

Down In Front

By Biff Roberts

Our Best Friends Won't Tell Us

CAROLINA'S FOOTBALL team is getting the unenviable reputation of just being half safe.

The Tar Heels, losers of their only four games have looked good during the first halves of their past two games, with Notre Dame and Tennessee, trailing by a single touchdown at the rest period in both cases. But in both games they came out on the wish-bone end of two long score, losing to the Fighting Irish, 34-14, and to the Volunteers, 41-14.

Last Saturday's first half against the Vols was cheering for the few Tar Heel fans who made the trip, and after Carolina had scored on a 65-yard pass play just 30 seconds before the half ended, there were those who had hope that we might take the Volunteers for the first time in four years.

The Carolina line had stopped the Tennessee running game pretty well—that is except for fullback Andy Kozar, who gained 60 yards on 11 tries in the first quarter. But he wasn't imposing the scoring threat that comes when you have to watch one man wide and another up the middle. The Volunteers had scored two touchdowns and one extra point but both were on passes and the Vols weren't expected to desert their much cussed and discussed running game to take to the air in the second half. The situation seemed fairly well in hand.

The Same Old Story

BUT THEN THAT THIRD quarter opened and, as had happened in the Notre Dame game, the Tennessee team started scoring, we started missing, and before you could say Bob Neyland, they had us, 34-7. A fumble on the first play from scrimmage set up one score, a sustained drive another, and an intercepted pass still another. The same thing had happened the weekend before at Notre Dame when the Irish scored two quick ones in the third quarter to jump a half-time score of 14-7 up to 27-7.

It's hard to say just exactly what it is that hits the Tar Heels in the second half and brings discredit to a well-played first half. Not only does the other team start scoring, but our offense starts bogging down and in attempts to get going our statistics take a beating when our passer gets smeared trying long pass plays. Of course, statistics never won a ball game, but that six point print telling who ran how far is usually one of the first things a sports page reader consults.

But whatever it is that jinxes us in the second half will have to be shaken off by Saturday when we run into Virginia. The Cavaliers have lost two straight games after riding a national ranking for the early weeks of the season and there's Carolina blue in their eyes. They lost an expected one to Duke two weeks ago, but last Saturday they surprised everybody including themselves by bowing to South Carolina, which scored three times in the final minute and 45 seconds to win, 21-14.

Weather—Still Cloudy

THE OUTLOOK DOESN'T look too bright either, for the Tar Heels are still shackled with the same injuries (plus others) that maimed them in the Tennessee game. Linebacker Junior Seawell, who has been one of the most dependable players all year, will probably miss the game along with speedy Ken Keller, the little freshman halfback who has scored twice this year. The safety position will be short with Billy Williams, T. Dfl Bullock and Sonny Ridenhour nursing intermittent injuries.

The return of John Gaylord will give the backfield a little extra strength, however, something it has sorely needed since Bob White was hurt at Notre Dame and Keller at Tennessee. Gaylord suffered a finger injury against Texas and hasn't seen action since that game. There is an outside chance that Seawell will be able to play, too, but his action will certainly be curtailed.

Any way you look at it, though, the road ahead seems just as rocky as the mountain path we've already been over. But if the injuries don't weaken our reserve strength too much then Saturday's game with Virginia ought to be interesting, to say the least.

Five Statistics Leaders Are Displaced In Conference

All five Southern Conference individual statistics leaders last week were displaced as a result of Saturday's play, with VMI's Bill Brehany pulling the biggest surprises by taking over first place in passing and total yardage.

17 completions made 55 altogether far ahead of Richmond's Bobby Tyler, who was limited to two by Virginia Tech. (See CONFERENCE, Page 4)

Although the Keydets were trounced at West Point, Brehany gained 217 yards by passing alone and rushed for five more. His total-offense yardage of 983 for seven games surpassed the 926 of the season long leader, Ed Mioduszewski, whose William and Mary team did not play, and his

Gaylord Returns At Halfback; Seawell Ready For UVa. Game

By Tom Peacock

Junior Seawell and John Gaylord, injured players on Carolina's football team whose condition has been doubtful, will definitely be ready for Saturday's game with Virginia.

Seawell was hurt in the Tennessee game after playing an important role in holding the Vols to a 13-7 lead at halftime from his linebacker position. His loss was considered the most damaging of all to the Tar Heels.

Gaylord had a finger broken in the Texas game, and has missed games and practice since. He was a sophomore sensation last season, and played an outstanding game at fullback against Texas before he was hurt.

Gaylord has practiced all this week, stepping into the first string right halfback post, and Seawell is expected to be ready today.

