

The Daily Tar Heel

SPORTS

Larry Cheek, Sports Editor

A Good Beginning

Carolina's winter athletic teams are off to a flying start. After a week and a half of competition, all of the three varsity sports teams are unbeaten, and only the wrestling team has been hard pressed so far.

The highly ranked basketballers lead the way with three decisive wins in a row. Coach Ralph Casey's perennially powerful swimmers have racked up two one-sided triumphs with ridiculous ease, while the wrestlers of Coach Sam Barnes have posted a pair of wins and one lone tie.

GRAPPLERS ARE MUCH IMPROVED

A year ago, the pitiful UNC wrestlers were unable to win a single match. The Tar Heel squad struggled through a nine meet schedule with a notable lack of success. They came close to winning on only one occasion, losing out to Wake Forest, 16-18. And in their last three matches, against VPI, Maryland and Virginia, they were unable to score even one point.

Then this season came the about face. In their first meet, a doubleheader against Wake Forest and Washington & Lee, they whipped the Deacons and tied the Generals. Tuesday night in their second outing, they walloped Davidson, 20-8, to gain revenge for one of last year's littings.

Although the grapplers are off to a blazing start, they may have a good deal more trouble from here on out. Remaining on the schedule are Citadel, VMI, VPI, State, Duke, Virginia and Maryland, all teams with a considerable edge over the Tar Heels in manpower. But regardless of how the rest of the season goes, it will be one of the best campaigns in years for the Carolina wrestlers.

SWIMMERS CARRY ON TRADITION

Down in Bowman-Gray pool, it's the same old story. This year's Carolina swimming team is another good one, just like the powerhouses of the past. Outstanding swim teams have been the rule here at Carolina for the past 20 years, and this current edition is no exception.

The first two meets have been pure formality for the locals. They stomped East Carolina, 55-30, and followed up with a 69-15 trouncing of South Carolina's landlocked Gamecocks. The remaining meets should pretty much follow the pattern of these first two with only N. C. State posing a problem.

The eyes of the campus are focused primarily, however, on Coach Frank McGuire's brilliant basketballers. The Tar Heels, as expected, have proved to be the class of the conference at this early stage, and the chief question to be answered is "Can they keep it up?"

The Tar Heels are on the spot. Everybody will be gunning for them, trying to knock them from the top of the heap. The potential is there. It's simply a question of whether or not it will be achieved when the chips are down. Last season it wasn't. Let's hope the story will have a happier ending in this, the year of decision.

Frosh Basketballers Lose, 91-89, To State

Carolina's freshmen cagers were knocked out of the undefeated bracket last night when they were defeated in an overtime, 91-89, by the State College Wolflets.

The Tar Babies and Wolflets were tied 79-all at the end of the regulation time. In the three minute overtime, the boys from Raleigh found the range a little quicker than the Tar Babies and had a four point lead the last two seconds, but Tar Baby Lee Shaffer put one through to leave the Tar Babies only one basket behind as the sun went off.

Carolina had a 50-43 lead at the half. They had a bad night at the foul line connecting only 11 of 28. State had 29 of 39 attempts good.

UNC's Sutton Makes Irish All-Opponent

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Notre Dame's poorest football team in Irish history, today agreed that Oklahoma, No. 1 in the final national AP poll, was the best team it faced this season.

The Sooners blanked the Irish, 40-0.

The Irish, who wound up with a 2-8 record, selected three players each from Oklahoma, Michigan State and Purdue on their all-opponent team, a 13-man array.

Tommy McDonald of Oklahoma easily clinched one half-back berth, but Ed Sutton of North Carolina, and Clarence Peaks, and Dennis Mendyk of Michigan State tied at the other halfback post.

Remainder of the team: Joe Walton, Pittsburgh, and Lamar Lundy, Purdue, ends; Ed Gray, Oklahoma, and Alex Karras, Iowa, tackies; Dan Currie, Michigan State, and Ed Voytek, Purdue, guards; Jerry Tubbs, Oklahoma, center; Ken Ploen, Iowa, quarterback; and Mel Dillard, Purdue, fullback.

