

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Monday, during the school year, and during the official summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates mailed $4 per year, $1.50 per quarter; delivered, $6 and $2.25 per quarter.

Interim Editorial Board: ROLFE NEILL, BEV BAYLOR, SUE BURRESS
Managing Editor: JIM SCHENCK
Business Manager: BIFF ROBERTS
News Ed. Jody Levey
Sub. Mgr. Carolyn Reichard
Art. Adv. Mgr. Delaine Bradsher
Natl. Adv. Mgr. Wallace Pruden
News Staff: Bob Slough, John Jamison, Punchy (Billy) Grimes, Louis Kraus, Jerry Recco, Tom Parramore, Alice Chapman, Dixon Wallace, Tony Burke, Jean Lynn, Tish Rodman, Tom Neal Jr.
Sports Staff: Vandy Buckalew, Paul Cheney, Melvin Lang, Everett Parker, Charlie Dunn.
Secretary, Staff: Peppy Jean Goode, Janie Bugg, Alice Hinds.
Advertising Staff: Buzzy Sull, Judy Taylor, Joyce Jowdy, Bozy Sugg, Nancy Perryman.
Photographers: Cornell Wright, Bill Stonestreet, Ruffin Woody.
Night Editor for this issue: Rolfe Neill

Tommy Sumner
VITRIOL

I like 'almost everybody; Ike, and myself too.'

I intend to vote for Ike in the full knowledge that under the present block voting system of the electoral college my vote will probably be ignored. Republicans are in a minority in North Carolina and it is only through the action of those Democrats who vote for men and ideas rather than labels that our state will vote for Eisenhower.

Eisenhower has qualifications for the job which Stevenson cannot approach. It is Eisenhower, not Stevenson, who has spent months in contact with our allies in Europe coming to know the situation and conflicts there first hand.

It is he who has the military knowledge to meet the situation of Korea.

It is he who has the intimate acquaintance with the needs of the Armed Services necessary to cope with the staggering problem of balancing economy with security in this, the most expensive of the activities of the federal government.

It is he who is known and respected by our allies and known and feared by our enemies.

I like Ike, the No Deal Candidate.

I don't like Wayne Morse who deserted the party because he couldn't run the show.

I don't like Joe McCarthy who has been so careless with his privileges; however it is up to the people whom he represents to decide whether he shall continue to represent them. Certainly he is no worse than the two Tamadages of Georgia or a certain former senator from Missouri.

I don't like secret treaties or "agreements" which are kept secret for the security of the Democratic Party instead of the security of the nation, but which place the nation in peril.

I don't like the continual synthesis of international crises to provide excuses to keep the party in power, raise taxes, deliver ever increasing power into the hands of the president, and to enlarge the Federal payroll to make more people economically dependent on keeping the Democrats in power.

I don't like the foreign service gravy train being built up and removed from Civil Service.

I don't like an administration which not only fails to clean out corruption but deliberately shields it from investigation.

I don't like a party ignoring the clear preference for Estes Kefauver on the part of the people and nominating the candidate of the bosses.

I don't like a foreign policy which decides to give up Korea to Communism and later reverses itself in order to fight a war. I find this especially distasteful when it is done in order to provide an inflationary substitute for prosperity. I don't like the Defense Bonds I bought being worth fifty cents on the dollar.

A democracy is government controlled by the people.

A republic is democracy controlled by the people through their duly selected representatives.

I like democracy, I like this republic; I don't like the totalitarianism that another twenty years of "Trumanism" will bring. The Constitution is no protection then; it will be replaced by the exercise of "Inherent Powers."

The Riddle Of Democracy

The Greeks had a word for it. Our forefathers found a use for it. The Russians have no use for it. And so many Americans have no time for it.

Every American is a stockholder in a tremendous corporation called Democracy. His vote is his share in the American way of life which pays dividends of freedom and the rights of the individual.

Each stockholder must take stock of the corporation's position and exercise his responsibility to protect his most valuable investment. And Democracy can make no allowances for risk.

