Thursday morning. They attended seminars and observed laboratories that afternoon. Thursday night they were guests of individual members of the public health faculty.

Yesterday morning they studied field training in public health and attended a seminar on public health education in the afternoon. They were luncheon guests of University administrative officials.

This morning conferences are scheduled on residency training in public health, and this afternoon they will attend a football game.

Dean E. G. McGavran of the School of Public Health will give a reception at his home tomorrow afternoon for the German doctors and faculty members. That night the group will attend the current show, "Rocket to Mars," in the Morehead Planetarium.

Monday morning the doctors will visit the Durham tobacco market and inspect the cigarette factories and that afternoon they will accompany members of the Health Education Workshop on a field trip. Dr. John Wright of the School of Public Health will entertain them at his home that night.

Seminars on experimental medicine and research and on sanitary - engineering will occupy Tuesday morning's program, and that afternoon Dean McGavran and public health faculty will join in giving the visitors a summary of the work of the School.

Members of the group include Dr. Fritz H. Hoeffken, Rottwil, Germany; Dr. Arthur B. Unger, Wuerttemberg-Baden; Dr. Joseph Hunerbein, Westphalia; Dr. Hans von Behring, State of Hesse; Dr. Johann J. Buecken, State of Nordrheinland-Westfalen; Dr. Paul Felix Piechowski, Berlin; Dr. Heinz P. Reuter, Schleswig-Holstein; Dr. Alois Schmitz, Land of Rheinland-Pfalz; Dr. Josef M. Mamacher, Landesbezirk Baden, and Dr. Emil H. Gruel, Bremen.

Dorms May Gain New Jurisdiction

Men's dormitories soon may have wider jurisdiction over conduct of their residents.

The Interdormitory Council Court in a recent meeting discussed the question of making the dormitories responsible for dorm as a whole. Chairman Dick Gamble appointed a committee to draw up a sample amendment. A committee also was appointed to rewrite the bylaws of the court.

Newman And Kozar Meet At Knoxville

Carolina Frosh Expected To Pass UNC To Victory

By Biff Roberts

DAILY TAR HEEL SPORTS EDITOR. KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 31—Carolina's Tar Heels, still wandering in a victory forest of virgin timber, will try to fell their first victim of the season here tomorrow at 2 o'clock when they meet Tennessee at Shields-Watkins Field.

Tabbed 20-point underdogs and already cut down by their first three opponents, the Tar Heels

Pos.	North Carolina
LE	Kokornick
LT	Opitz
LG	Foltz
C	Mullens
RG	Patterson
RT	Yarborough
RE	Walter
QB	Newman
LH	Parker
RH	Port
FB	Wallace

will probably rely on the passing arm of quarterback Marshall Newman to bring them the win—their first in four years over the Volunteers.

Newman has passed for three of Carolina's touchdowns this year and it was his passing which carried the Carolina offense in last Saturday's loss to Notre Dame, 34-14.

But for Newman to get a chance to throw the ball the Tar Heels will have the heroic task of holding off a strong Tennessee defensive line which has held its opponents to three touchdowns and 20 points in five games.

The Vols defense is led by 237-pound Doug Atkins who has been the chief impediment in the opposition's offense all season. The line has held the first five teams to a total of 543 yards from scrimmage. The Volunteers, on the other hand, have gained 1263, running from the single-wing attack.

In their first five games the Vols have compiled an impressive record, but two of the games were against schools beneath the Tennessee class.

Tennessee opened the season with a close 14-7 win over Mississippi State. Then, when favored by one touchdown, the Vols lost their only game of the season, 7-0, to Duke at Durham. The next game found them overcoming little Chattanooga, 26-6.

Against Alabama the Vols made probably their best showing of the year by blanking the Crimson Tide, 20-0. It was in this game that sophomore tailback Jimmy Wade returned to the lineup after an injury and sparked the Tennessee offense out of its lethargy.

Since that game Wade has been the key to the offense and, although he didn't play in much of last week's slaughter of Wofford, 50-0, Coach Bob Neyland will count on him to keep the offense going today.

The Tennessee backfield is no different from the usual powerful Neyland teams. With Wade at halfback and Andy Kozar at fullback, Coach Neyland has an inside-outside combination that will be hard to stop.

Kozar has been the most consistent gainer for the Vols and has the distinction of not being thrown for a loss on any play this year. He has carried the ball 74 times and gained 415 yards for an average of 5.6 yards every (See PARKER, page 3)

Staff Meeting

There will be a Daily Tar Heel staff meeting Monday at 4:30 in the newsroom.

India To Undergo Vast Change In Next 5 Years, Says Student

By Tom Parramore

"I can assure you that in the next five years, India will be a very different country from that of the past."

This is the optimistic outlook of Dr. B. A. Sreenivasa Iyengar, one of the four speakers at Thursday night's YMCA Super Forum. Dr. Iyengar's principle topic was "Public Health in India," which he approached by giving a summary of the main steps taken toward a public health program since 1859.

Well qualified to talk on this subject, Dr. Iyengar is in charge of the public health department of the state of Mysore, India.

According to Dr. Iyengar, the killers of the past, malaria and plague, are coming under control. "The present state of public health in India is not as bad as some people believe," he said.

Other speakers on the program were Abdul Raszak Adamjee of Pakistan, and K. V. Ramachandran and K. C. Sreedharan, both of India. The group concerned itself chiefly with social and economic conditions in the countries, but also commented on many physical and spiritual aspects.

Adamjee spoke on Pakistan's present economic situation. "The occupation of the people is mostly agricultural," he said. Pakistan's chief exports, according to Adamjee, are jute, cotton, hides and skins. Most of (See INDIA, page 4)
