W&M Snaps Junior Varsity's Winning Streak, 14-6

Ernie Liberati Scores Only UNC Points

By Melvin Lang
Carolina's junior varsity ran up against a stone wall whenever they got out of their own territory yesterday as the Tar Babies lost their first game in the last two seasons of play, dropping a 14-6 contest to a hard-running aggregation from William and Mary.

The Tar Heel junior varsity amassed a total of 297 yards during the afternoon, but were unable to get past the Indians until late in the fourth period when Ernie Liberati sneaked over from the one after a pass interference had been called on the visitors.

William and Mary took the lead in the rugged contest midway of the first period. The Tribe's defensive end, Klecha, blocked and attempted punt by Barry Pruss on Carolina's 15 yard line and ran it over for the touchdown. Lutz kicked the conversion, putting the Virginian's ahead by 7-0.

The winners marched 80 yards early in the second quarter to chalk up their second score, with a little quarterback by the name of Grieco carrying the brunt of the attack. Grieco either passed or ran with the ball on seven of the 10 plays which it took for William and Mary to get down to the Carolina 18. On first down, Watson went off left tackle for 18 yards and the winning touchdown. Lutz again kicked the extra point.

Carolina threatened for the first time midway of the first period as it moved from its own 20 to William and Mary's 12 before losing the ball on downs. The Tar Babies were knocking again early in the fourth quarter, but lost out as Bob Lee dropped a fourth down pass from Liberati.

Going into the game with a three-game winning streak under their belts, the Tar Babies did not show any scoring punch at all until they finally succeeded in making their lone score. Charlie Poindexter started the scoring march by going to his own 48 after Stan Porginski had returned a punt 12 yards to the 42.

Ed Loughlin, who alternated with Liberati at the Carolina quarterback post, came into the lineup to toss a long pass to Van Weatherspoon which was good for 40 yards down to the William and Mary 12 yard marker. Vince Murray carried it to the nine, and Liberati proceeded to carry it down to the three. Grieco was called for interference as he held Weatherspoon in the end zone, giving the ball to Carolina on the one. Liberati carried it over from there. Poindexter's kick was short.

Vince Murray picked up most of the slack created by the departure of Flo Worrell and Billy Hawkes, the club's leading scorers who joined the varsity this week, and led the Tar Babies in their running attack.

The Security Council is the only part of the UN which allows the veto.

Parker Starts At Halfback In Place Of Injured White In UNC Backfield time he gets his hands on the ball.

The Carolina team, in addition to hinging its success on Newman's passes, may also call on the pitchout play to score on the Volunteers. The play hadn't been used to any great extent until last week's game with Notre Dame, but when it was used then, the Tar Heels did what little ground gaining of the game that they did.

With regular starter Bob White missing from the left halfback post because of a cracked cheek bone, suffered against the Fighting Irish, Coach Carl Snavelly will have sophomore Larry Parker starting today.

Parker has the speed for the pitchouts and may be the solution to the problem of Carolina's split-T offense.

The rest of the backfield will be the same as has started in the other three games. Newman will be at quarterback, Bud Wallace at full, and Chal Port at right half. Parker had the best Carolina run of the day against Notre Dame with a 34-yard jaunt on a pitchout.

The Tar Heel defensive line will again be one of Coach Snavelly's main hopes for victory. It held the Fighting Irish to a 14-7 halftime score before running out of gas last weekend, and after the Wake Forest game had ranked second in the Southern Conference.

Tennessee has also passed for three touchdowns but the completion average of its three passers is not impressive. Pat Shires, who played the halfback while Wade was out, has passed the most and has but a 31.7 completion average.

Wade has completed three out of nine while John Oleksiak leads the trio with six out of 16 for a 37.5 average.

If Carolina loses the handle on the ball as many times as it did against Wake Forest then the Tar Heels will be in for a rough day of it against the alert Volunteers. Tennessee has recovered 12 of its opponents fumbles this season.

The Carolina team held a brief workout yesterday in Shields-Watkins Field with the players working on passing plays in their sweat suits.

Tickets still remained for the contest before game time but Tennessee officials expected a good crowd of some 37,000 for the annual affair.

Following their Homecoming Day Game with N. C. State here Saturday, Wake Forest's Deacons will invade Texas for the second time this season. The Deacons will fly down to Fort Worth to play TCU, the defending Southwest Conference champion. The game will be played on Saturday, November 8.