The ballot well-used is one of the most powerful weapons of peace and self-rule in the world. On the other hand, a ballot misused or unused can be as disastrous as a fourth quarter fumble. Don't drop the ballot and expect a teammate to carry on for you. Every single member of this team has got to get on the ball and play his part.

When you put an X in the square, you're helping to cross out the possibility of an ex-Democratic nation. Don't give the Russians a red letter day by failing to write down your choice next Tuesday.

We'd like to see more than 50 per cent of the population at the polls next week. It only takes a few minutes to insure years of time that we can use as we see fit.

VOTE TODAY SO THAT YOU CAN BE SURE OF A VOTE TOMORROW.

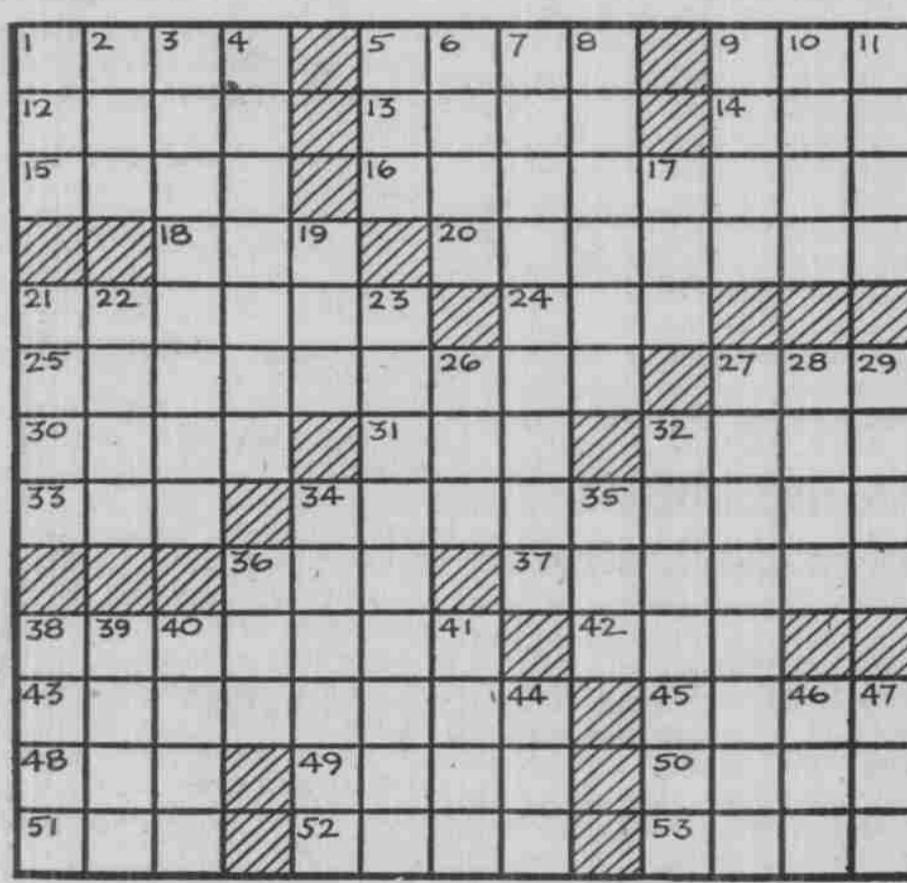

DON'T BE REMOTE WITH YOUR VOTE

Vanishing

We pointed out in THE DAILY TAR HEEL earlier in the fall that the organization of SUAB was an indication of vanishing student "apathy." The cooperation of the students with the leaders of that organization is an even stronger indication.

Tuesday night in Graham Memorial John Sanders, President of the Young Democrats, and Ham Horton, representing the Students for Eisenhower, started the ball rolling for a YWCA sponsored round-table discussion of the forthcoming national election. Both speakers asserted their viewpoints and then questions were fired from the participants (approximately 50 students). The discussion on the whole proved valuable and what is more important, indicative of the fact that there are SOME students who feel keenly their responsibilities as voters.

