Booters Wind Up With 4-3 Record

By JIM PURKS

Due to its three straight losses coming at the end of the season, the varsity soccer team ended up with a record, which, instead of being sensational as expected, was mediocre.

Coach Marvin Allen's squad was riding high until the contest with the Virginia Cavaliers. Until then the team had won four straight games, scoring 18 goals and allowing only three. The Cavaliers ended the winning streak and started the Tar Heels on a disastrous losing one in which they lost two more games, both to conference foes.

No one could offer a perfect answer to the puzzling fall of the team. Allen said that the schedule was one factor as the team had four easy contests at first and he did not have an opportunity to find out what their real weaknesses were, especially in the offense.

NO PUNCH

After the Virginia game, the offensive line lost all its scoring punch and Duke and Maryland proceeded to shut the Tar Heels out, 2-0 and 4-0 respectively.

Some members of the team cited the poor weather which has haunted the Tar Heels this year as a factor. Three of the contests were played on a muddy, wet field which slowed down play considerably. UNC played Davidson on a slick field and won by a slim 2-0 margin.

Then, rain preceded the Virginia game which the Tar Heels lost 2-0. Rain followed the Tar Heels up to College Park, Md. where they were beaten on a field more resembling a sea of mud where the players become so bated in mud they were almost indistinguishable.

LOSE VETERANS

Allen will lose several valuable veterans this year. The defensive wall will be especially weakened in the team will lose fullbacks, Mike Galifianakis, Ted Jones, and Chuck Hartman.

On the forward line Allen will lose the services of Captain Grover Brown at center forward, and left wings John Foster and Charlie Oyster.

Duke To Be In Top Spirits For Big Game

Murray Looks For Best Team Effort Of Season

DURHAM, (AP) — Duke football Coach Bill Murray said yesterday that he expects the Blue Devils to play their best game of the season in Saturday's final with North Carolina.

Murray, speaking to members of the press in Duke's weekly press conference, also said he thinks his team will be in the best physical condition of the year for the Tar Heels.

"I think the boys will be in the best frame of mind this week than at any other time this season," Murray commented. "I am looking for our best effort of the year."

Murray, who has never lost to Carolina since he came to Duke in 1951, told the group that Duke will make no drastic changes for Saturday's game, in which Duke will be after its seventh straight win over its rival. "We will continue to use the things that have been successful for us," he said.

Marty Pierson, Duke offensive end coach who has scouted the Tar Heels in their last three outings against Tennessee, Virginia and Notre Dame, was high in his praises for Carolina.

"Carolina is just as big as anyone we have played this season," Pierson said, "and the boys are fast, especially the number one backfield."

"I think Carolina has a lot of determination. They can do everything and have been improving vastly. They could have beaten Notre Dame except for a few bad breaks."

Pierson singled out back Ed Sutton as the outstanding man on the team. "He is a fine player and can break up any game with his running."

Reed Sidelined By Knee Injury

Quarterback Dave Reed looked familiar on the Carolina practice field yesterday as he hobbled on the same crutches he had to use for a month or more earlier in the season while coaches and trainers expressed hope that he would be off of them in time for the Duke game here Saturday.

Reed re-injured his knee Saturday early in the Notre Dame game, won by the Irish, 21-14. He had directed two beautiful Tar Heel drives against a baffled Notre Dame eleven and was a co-star with Ed Sutton before he had to retire.

Sutton, who at South Bend gained 132 yards rushing, completed three out of five passes for 40 yards and caught three for 24 worked at full speed but with a bandaged dislocated finger on his passing hand.

Others on the Tar Heel squad were bruised from the hard-fought battle with Notre Dame, but settled down to hard work for Duke. Coach Fred Tullai's freshman, who played the Duke frosh at Durham Thursday, donned Duke blue on defense against the varsity in the secret workout.

Curtis Hathaway, who played most of the game at South Bend, Ron Marquette and Doug Farmer carried on for the disabled Reed in offensive work. The squad drilled until long after dark intensively rehearsing both offense and defense.

Back Catches Own Pass

BALTIMORE, (AP) — Quarterback John Unitas of the Baltimore Colts is going to make the National Football League record book the hard way. He caught his own pass.