Hopkins, Russell, Randolph Star In Fourth Straight Win

By Jim Wiles

Carolina's Booters took advantage of most of their breaks yesterday to defeat the Cherry Point Marine soccer team, 3-0, and rack up their fourth consecutive victory of the current campaign.

The Tar Heels, on defense throughout most of the first half, were in control of the ball on few occasions, as compared to the older, more experienced Marine outfit. However, the Marines left their half of the field unprotected frequently, and the fine teamwork of Renny Randolph, Tommy Hopkins, and Jerry Russell, backed by the superb relays of the halfbacks and wings, paid off in the form of three scores for the UNC team.

The first quarter went scoreless as the Marines dominated offensive play. Eddie Santos, Bud Zeitler and Phil Ozasky were the demons of Cherry Point's attempt for a goal, but were stopped when nearing the goal by swarms of Carolina defenders.

The locals' first score came midway of the second quarter as center Russell took a shot from about fifteen feet out and split the cage with a looping boot. The half ended after various exchanges between the two clubs.

Hopkins gave Carolina its second point late in the third frame and put the Tar Heels within breathing distance of victory.

On a beautiful play midway of the last period, Randolph took a relay from Russell and sent a drive squarely through the goal for the clincher.

A tired, but determined, Marine team tried desperately to pull the game out of the bag in the late stages but petered out against the freely substituting and fresh Carolina squad.

In post-game comment, Coach Al Moore said, "This was the finest team we've played all year, but

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 31—Louis Leonard Gluckfield, University of Maryland student who offered three Maryland players bribes totaling $1,500 to hold the point spread in check in the LSU game, will fight extradition from Washington to Maryland for the trial.
Gluckfield was described by his attorney as "completely innocent", and was awarded a three-week delay in court proceedings.

End Bob Ondilla is in the thick of the running for pass receiving honors in the Southern Conference this season. Ondilla has caught 15 aeriels for a total gain of 189 yards. Ondilla and his Wake Forest teammates will play host to N. C. State here Saturday in the feature of Homecoming Day.

Wake Forest's football team has averaged 2.8 yards per rush this fall. The Deacons have gained a total of 647 yards on the ground in 235 plays. Wake Forest and N. C. State play here at 2 o'clock Saturday for the 46th time.

Georgia Tech Meets Duke In Biggest Game Of South

By Vardy Buckalew

The big game in the South this week will be played in Durham today when the unbeaten forces of Duke and Georgia Tech collide in a game between two national football powers.

Tech will bring a string of 20 straight games without a defeat to the natural bowl on the Duke campus and the Engineers will be remembering the game last year when the Blue Devils upset the predictions and held them to a 14-14 tie.

Both teams have impressive records this year and Duke is fresh from a victory over previously unbeaten Virginia last week. They would like to make it two in a row over unbeaten teams.

Georgia Tech played Vanderbilt last week but hardly got warmed up while beating them 33-0.

Both teams are well balanced which is manifested by the fact that both are in the top 10 in defense in the nation, and although their offenses don't rank too high nationally, they are both known to be very good.

As in the past all of Duke's offensive hopes will be placed on quarterback Worth (A Million) Lutz, sophomore from Durham. Lutz has been the whole show for Duke so far in every game this year and the Blue Devils hope that today will be no exception.

Last week he passed for one touchdown, scored another, and got off on one of the longest runs of the afternoon, 49 yards. All told this season, he has completed 23 passes in 44 attempts.

The remainder of the Duke backfield is made up of such hard runners as Piney Field, Red Smith, and Jack Kistler, and they are expected to give Tech a rough time. Kistler will be seeing action in his first game for some time. He has been out with a leg injury and before being hurt he was the Devil's best ground gainer.

The Engineers, who have been the leading team in the tough Southeastern Conference for the past two years, will be piloted by their quarterback Bill Brigman. However, the big show for Tech offensively is their halfback Leon Hardeman, who is one of the best running backs in the country. He was outstanding in last week's defeat of Vanderbilt.

Georgia Tech was rated fourth by the newspaper polls last week while Duke was ranked in the sixth spot nationally. In statistics, the Tech defense is rated number one, with Duke being in fourth place. It could easily turn out to be a battle of the defenses.

Pre-game speculation has it that Georgia Tech is a one point favorite although many experts rate it a toss-up.

Should Tech get past this game, there is talk of a bid to the Sugar Bowl. Since the Blue Devils are unable to participate in post-season games due to a conference ruling, the pressure will be all on Tech in that respect.