We consider the interest shown in the discussion another indication of vanishing "student apathy" and encourage more and more of the same.

1-26

HORIZONTAL

- cavil
- feminine name
- hostel
- avow
- fly aloft
- female deer
- take out
- hispid (Bot.)
- Luzon Negrito
- hardened
- design
- island (Fr.)
- holds
- likely
- footless animal
- fish eggs
- plant of lily family
- adult males
- non-metrical hymns to be chanted
- eagle
- winter ermines
- hide
- cunning
- something precious
- division of the calendar
- despicable person
- medley
- woody plant
- social work gathering
- being
- division of the calendar
- ventilate
- salutation
- kindship
- feign
- S-shaped curve
- maiden
- pithy sayings
- strict disciplinarians
- old
- per
- targe
- adulation
- sepal pens
- rides anile
- prides crises
- runes cadet
- egg told clip
- lira reeve
- levantine ton
- olive mis orc
- bleed sot eye
- speed
- er
- er
- ade
- er
- eras read map
- rides anile
- prides crises
- runes cadet
- egg told clip
- lira reeve
- levantine ton
- olive mis orc
- bleed sot eye

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

COP

OLD

SPEED

ERR

PER

TARGE

ADE

ADULATION

SEPAL

PENS

ERAS

READ

MAP

VERTICAL

- despicable person
- salutation
- kinship
- feign
- S-shaped curve
- maiden
- pithy sayings
- strict disciplinarians
- air spirits
- heathen god
- nozzle
- want
- to the right
- insect
- Mohammedan cleric
- back of neck
- venomous spider
- electrified particle
- assuagers
- bard
- diminutive for Teresa
- attendant
- isomeric compound
- possessive pronoun
- epoch
- pierce
- city in Pennsylvania
- wax
- daughter of Nyx
- go'less of Gavin
- bronze money
- female ruff

V
O
T
E

Average time of solution: 25 minutes.

Distributed by King Features Syndicate

"Naughty Naughty"

© 1952 POST-HALL SYNDICATE

Drew Pearson

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

WASHINGTON—During the latter years of his life, Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, Republican, was troubled with severe headaches from the brain tumor which eventually brought his death.

Dropping in to see him late one afternoon, it was obvious Vandenberg was not feeling well and I remarked on it. He replied,

"These headaches aren't half as bad as those given me by some of my Republican colleagues in the Senate."

Vandenberg was then in the middle of his fight to put across appropriations for the Marshall plan, and went on to explain that almost every night Republican isolationist Senators were meeting privately to hatch their strategy against him. These Senators he named as Jenner of Indiana, Kem of Missouri, Watkins of Utah, McCarthy of Wisconsin, Ecton of Montana, Cain of Washington, and Bricker of Ohio.

Vandenberg, who was cooperating with the Democrats on foreign policy in the same way I described earlier Republican Secretaries of State Frank B. Kellogg and Henry L. Stimson as cooperating with Democratic Senators, finally won the Marshall Plan battle.

And in recognition of that service, Vandenberg's close friend, Paul Hoffman, a Republican and then head of Studebaker, was made top Marshall Plan administrator. It was a wise choice.

No factor played a greater part in stopping the march of Communism in Western Europe than the Marshall Plan. And I can say this as one who has been to Europe many times before and since the Marshall Plan, who helped end the paralyzing shipping strike at Le Havre with a load of friendship train food in the dark winter of 1947, who toured through railroad stations pockmarked with bullets from Communist rioting, and paraded through streets carrying American food before crowds which only a short time before had cheered the Communists.

For this stopping of Communism, Vandenberg, Hoffman, and the authors of the Marshall Plan deserve great credit. Paul Hoffman left the Marshall Plan to join the Ford Foundation and to head up the Citizens for Eisenhower Committee. Believing that Eisenhower presented the best chance of retaining an even-keeled, non-partisan foreign policy, Hoffman was instrumental in getting the General nominated.