It happened in Sunday's game against the Detroit Lions. Unitas threw the ball. It hit Ray Krouse, big Lion lineman, and bounced straight back to Unitas. He caught it and gained a yard.

State Works For Maryland

RALEIGH, (AP) — North Carolina State's Wolfpack got down to heavy work yesterday in preparation for its season finale with Maryland here Thursday.

The squad heard a scouting report from assistant coach Pat Pepper, who called Maryland a sound defensive club despite its rather poor win-loss record. The squad began setting up defensive patterns designed to check the Maryland split T attack. Several new plays were installed. The first two teams ran through its multiple offense reserves. Quarterback Frank Cackovic alternated with Billy Franklin in the No. 1 backfield.

Tension Arises At Melbourne Soviet Runner In Bizarre Accident

By WILL GRIMSLEY

MELBOURNE, (AP) — Vladimir Kuts, Russia's world record holder in the 10,000 meter run, barely escaped serious injury yesterday when a gag turned into a near tragedy at Heidelberg Olympic village.

The stocky blond runner who is favored to win both 5,000 meter and 10,000 meter titles in the Olympic Games opening Thursday rammed an automobile into a telephone pole in front of the Russian quarters and came out with nothing more serious than a gashed chin.

"Everything is in order," a spokesman at Russian headquarters said. "Kuts was not seriously hurt and shortly after the accident he went out and resumed training."

Kuts is scheduled to run Friday in the 10,000 meters — an event in which his time of 28:30.4 is the best ever recorded. Later he is to run in the 5,000 meters, in which his best time is 13:39.6.

BIZARRE ACCIDENT

Kuts' accident was a bizarre one which climaxed another chill, windy day at the village, where the athletes are finding it increasingly difficult to reach top form.

The Russian distance ace had just finished an interview with a Melbourne newspaper reporter, in which he expressed interest in cars, when someone invited him to step in and try one of the small Australian models.

Kuts smilingly leaped into the front seat alone, stepped on the starter and got the car moving. He was circling a small court in front of the Russian quarters at approximately 20 miles per hour when he noticed one of the doors was not tightly closed.

He reached over to close it, and as he did the car careened wildly and struck a telephone pole.

MINOR INJURIES

Kuts jumped out of the car with blood pouring from his chin and went into one of the big brick buildings housing the Soviet athletes. Later he visited the hospital but left when his injuries were described as minor.

The Russians insisted Kuts was not badly hurt and immediately after the accident he went to the practice field for a few jaunts around the track.

Kuts appeared shaken at first but later seemed all right. The damage to the car was estimated at 300 pounds or more than $600. The telephone pole was bent by the impact.

As training tapered off at all venues for the giant sports spectacle, political tensions again raised their ugly head to plague the International Olympic Committee, which opened a three-day session.

PETITION DISTRIBUTED

A petition was distributed to the chiefs of mission of all competing nations asking that they institute action to bar Russia from the games.

The petition was sent by the Hungarian associations of Australia, which are said to represent the Hungarian associations of Austria, France, the United States and other countries.

The petition said in effect that it was incompatible with the Olympic ideals that athletes of the world should compete against a nation whose armies murdered innocent women and children.

Only the International Olympic Committee could ban any team, and this seemed unlikely in view of the announced stand that the games are a contest among individuals and that no politics should be allowed to enter the games.

Even so, it is likely some strong representations will be made against Russian competition when the IOC holds its second meeting tomorrow.

BRUNDAGE MAKES PLEA

Avery Brundage, president of the IOC, opened the meeting today with another plea for retention of the Olympic spirit in these times of stress. He said the Olympic movement "without money or soldiers can help stop warfare by setting examples of fair play and sportsmanship for politicians to follow."

Meanwhile, Jim Kelly, head coach of the U. S. track and field team, spent most of the day denying rumors which flitted around the village.

One was that he had decided to use Leamos King in the 100-meter dash although King failed as one of the three top qualifiers for the event. Second was a wild report that hammer thrower Cliff Blair had been booted off the team for "insubordination."