Walton, Karras, Tubbs and McDonald were All-America choices

Duke Leaves For Classics In Birmingham

DURHAM—(AP)—Duke's Blue Devils, with high hopes of pulling a major upset to keep their unbeaten record intact leave late today for Birmingham, Ala., to compete with three other strong quintets in the third annual Birmingham Classic.

The Blue Devils will open the two day tournament against nationally ranked and high scoring Alabama Friday night and the Duke team which surprised many observers by winning their first three contests, will definitely be up against one of the strongest teams they can hope to face all season. Duke is the decided underdog.

Alabama under new coach Dr. Eugene Lambert, has a 3-0 record to date and boasts the highest scoring team in the nation at the present time. The Crimson Tide in its first three games has averaged 106 points a game. It rolled over Jacksonville State, 102-56; downed Birmingham Southern 110-69; and beat Eastern Kentucky, 103-88.

The Blue Devils have shown in beating Georgia Tech, South Carolina and Clemson that they have the makings of a good team and a win over the Tide would definitely assure Coach Harold Bradley of the calibre of his boys.

The other first round Friday night finds Mississippi Southern engaging a highly touted West Virginia ball club, also unbeaten. The southerners have lost one.

The finals of the Classic come on Saturday night and promoters have estimated the best crowd yet.

Six Coeds To Sponsor Squadron

The Air Force ROTC unit has announced the names of six coeds who have been selected to the Sponsor Squadron.

The coeds serve in the capacity of morale boosters for the unit. They work with the cadets in sponsoring the Air Force Dance and are present at all dress reviews and shows.

The six recently selected to the group were Misses Mary Louise Bizzell, Goldsboro; Carol Dennis, Essex Fall, N. J.; Marian Dickens, Thomasville; Pat Dillon, Statesville; Angeline Papazisis, Jacksonville, Fla., and Carolyn Placak, Tryon.

They will serve with the coeds who were selected to the group last year, which includes Misses Mary (Pee Wee) Batten, Mt. Gillett; Isabel Holbrook, Kannapolis; Elizabeth James, Robersonville; Janet Johnson, Orlando, Fla.; Jo Ane Knott, Oxford; Barbara Love, Lenoir; Isabel Madry, Kinston; Sylvia McArthur, Spartanburg, S. C.; Barbara Miles, Burlington; Edith Moore, Sylva; Amy Morse, Washington, D. C.; Anne Newsome, Hampton, Va.; Ann Sorman, Enfield; Patsy Poythress, Chapel Hill and Susan Walker, Wilmington.

The girls are nominated by a member of the Cadet Corps and chosen by a selection board composed of cadets.

Officers of the group include Misses Susan Walker, Honorary Cadet Colonel; Anne Newsome, Adjutant and Recorder; Pat Dillon, Operations Officer and Barbara Miles, Comptroller.

NORFOLK, Va. — (AP) — North Carolina's sixth-ranked Tar Heels, with Lennie Rosenbluth caging 27 points, dominated play from start to finish here Wednesday to rout George Washington 82-55 in an interconference basketball game.

The game was strictly no contest as the Atlantic Coast Conference Tar Heels scored eight points before GW got its first tally. North Carolina, winning its third straight contest, rolled up a 34-13 halftime lead and used its entire squad against its Southern Conference foe.

George Washington, essentially a sophomore squad, hit only 26 per cent of its shots in going down to its third straight defeat but this was the first time the Colonial really had been out-classed.

The Tar Heels hit on 43 per cent of their shots with Joe Quigg backing up Rosenbluth's scoring with 16 points and dominating the boards. Rosenbluth and Quigg were the only Tar Heels to hit in double figures as the entire squad saw action.

GW's only bright spot was the play of Eugene Guarilia, 6-6 sophomore center who collected 19 points, the only Colonial in double figures.