Since then, and since Eisenhower has embraced those same Senators who caused Vandenberg headaches, Hoffman has been strangely silent. So also has Gen. Omar Bradley, who stormed the Normandy beachheads and, along with General Patton, bore the brunt of the advance through France and Germany. Once strong for Ike, Bradley has changed his mind.

The two Southern states are Florida and Virginia. In Florida, the GOP poll as of Oct. 22 showed Ike 50 per cent; Stevenson 45 per cent; 5 per cent undecided.

Eisenhower, of course, is taking a calculated risk. He is risking a savage partisan attack on foreign policy, both in Korea, and Europe, on the theory that after he wins he can crack the whip over the isolationist Senators of his own party and keep them in line.

This will probably work for the first two years. But after the patronage runs out, after the jobs are filled, then the Maverick isolationists of the GOP will be just as difficult for Eisenhower as they were for Vandenberg.

By and large history has shown, as Frank B. Kellogg and Henry L. Stimson so well knew, that Republican Presidents get better cooperation from Democratic Senators than they get from their own party.

When General Eisenhower first decided to invade the South, GOP Chairman Summerfield cautioned: "The only time to go south is in the winter."

A secret Republican poll now indicates that Summerfield was right. It states: "It is now doubtful whether General Eisenhower will be able to carry more than two states in the South . . . best information available shows that Eisenhower's popularity reached its highest during the period Oct. 1-15."

The two Southern states are Florida and Virginia. In Florida, the GOP poll as of Oct. 22 showed Ike 48 per cent, Stevenson 46 per cent, 6 per cent undecided.

Anti-Dewey sentiment is still so strong inside the GOP that when Ike's train approached Rochester, N. Y., a GOP dele-

Edgar Daniels

Pink Circus

"The Pink Circus," by Gonzalo Estrada, the first full length student production of the current Carolina Playmakers' season, opened Thursday night for a two day run. The near capacity audience was literally slapped in the face by the intensity of this drama.

In a story of a young boy's realizations that all is not a bed of roses on the home front. Mr. Estrada has woven reality and dreams into a conglomeration of lust and pathos. The leading character, a boy of seventeen, is exposed to more in his few years than are most people in a lifetime. His emotional turmoils and Freudian dreams are brought home to the audience, not necessarily by the production, but by the lines themselves. In a piece that bears a great similarity to the style of John Steinbeck, the author presents a graphic description of incest, abortion and matricide, which goes far below the bounds of good taste.

The production as a whole is by far the finest student production that this reviewer has ever seen the Playmakers present. Although a bit heavy-handed with the dramatic, Director John Clayton left little to be asked for. Dick Epler's setting was one of the best this reviewer has seen on the Playmakers' stage. It was a pleasure to see that full length student productions are no longer treated technically like orphan children.

For the most part nothing really adverse need be said about the acting in "Pink Circus." Hal England, as the young boy Jimmie, gave one good performance of which he has a right to be truly proud. He was never off stage for more than a few seconds throughout the entire evening. England seemed to be an honest actor in that he appeared to be completely wrapped up in his character, and he gave the right note of sincerity that made this play at all believable.

Some of the highest laurels of the evening go to Bill Waddell, as Bush; Nancy Green, Florencio, the mother, and Jane Kottmeier, as the seductress.

Waddell's moving portrayal of Jimmie's best friend helped to carry the play through scenes that almost bordered on tedium. Miss Green, well remembered for her comic role in last year's production of "Spring for Sure," proved herself one of the most versatile actresses that the Playmakers have today. She was absolutely convincing as the main cause of her son's worry. One could almost feel the weight of her sins across the footlights. Jane Kottmeier gave one of the most surprisingly good performances of the entire production. Her excellent stage presence made it possible for her to have complete control of the stage the entire time she was on. Her part was not an easy one to play, but she got as much out of it as the traffic would allow.

As Uncle Carlos, Florencio's lover, Manly Wellman was very disappointing. He shouted his lines and never seemed to get off more than one emotional level.

None of the characters that were supposed to be Mexican gave that impression at all.

