Southern schools, this University among them, must now face the truth-that "separate but equal" is a meaningless phrase, that places of learning, if separated, are inherently unequal.

We hold this one-like those other great truths declared in our Constitution-to be self-evident: It is time to stop postponing brotherhood. This is a time for the turning of thought and opinion into wide, new channels, a time for the yielding of old prejudices produced the best Quarterly in propriate article at this time. and ignorant discrimination before the pa- years just when the first rumtient and powerful light of Christianity.

Even if ethics did not compel it, the international position of the United States requires us to enter this new day in Southern education with resolution. We stand as the champion of the free world, as the protector of the dignity of the minority, as men with inalienable and unassailable rights. This is lent special significance in a world in which the majority of people, by our standards, are colored.

However, it would be erroneous and immoral to predicate doing the right thing upon the wrong reason; for the practical considerations, important as they are, are none the less secondary. We hail the Supreme Court decision, not because it enhances our prestige in a troubled world, and not because it pleases a segment of professional

'NO PLACE IN EDUCATION' . . . a gavel for discrimination

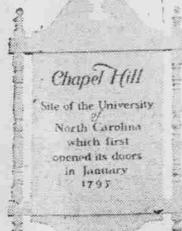

equalizers, but because it is the right thing

South Carolina's Governor Byrnes and many like him in the South, many of them our friends and people we love, now stand eclipsed. Their South is gone, or it is going, and the bitterness and antagonism no longer seem very significant, though we do not deny that there is bitterness yet to be overcome before perfect equality is achieved, even in North Carolina, even in Chapel Hill. It is simply that the path is now very clear indeed, and for the Southern states and the University, there is no other path, though we be emotionally reluctant at first to follow it.

From whatever point you view it, the es- are, to me the real "find" of sential equity of the Court's verdict is plain to see. That, we think, is a good test: the hu- more called J. A. C. Dunn. His man test, how you feel about it. And we feel "A Quanity Unknown" reveals good.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publiations Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Monday, examination and vacation periods and during the official summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year,

CHARLES KURALT

Editor	_ CHARLES NORAGI
Managing Editor	ROLFE NEILL
Associate Editors LOUIS	KRAAR, ED YODER
Sports Editor	JOHN HUSSEY
Business Manager	AL SHORTT
News Editor Society Editor Librarian Asst. Sports Editor Subscription Manager Advertising Manager Asst. Subscription Manager	Eleanor Saunders Connie Marple Dick Barkley Tom Witty Jack Stilwell
NEWS STAFF-Fred Powled	ge, Ken Sanford, Richard Thiele, Jennie Lynn, John Jackson, Babbie Dilorio, Charles Childs.

Lines On Literature

Amid The Rumblings: A Quarterly Of Merit

answer to the cry that the Quarterly should be abolished. It is both ironic and gratifying that blings of abolition were heard. serving of poetry, illustrations, Absolutely no apologies are need- and book reviews in the present ed for this issue, Before reviewing the present number, I want to survey briefly er, one might ask again of the what Miss Davis and her staff Quarterly, "Quo Vadis?" A maghave done for the Quarterly. It azine such as this thrives only was just a little over a year in an atmosphere of creativity ago that the magazine was in and encouragement. WCUNC's the depths of despair. Its end Coraddi is consistently excellent seemed certain. At that time because of the constant influence DTH Editor Rolfe Neill and I, of people such as Randall Jarrell believing that the Quarterly could and Peter Taylor. Here at Carosurvive if it were free of the lina there is now an indication ivory-tower set, published the that we can hope for a literary harsh 'Quo Varis' editorial stat- revival under the influence of ing that the staff should examine Phillips Russell, Hugh Holman, anew its original purpose. Then and Jessie Rehder. Young talent the ditorial board of the Quart- seems to be appearing againerly appointed Charlotte Davis J. A. C. Dunn; Joanna Scroggs to take over the editorship. A (whose work is very good); Louis marked changed was noticeable Kraar; Ed Yoder; and many othin th eSpring issue. Then in ers on the freshman and sophothe fall the upward pull con- more levels. A hard-working staff tinued. With the present num- will corral this talent just as ber, the staff has attained the Charlotte Davis has done this excellence that is expected of a year. An ivory tower never pro-Carolina literary magazine.

The contents of the magazine are neither overly-esteric nor vulgarly low-brow. They are, in the main, solid achievements.

been waiting, faculty and stu- schools. dents alike. Yet it will be a pity if this article completely overshadows the three fine short stories in the magazine.