The addition of Gaylord and Seawell leaves Carolina with only two men on the injured list, halfbacks Ken Keller and Bob White. Keller will be out for an indefinite length of time, but cannot see action against the Cavaliers, and White is also lost this week. Keller injured his knee in the Tennessee game, and White suffered a broken cheek against Notre Dame.

Carolina Coach Carl Snavely, put the team through contact work and light scrimmage yesterday for the first time this week. The Tar Heels are in good shape after meeting three first rate teams in the past three weeks, and Snavely doesn't expect to stress rough stuff as long as the team stays in condition.

With the injury situation in as good a shape as could be hoped for, and the team in high spirits for Saturday's homecoming game, prospects for the Tar Heels' making the win column rose considerably.

The Carolina offense has improved steadily, and will be about at its peak by the end of the week. Until injuries literally riddled the Tar Heel line against Tennessee, the Vols had a hard time moving the ball. In addition to Seawell and Gaylord, Ed Patterson, Tom Higgins, Sonny Ridenhour, and all the players who were forced to leave the Tennessee game are all back in uniform.

The team ran through a large majority of its plays yesterday, and then had a light touch of scrimmage in a secret practice. Pass defense was stressed, as the Vols did well on aerials against Carolina, and Virginia has a top-notch passer in quarterback Mel Roach. Virginia is the fourth T team to meet Carolina this year.

The jayvees ran Virginia's plays, against the first string defense.

The Cavaliers have lost but two games this year, last week to South Carolina and the week before against Duke. Duke was too powerful for coach Art Guepe's charges, but South Carolina won on a fluke, scoring three touchdowns in the last minute and 46 seconds of the game to win 21-14.

THE GREEKS Had Words For It—

Someone (he has, understandably, asked that his name be kept secret, but he can be found in a certain dilapidated bookshop hereabouts) has said "From Homer to the Acropolis, the Greeks were topodopolis."

While deploring the levity, your friends in the Intimate Bookshop find themselves in hearty accord with this sentiment.

Our supply of Loeb Classics is as complete as their somewhat erratic publishing schedule will allow. When we go out to buy old books, we keep our eyes peeled for old books in Greek.

Among the books in English — which many of our customers also speak — you'll find such books as Livingstone's "Legacy of Greece," Taylor's "Socrates," Hamiltons "The Greek Way" and

"Greek Poetry for Everyman," translated by Lucas. We've been making quite a hit with our $1.98 edition of Hyde's "Ancient Greek Mariners."

AND WE'RE BATTIN' FOR LATIN

Beside the ever-present Loeb editions, our stock includes translations ranging from the inexpensive Penguin edition of Tacitus to the C. Day Lewis translation of The Aeneid, and on to certain editions more famed for utility than beauty.

Whatever your interest, the big broad stock of The Intimate Bookshop has a book for you!

Phi Delta's Lead Play In Beating Lamb Chi, 18-12

Phi Delt's Durham scampered across the goal line with less than three minutes to go in the game to give the Phi Delt-1 club an 18-12 victory over a battling Lamb Chi squad yesterday afternoon in one of the leading intramural games.

Other games were scheduled. Other games during the day's activities saw Chi Psi-2 drop Phi Delt-2, 8-0; DKE-2 slug out an easy 38-6 win against Sig Nu-1; and Delt Sig Pi edge DKE-1, 12-0.

The fraternity men had the field to themselves during the Durham's score for the Phi Delt-1 club was the third marker recorded by his team during the contest. Both Cornell and Williams each hauled in a pass to cross the goal line untouched for the winners. Durham's touchdown also came as the result of a series of passes. The Phi Delt's were unsuccessful on all three of their extra point attempts.

Aldridge and Morris d'd the scoring for the losers. The (See PHI DELTS, page 4)

CONFERENCE IN THE CLOUDS

Among the undergraduates on any college campus, you'll find the talk reaching up to the clouds. And once in a while—in a classroom, around a study table, or even in a bull session—a really big idea is born.

Big ideas come, too, from the men and women in laboratories, business offices, shops. But often these professionals are exploring a path first glimpsed in college.

How do we know? Because of the many college people who have come into the Bell System, where big ideas and a lot of dreams have taken their place in progress. The human voice, carried along a wire, first across a town, then a state, a nation, and now the world. Music and pictures and things happening delivered into cities and hamlets all across the land by radio and television networks.

We're always looking for the men and women who get big ideas—whether they're about people, or machines, or ways of doing things. Your Placement Officer can give you details about opportunities for employment in the Bell System.
