

Tar Baby Football Team And Harriers Will Debut Today

Big Four Football—Another Sad Saturday

It looks like a rough weekend for the Big Four. All four schools with the possible exception of Wake Forest, have drawn tough Saturday afternoon assignments, and three of the local aggregations are ticketed for underdog roles by the oddsmakers.

Duke's comeback Blue Devils face the strongest foe when they entertain the country's ninth ranked team, Tennessee, in Duke Stadium. State meets the ACC's only unbeaten squad, Clemson, under the lights in Raleigh; Carolina travels to Columbia, S.C., where they will challenge the South Carolina Gamecocks; and Wake Forest, surprise of the year in the ACC so far, tangles with lowly Virginia.

TAR HEELS SEARCH FOR WINNING COMBO

Carolina, off to one of their worst starts in years under new Coach Jim Tatum, will be looking for the key to a winning combination tomorrow when they clash with the Gamecocks. And if early season results are any indication, it may be a sad day for the Tar Heels.

Coach Warren Giese, former pupil of Tatum at Maryland, has moulded a powerhouse in his first year at Columbia. The Gamecocks have a 2-1 record for the season, losing to Miami while winning from Wofford and Duke. On the other hand, the old master's Tar Heels have had rather rough sledding, losing to both State and Oklahoma by decisive margins.

Tar Heel fans are hoping their 'mystery team' will click tomorrow for the first time this year. Tatum says there's no reason why the shouldn't. And yet, we intend to remain on the skeptical, 'wait and see' side of the fence until the Tar Heels show something besides promise to back up their coach's optimistic words.

LONG ROAD TO SEASON'S END

The power of positive thinking has done wonders in the past, and can do no harm at any time. And certainly we think no coach should be without it, unless he happens to have the material of Bud Wilkinson. But let's face it. Carolina has a losing football team now, and unless something can be done to improve the situation, it's going to be a long, long season for our Tar Heels.

South Carolina has a slick, sharp ball club and an energetic young coach. They have a potent split-T offense built around veteran signal caller Mackie Prickett and a pair of sophomore halfbacks, Alex Hawkins and King Dixon.

Carolina has a ball club that has admittedly shown some potential, although it has seldom been realized. One big factor that may result in an improved showing by the Tar Heels is the return of quarterback Dave Reed to the lineup.

TEAM PERFORMANCE DEPENDS ON LINE PLAY

Reed is backed up by a backfield that could go if the blocking was available up front. Ed Sutton is a top flight halfback in anybody's league and the rest of the backs are capable performers.

The main problem seems to lie up front. The forward wall just hasn't jelled yet, and without a strong line, both the offense and defense will continue to suffer.

Although the Gamecocks rate the edge on paper, the game could develop into a real dogfight. We believe the Tar Heels are ready for their best effort of the season, but whether or not it will be enough to carry the day remains to be seen. South Carolina 14, Carolina 6.

A BRIEF LOOK AROUND THE CIRCUIT

Briefly let's take a look around the remainder of the Big Four. The Duke-Tennessee scrap shapes up as a rock 'em, sock 'em battle of the Wallace Wade-Bob Neyland tradition. Both squads have an abundance of talent. The Vols are ranked higher in the nation, but don't let this fool you. Duke proved last Saturday against Virginia that they have completely recovered from their shocking loss to South Carolina, and are now a force to be reckoned with.

But when all is said and done, the Blue Devils must play a very good football team today. And with ace quarterback Sonny Jurgensen available for only limited duty at best, the Vols must be picked to take their first win over a Duke team since 1951. Tennessee 20, Duke 14.

State's up and down Wolfpack, still in a state of shock after last week's VPI debacle, will find themselves grabbing a Tiger by the tail tomorrow night when Clemson invades Riddick Stadium. Coach Frank Howard's Tigers have established themselves as prime candidates for the January 1 Orange Bowl date in Miami, and we don't believe they'll let State stand in their way. Another down for the Pack. Clemson 27, State 7.