Beach," by Louise Hardeman is noteworthy for its polished style. It is a sensitive story that is long on character and full of realistic touches that come from a woman's writing about a young girl.

In "Operation Ah Choo," Vin Cassidy has produced a delightfully satiric story about a sneeze. Not since Richard Stern filled the pages of the old Carolina Magazine with his satiric pieces have I heard anything quite as funny as this in a campus publication. Mr. Cassidy's humor calls attention to the great drought of genuinely good satire on the campus.

Excellent as the above stories the Quarterly is a young sophothe most talent I have seen in an undergraduate since Charles Brockman was startling the campus. Dunn's story is a three stage glimpse into the life of a math teacher. In each stage there is a marvellous achievement of tone. In the first stage Mr. Babcock is young and cocky, and his students, especially Mawson, are impudent. In the second stage Babcock is middle-aged and cynical while Mawson is quietly subdued. Finally, in the third stage Babcock is old and nostalgic, and the White House. Mawson is confident and grateful. This is a story with much bama, long-time champion of fedlaughter and more truth; it is eral aid to schools, objected a story that disturbed me greatly, one that I shall read again and en national conferences on this again. The insight and maturity question," he said in brief, "The of Dunn are great for one so conferences even began with the young. I shall watch with inter- Hoover Administration. Seven est the future of this young new million dollars have already been writer on our campus.

Jr., has written a surprising ar- to me this is a time for action, ticle defending the liberal and not talk. The Eisenhower Adthe individual. Although his ministration," said Hill, "made a piece, "American Freedom and specific pledge to help the Faith," begins a bit like a pon-schools, and this is the time to derous oration, it gets down to do it. cases at the end with such pertinent observations as "it is no Republican, agreed, and as a reless obvious that the American sult the Senate Committee went search for a faith is falling into a dangerous pit of dogmatism, and that if the average citizen does not learn to respect a ques-* tioning and criticizing of his in-

The Spring issue of the Caro- all contact with the truth he lina Quarterly is the appropriate seeks . . . far from weakening us, our tolerance and respect for the multitude of human ideas and institutions is the very skeleton and fiber of any rights for the Charlotte Davis & Co., have individual." It certainly is an ap-

Finally, there is also an ample Quarterly which helps to provide a galanced and varied magazine.

I think that now, one year latduces an issue as good as this one-it takes work.

OKAY FOR Y HEARINGS PONSORED

'Nope - We're Putting On McCarthy And Cohn Instead'

HERBLOCK

Secretary Hobby Backs Down

is the article on "The 1954 Fa- been a backstage hassle inside was a national shortage of 340,- States-now. But two years from culty Evaluation" by Thad Sey- the Administration over the bad- 000 classrooms. And his staff now she will be. She will have mour. Here is the article for ly needed Federal program to worked late at night preparing enough jet bombers and possibly which the whole campus has promote construction of new his testimony for the Senate Com- an atomic stockpile as big as ours.

Sam Brownell, Commissioner of Education and brother of Attorney-General Brownell, is for the school-construction bill, but he's been stopped dead in his tracks-The award story, "The Lost largely by the baby member of the Eisenhower subcabinet, 27year-old Assistant Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, Roswell Perkins. , Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, Secretary for HEW, is also against the school bill.

However, it looks as if the Senate would pass the bill any-

Here is what has happened: About three weeks ago, Secretary Hobby testified before the Senate Labor and Education Committee that she favored the principle of school-building construction, but wanted further conferences before it was undertaken. Specifically she wanted one conference in each of the 48 states,

MRS. HOBBY

To this, Sen. Lister Hill of Ala-

"There have aiready been sevspent on a school survey. Meanwhile our schools are more and In addition, Hamilton Horton, more overcrowded. So it seems

Sen. John Cooper of Kentucky. ahead with hearings on a bill authorizing federal aid to school construction.

Sam Brownell Muzzled Lead-off witness at the hearings was to have been Education

The big news in the Quarterly WASHINGTON - There has previously announced that there atomic blows with the United

But just before he was scheduled to testify. Brownell phoned Chairman Cooper to say he could not appear. He had received blunt orders from Mrs. Hobby that he could make no statement.

Actually it was bright, young Assistant Secretary Roswell Perkins who was behind Mrs. Hobby's action. He had written a report, which went to the Senate over Mrs. Hobby's signature, opposing federal aid for school construction-even though the had $5,000,000,000 backlog of school forced the Chinese Communists construction.

ever, is proceeding with the bill. Note - President Eisenhower during the 1952 elections sall of school construction: "The Ameriwhat we have been doing for a at this time. long time (with highway and hospital construction)."

