

Tryouts Are Still Open For Campuswide Talent Program

Anyone may still sign up for the Calcadore of Talent show to be held after the Thanksgiving holidays, according to H. G. Snipes, its publicity chairman.

Snipes described the forthcoming program as being "an impressive and varied program which will be one of the most entertaining of the year." He said the list of talented students is becoming quite large, as Carolina has eagerly responded.

Tryouts are to be held next Wednesday and Thursday in Memorial Hall.

Gov. Proclaims Thursday As Thanksgiving

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges today proclaimed this coming Thursday as Thanksgiving Day and urged North Carolinians to be thankful "for another great harvest and other material blessing which will continue to provide our people with the highest standard of living in the world."

The Governor recalled the first Thanksgiving observed by the pilgrims in 1621 and said that like them, "We face many grave and perplexing problems in a world torn with dissension and conflict."

He said that to meet these problems will "require calm and courageous leadership, a keen understanding of people and events, an abiding faith in our fundamental democratic principles, a demonstration of our belief we are a Christian nation and a unity of purpose worthy of our great heritage as a free people."

He has been in jail without privilege of bond since May 27.

Legislature Deadlocked

UNENDORSED

An interesting affect about the judiciary election was that the ticket leaders in both the Men's and Women's Honor Council races were unendorsed by the Bi-Partisan Selections Board.

Miss Lucinda Holderness, whose busy day yesterday included being named queen of the Beat Dook parade, led the ticket in the Women's Council contest, and was unendorsed by the Selections Board.

Paul Carr, who topped the ticket in the Men's Council race, also failed to meet the approval of the Selections Board.

UPHILL CLIMB

The winning of one legislative seat from the University Party by the Student Party represented the culmination of a three-semester uphill climb for the SP.

The student Legislature had been dominated consistently for several years by the SP until the UP gained a 28-22 majority for the 20th Legislative assembly.

The SP made it 26-24 during the 21st assembly, then 25-24-1 during the 22nd assembly.

What young people are doing at General Electric

Young engineer sells million-dollar equipment to utilities

Selling electric equipment for a utility substation—a complex unit used in power transmission and distribution—requires extensive technical knowledge of the products involved. Men who sell such complex equipment must also know a customer's requirements, what will best fill his needs, and how to sell the merits of their products to the executives who buy such apparatus.

One such man at General Electric is 31-year-old Allen J. Clay, an apparatus sales engineer serving the electrical utility companies in the Philadelphia-Allentown area.

Clay's Work Is Important, Diversified

For Clay, technical selling is not a door-to-door job. As a representative of General Electric, he must be ready to discuss customer needs with vice presidents or help solve intricate problems with skilled engineers. His recommendations are based on his own engineering background, and are backed up by the know-how of the Company's best application engineers. His interest in working with people carries over into his community life, where he takes a part in many local activities—Rotary, Community Chest, Boy Scouts, and his University Engineering Alumni Association.

27,000 College Graduates at General Electric

Allen Clay is a well-rounded individual who has come to be a spokesman for General Electric wherever he goes. Like each of our 27,000 college-graduate employees, he is being given the chance to grow and realize his full potential. For General Electric has long believed this: Whenever fresh young minds are given freedom to make progress, everybody benefits—the individual, the Company, and the country.