Wake Forest is the only Big Four squad with a better than even chance of emerging victorious from tomorrow's pigskin wars. The surprising Deacons, who lost to Maryland by only one touchdown last Saturday, should be able to ride to victory if the churning legs of Bullet Bill Barnes, the nation's leading ground gainer, hold up. And if they can stop the plunging Persian, Cavalier fullback Jim Bahkatar. Wake Forest 19, Virginia 7.

Yearling Soccer Team Improving, Says Coach

Freshman coach John Wiennatz got his first look at the Carolina freshman soccer team Tuesday and appeared to be very pleased. Speaking of their scrimmage with the varsity, Wiennatz stated that the squad looked good. "They do need experience, however," he added.

Some of the outstanding performers thus far, are inside front John Ghanen, center forward Mike Thomson, halfbacks Tate Robertson and Hugh Goodmore, and fullbacks Merritt Mitchell and Gordon Street.

The freshmen booters open the season against N.C. State in Raleigh, Oct. 17.

The schedule:

Oct. 17—N.C. State	away
Oct. 26—N.C. State	home
Nov. 1—Duke	home
Nov. 9—N.C. State	away
Nov. 15—Duke	away

Footballers To Meet Wake Forest Tonight

By BILL KING
Daily Tar Heel Sports Writer

Carolina's freshman football team makes its 1956 debut in Senior High Stadium, Greensboro, tonight as they go against the Wake Forest Frosh at 8:00 p.m.

Tonight also marks the initial start for coach Fred Tullai, ex-lineman from Maryland in his first year with Carolina. Tullai played under Jim Tatum at Maryland last season and made the switch with the Tar Heel mentor from Maryland.

Tullai sent the Tar Babies through a final workout at Navy Field yesterday in preparation for tonight's opener. The main emphasis was on defense with very little contact work.

Physically, the Tar Heel Frosh should be in top shape as there have been only a few minor injuries thus far. Coach Tullai commented yesterday that injuries would not handicap the squad at all, and that he felt that his club would be ready for the Baby Deacs tonight. Wake Forest defeated the South Carolina yearlings 6-0 last week in their season opener.

The Tar Babies will have an all-

North Carolina backfield in the starting lineup, and a line averaging 210 pounds. Nelson Lowe, 192 pounder from Wilkesboro will start at quarterback for the UNC Frosh. Halfbacks Wade Smith of Albemarle and High Point's Cornell Johnson, along with fullback Jim Stevens of Hazelwood round out the starting backfield.

Tullai is very pleased with his team's showing in pre-season practice and has a lot of confidence in his young squad. "We look better every day," he said. "So far the boys have shown a lot of spirit and hustle. They seem to have that desire to win." The Tar Baby coach concluded, "We want to start off right and continue on the winning track throughout the season."

Next Friday the Tar Babies play host to Maryland in Kenan Stadium at 2:00 p.m.

Starts For Tar Babies
Mike McDade, 235 pounder from Rochester, Pa., will hold down the starting right tackle slot tonight when Coach Fred Tullai's Carolina Tar Babies take the field against the Wake Forest Baby Deacons.

Tar Heels Go Through Concluding Drill; McMullen Replaces Varnum

Coach Jim Tatum's Tar Heels went through final drills here yesterday afternoon in preparation for their game with the University of South Carolina in Columbia tomorrow.

There has been only one major lineup change for the winless Tar Heels making their third start of the season tomorrow. Left Halfback Larry McMullen has replaced Jim Varnum on the first team. Varnum won the halfback post from McMullen when he turned in a fine performance in the Tar Heel's season opener with N.C. State.

The Tar Heels were dressed in sweat pants and shoulder pads yesterday and went through signal drills and sharpened up on defense. Tatum never sends his squad on the practice field on the day before a game, so the Tar Heels will rest today.

Trainer John Lacey has announced that the entire team is in good shape and that forty two players will make the trip to South Carolina. The Tar Heels will be missing the services of co-captain and center George Stavitski who suffered a brain concussion in the Oklahoma game and is still in a hospital in Norman.