A-Bombs In Asia?

The Air Force is now prepared for a momentous step. Faced with growing Communist aggression in the Far East, the Air Force has notified the White House that it is prepared to bomb any place in the world, including

Furthermore, there is growing sentiment inside the Air Force for the use of atomic bombs in These two capabilities are extremely important because among other things, they represent a change in Air Force point of view. Hitherto, Gen. Nate Twining, Air Force Chief of Staff, had opposed Admiral Radford's plus one big final conference at recommendation that the Air Force be used in Indochina. And Editor: though still opposed, he has reported that the Air Force is ready to act as outlined above. There have also been other changes in the viewpoints of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. And the Army, which is dead set against having an expeditionary force get bogged down in the Far East, now backs the idea of bombing operations and is willing to use land troops to protect air and naval

Reason for this change is significant. It is induced by apparent Communist determination to push ahead in Southeast Asia plus the realization that in two years Russia could meet the challenge of American air power. Today

Russia Advancing Today the United States has a powerful-striking force of longrange, B-47 jet bombers unmatched by Russia. This is in addition to our high-flying B-36 turbo-jet bombers. As a result,

Drew Pearson

Carolina Front

Segregation

A Challenge

NO ONE, including University officials, knew just what the Supreme Court's segregation decision meant when it was first

The Court, it seems, has allowed for a gradual switch.

There are, unfortunately, still some of us who offer the same, hackneyed arguments against granting Negroes equal rights as

Some say, "What about the guaranteed by the Constitution.

argument that mixed schools will lead to violence?" And Carolina's Dr. Guy B. Johnson, of the

"Anyone who thinks that the racial co-education can be made without problems, tensions, and even personal tragedies is a fool.

Anyone who thinks that the transition means the end of civilization is also a fool. The operation may be serious, but the patient will recover. And when he recovers and looks back over his experience, he may say,

'Well, it wasn't half as bad as I

Whatever the arguments against granting Negroes equal educational rights (and the Court said yesterday that "separate educational facilities are inherently unequal."). I hope that

Carolina students and the rest of the South will accept the deeision with an effort to push a-

The Supreme Court's decision.

it would seem, means that we have finally come of age and can now live and learn with each other here in the South

without regard to the rather ar-

At a time when we're striving so much for unity abroad, it seems a good thing that we've finally decided that America doesn't have any room for sec-

CAMPUS CAFE looked like

New York's 44th Street as the cast of "Dark of the Moon" packed into the long, narrow eating tificial barriers of race.

ly in the classroom.

side outmoded prejudices.

thought it would be."

answered this saying:

announced yesterday.

Louis Kraar

Decision Is

The all-important question of whether atomic bombs should be used in the Far East now rests largely in the hands of the State Department. The armed services have given their okay.

During the siege of Dienbienphu, the White House asked the Pentagon what could be done to break up the attack, to which the Navy and Air Force recommended dropping tactical A-bombs on the ring of Red guerrillas massed around the fortress.

This not only would have saved previously stated that there is a the fortress, but would have to do one of two things: 1. Leave The Senate Committee, how- Indochina altogether; or 2, call on Russia for help.

Department of Sociology, once The Air Force was willing to take the calculated risk that the Kremlin would avoid an atomic can answer is to do in this field showdown with the United States transition from segregation to

> State Department Veto However, the State Department said No. Il argued that 1, our Western Allies would desert us; 2, the huge populations of Asia would turn irrevocably against us. American hatred would sweep all Asia, the State Department argued

The Air Force replied that the A-bomb is much more human than the napalm fire jelly with which we have been splashing enemy troops in Korea and Indochina. The State Department, however, prevailed.

Poetic Letter

'I am 'I' in this vast universe! Unique am I, for better or for Forever and ever, my mind, in limitless measure Creates, and creates anew; such is its pleasure! My self, not full awake, is still in waking. My world, not given or made, is ond - class citizens - particularmy own, in making:

My lofty soul, my whole and sole Has endless quest-conquest, its only goal! What if this life with sin and evil is fraught, What if is God in Heaven a place Sunday night after the perknow-not-what. Janet Carter, who played the What if the world of things is void and nought?

me not, My self yet stands erect, and high, My boundless Spirit and I shall never die!

female lead, and Leonard Bul-Sorry death may strike, but ends lock sat at a back table looking both tired and pleased. The play is really grand. After two rain-outs in a row, "Dark of the Moon" opened under a full moon and with a full house

'Dark Of The Moon' Needs A Welding Job

Ted Rosenthal

After a two-day boycott, the stars came to the Forest Theatre Sunday night for "Dark of the Moon"; but when the last witch had flittered out of sight, beyond the crags of the Baldy Mountain set, perhaps they were sorry they'd changed their

The Howard Richardson-William Berney fantasy, if played sensitively, might have appeared a good deal better than it did, but in the hands of Director William Long, it emerged as an unhappy union of over-extremes-the too-phantasmal supernatural sequences clashed discordantly with those of the mountain folks, which in turn appeared improbably sordid. The overall effect was that of a duet between a theremin and a rag-time trumpet and the result was cacaphony.