Doctors at the hospital say that big George is coming along "very nicely" and may be able to leave for home this weekend. Stavitski was injured on the first play of the second half last weekend in the Tar Heel's 36-0 loss to the number one ranked Sooners.

The Tar Heels are scheduled to leave the Raleigh-Durham Airport tonight at 8 o'clock and are due to arrive in Columbia at 8:55 p.m. Game time is 2:30 p.m. and the Tar Heels will return to Chapel Hill tomorrow night.

Newcombe, Larsen Go In Series Today

BROOKLYN, Oct. 4 (AP)—Big Don Newcombe, Brooklyn's 27-game winner, faces the New York Yankees' Don Larsen today in the rain-delayed second game of the World Series with an extra 24-hour rest after the gruelling National League pennant race.

Commissioner Ford Frick wisely ordered yesterday's postponement two hours before game time with heavy showers beating down on Ebbets Field and a "very bad" weather forecast for the rest of the day. At game time the rain still was pouring down on the infield covering.

According to the weather man, the rain was to stop in early morning. The forecast for today was clear and cool with the temperature in the 60s.

Frosh Runners Entertain Imps

Carolina's freshman cross country team opens the 1956 season at Fetzer Field this afternoon against the Duke University freshmen.

The Tar Baby runners have a tough row to hoe if they expect to live up to last year's yearling team which went undefeated, but coach Boyd Newnam has an outstanding group of runners to work with.

Pacing the Tar Baby tracksters will be Cowles Lipfert, last year's state high school mile champ from Winston-Salem. Running behind Lipfert will be Fick Arthur, John Green, Ray Bagwell, Larry Withrop, John Richardson, James Packard and Frank Siriann.

Baseball Team Finishes Week Of Workouts

Sunny weather and a lively two and one-half hour practice and scrimmage session brought to a close the first week of fall baseball practice at UNC Wednesday.

Rabb was very enthusiastic about the Wednesday practice and said that the boys were shaping up very nicely. The congenial Tar Heel coach said that he was particularly pleased with some of his pitchers.

Lack of pitching depth proved to be a real headache to Rabb last year, as the Tar Heels had only a couple of front-line hurlers. Rabb is hoping that the situation will be different this year and has expressed much enthusiasm about that department. "I believe we'll have depth this season," said Rabb. "It looks as though we have some good prospects coming up," he added.

Practice will continue at Emerson Stadium for the next week or ten days.

Nothing could stop it from coming through!

Cross-Country Squad Tangles With Virginia

Carolina's varsity cross-country squad makes its initial start of the season here this afternoon at 4 p.m. on Fetzer Field against the Cavaliers from the University of Virginia.

Coach Dale Ranson's team, last year's state champions, will be paced by senior co-captain Jim Beatty, the defending ACC champ. He will be capably backed up by junior letterman Everett Whatley and co-captain Marion Griffin in the expected number two and three spots.

Other runners on the eight man official team include sophomore whiz Dave Scurlock, Ben Williams, Perrin Henderson, Alex Coffin and Doug Henderson. Running unofficially will be Walt Mills, Howard Kahn, Jim Hunter, Baily Lipfert, Nick Palmer and Bill Luesing.

Wayne Bishop, number one man on last season's frosh squad, will miss the meet due to a leg injury. It is not known how long he will be out of action. It is feared that he may be sidelined for the entire campaign.

Although the squad showing in recent time trials has been disappointing, Coach Ranson expects performances to improve under the pressure of competition.

The Tar Heels walloped Virginia by a wide margin last season, and will be favored to turn the trick again in today's meet. Little is known about the Cavaliers, but they are not expected to be a threat to the powerful Carolinians.

The squad's condition is rather poor. Besides Bishop, several other men have been slow in rounding into shape. Sophomore Howard Kahn has been hampered by a knee injury, and Whatley was bothered by a virus condition earlier this year.