"Dark of the Moon" is the story of a boy-witch who falls in love with a human girl; he persuades a mountain sorceress to change him into a man, and she does, but stipulates he must marry the girl, and she must remain faithful to him for a year, or he will again become a witch, The boy descends into the valley, finds his love Barbara, and because she had become pregnant after their first meeting, has no trouble in gaining her parents' consent, although he is a stranger Because of his origin, the boy is unable to enter a church-this arouses the suspicion of the community, and when Barbara gives birth to an inhuman creature, there is general agreement that he is a witch. Barbara speaks to her husband, learns his story, and remains in love with him.

But on the evening of the allotted year, her parents take the girl to a revival meeting. She is gooded into revealing the truth, and the hill people, to end John's transformation, force her into intercourse with an ex-boyfriend, upon the floor of the church. John returns to his former state, and Barbara, because of the jealousy of the witchgirls who entice the boy throughout the play,

Daniel Reid, starred as John, gave too-frenzied a performance to be convincing; had he moderated his efforts, the fantasy would have been more Janet Carter did much better as Barbara. She displayed warmth and sincerity, and a contagious sympathy for 'he role.

Marian Fitz-Simons delivered a good performance as Mrs. Allen, Barbara's mother, and Leonard's Bullock was capable as the father. Les Casey acted well playing the Conjur Woman, as did Christian Moe as Preacher Haggler

Both Suzanne Elliot and Mary Helen Crain, playing witches, tended to exaggerate their voice, treatments, but since over-stressing was so general a flaw with the company, probably again the director was at fault

Donald Treat's settings were excellent. Jeanette Pratt's makeup, Art Winsor's musical effects, Foster Fitz-Simon's choreography, and John Taylor's costumes were all well-handled, as were the technical phases of the production.

In the last analysis, no matter what attributes of plot, acting ability, and stage-craft are present, unless they are welded into a firm structure, little worthy of praise can result. It is the director's responsibility to interpret the play and integrate the performance into a consistent fluid entity. This was evidently not done with "Dark of the Moon," and from that lack stem many of the shortcomings of the production. Treated with more perception, it might have been engaging and satisfying, instead of indifferent and disappointing,

Meet Kerr Scott

- Bob Byrd

The continual harping by the Lennon forces on the refusal of Kerr Scott to release his income tax, returns is just one more indication of the desperation to which the impending defeat of their candidate is pushing them. Unable to find much to say on behalf of their own candidate, they have banked on a strategy of running down their chief, opponent-a strategy which is producing limited results, since Scott refuses to make a campaign for high public office into a bitter squabble over pseudo-issues of scant relevance to the fitness of the respective candidates to serve in the United States Senate.

The reason why Scott decided not to make his income tax returns public is simple. It is not that he has anything to hide: his salary for the 16 years. he served as Commissioner of Agriculture an Governor is a matter of public record. So are this amounts he has been paid for rights-of-way taken, by the State for highways built across his land. But in addition to these sources of income, he also carries on extensive farming and dairying opera tions, the tax returns for which are likely to be quite complex.

But Lennon could count on the average voter of the State not knowing much tax law and could expect them to fall for the allegation that the whole proceeds of the sale of land to the State should be reported as income, and that Scott was trying to beat the tax collector in not so reporting it. But why didn't Scott release his returns, and then explain to the people the various details about which Lennon might raise a curious eyebrow?

Because when the issue came up, there were only three weeks left in the campaign. Scott wanted to continue to talk, as he has talked to date about the issues facing the Senate and the nation. He couldn't do that and also engage in long-winded | quibbles about incomprehensible details of tax matters. So he chose to refuse to release his tax' returns, even though he knew it would hurt him politically, in order to continue to discuss with the voters of the State the issues which are really relevant to the campaign.

We agree with the editor of the Durham Morn ing Herald, a generally pro-Lennon paper, who recently said of the income tax "issue," "The candidates . . . would render a greater service to the people if they would emphasize their stand on public issues rather than what they earned last year. . . . The people need to know what the candidate thinks about the critical problems now could