

Tar Heels Meet Clemson Here Tonight; Frosh Play Wake

(Today's column is written by Daily Tar Heel Sports Writer Bill King.)

Tar Heel Cagers Boast Balanced Attack

It might be a little early yet to start presenting the Carolina cagers with bouquets because the Tar Heels still have a long road to travel in order to dethrone N. C. State as ACC champs, but Coach Frank McGuire's tall and talented aggregation has certainly proven itself the team to beat and there's a very good reason for this—the Tar Heels play basketball as it should be played—as a team.

The Carolina - William and Mary box-score will serve as a good illustration of the point under discussion. The Indians held high scoring Lennie Rosenbluth to only ten points and normally this would bring about devastating results to a ball club which features a great scorer like Ross. But Rosenbluth's bad night had little effect on the final outcome because Pete Brennan, Joe Quigg and Tommy Kearns took up the slack left by Rosenbluth and tallied 52 of Carolina's 71 points.

This was not the first time that the Tar Heels had called upon their clutch guys. Up in Madison Square Garden during the Christmas holidays, Big Len was held to 9 points against N.Y.U. and this time it was Bob Cunningham, normally not much of a scorer but a terrific floor man, who provided the scoring punch for the Tar Heels. Against Furman Quigg came off the bench and shook the Tar Heels out of a momentary delirium with a quick scoring flurry.

What this all boils down to is the definite fact that the Tar Heels are far from being a one or two man team. Every one of the first seven men are big scoring threats and it goes without saying that a team with those qualities is one that is going to be plenty tough to beat.

Jackie Moreland: Man With A Problem

Most college students right now have laid aside thoughts of anything but exams but there's one fellow over at North Carolina State who is probably more concerned about what he'll be doing a month from now than how his exams will come out. The fellow is one Jackie Moreland, the unfortunate victim of one of the biggest college athletic squabbles in a long time. Jackie, an honor student, is caught between the devil and the deep blue sea now that the ACC is undecided as to whether or not it will review his case again.

Only in the past few days has there been any doubt that Jackie's problems would be aired out again, but now the conference committee is reportedly planning to call the case closed.

Moreland admittedly likes the Raleigh school and would like to stay on if there is any possibility that he might still get to wear the red and white. On the other hand he probably feels that he is wasting a semester by sticking around Raleigh if the committee does decide to call the case a closed matter. It's understandable that Jackie would rather move on to another school and establish residence in order to be eligible to play as quickly as possible. It's an unenviable position to be in and a tough decision for a 19 year old to make.

Needed: More Games In Woollen Gym

Seems a shame that the highly ranked Tar Heels are playing only eight games in Chapel Hill this season and the situation does not show any signs of improving in the immediate future. The story is that the Woollen Gym seating capacity limits the number of fans outside the students to attend the games and this means that Carolina has very little to offer in the way of money to its opponents for a trip to Chapel Hill.

Many schools are anxious to play the Tar Heels but their stipulation is that the game is to be played on their own home court. Naturally the Tar Heels benefit from this arrangement financially—and so goes the story. Still it seems that the students are not exactly getting a fair shake.

The hot and cold Clemson Tigers invade "the Hill" tonight and will be out to pull a stunning upset as they did against N. C. State early in the season. Tomorrow night the Virginia Cavaliers will be in town and these two contests will give Carolina students a short respite before they buckle down to the tasks of exams.

Tatum Says He Intends To Stay At Chapel Hill

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Jim Tatum, football coach at North Carolina, yesterday scotched a report he was dissatisfied there and was interested in the vacant head coaching job at Indiana.

Tatum, here for the American Football Coaches Assn. meeting, said he hadn't asked Indiana or any other school for a coaching job.

Tatum said he left one of "the best coaching jobs in the country at Maryland" to go to North Carolina last season and he intended to stay there.

At Louisville, Ky., the Courier Journal said that Jim Tatum is reportedly dissatisfied with his present position as North Carolina

UNC Quint Goes After Number 13

By LARRY CHEEK

That magic number 13 comes up tonight for Coach Frank McGuire's Carolina basketballers when the undefeated Tar Heels play host to the Clemson Tigers in the first of a two game home stand against ACC opposition.

The towering Tar Heels, ranked second in the nation behind Kansas, have breezed to 12 consecutive wins without a loss this season and will be looking for numbers 13 and 14 against Clemson tonight and Virginia tomorrow night. Both games will tip off at 8 p.m. after a freshman preliminary.

In a game played earlier this season in Charlotte, Carolina routed Clemson, 94-75. Pete Brennan sparked the red hot Tar Heels in their best effort of the season, hitting for 28 points.

The Tigers, beset by personnel problems, have had little luck since that date. The only bright spot so far has been an upset win over N.C. State down in South Carolina. Earlier this month, Coach Press Maravich suspended two of his top performers for disciplinary reasons, but the two guards, Tom Cameron and Dick Yeary, have since been reinstated by Maravich.

The Tar Heels will be more than happy to see their home court again. Tuesday night they journeyed up to Williamsburg, Va., to battle the William & Mary Indians, and barely managed to escape with their scalps. The largest crowd ever to see a game in the W & M gym watched their darlings drop a 71-61 decision to the cold Tar Heels.

The Indians hit 48 per cent of their shots while Carolina could do no better than 30 per cent as Lennie Rosenbluth sank only 1 of 3 from the floor. But the superior UNC height and all round play meant the difference.

Clemson has one of the ACC's leading scorers in junior forward Vice Vockel, who is averaging 18.0 through the first 10 games. Bill Yarborough, Cameron and Gene Seay are also hitting in double figures.

The Tar Heels also have four men averaging in double figures. The Tar Heels also have four men averaging in double figures. Rosenbluth leads the way with 25.2, followed by Pete Brennan at 15.7, Tommy Kearns at 13.1 and Joe Quigg at 11.3. The starting lineup will be made up of Rosenbluth, Brennan, Bill Hathaway, Kearns and Bob Cunningham.

"Here's How Its Done"

UNC wrestling coach Sam Barnes demonstrates a new and evidently amusing hold to his undefeated ace, Captain Bob Wagner.

Hungarian Distance Runner Laszlo Tabori To Train Here

Laszlo Tabori, Hungary's distinguished distance runner, has shifted his training grounds to UNC in preparation for his American debut.

Tabori will make his first American appearance in the two-mile run in the Knights of Columbus games at Boston Jan. 19. His chief competition will come from American ace Horace Ashenfelter in the 31st K. of C. event. Ashenfelter, the FBI man and veteran curved board campaigner, has won the two-mile in Boston the past seven years.

Dale Ransom, University track coach, said he had offered the Hungarian star the use of Finley golf course and the indoor track at Woollen gym for training purposes. The nearby University Motel also would be available as residential quarters, Ransom said.

The Tar Heel coach said he had not been informed officially as to whether the Carolina facilities had been accepted.

Ransom said late last night that he thought Tabori would come in today on the 10:20 or 11:20 plane to the Raleigh-Durham airport.

Last night Tabori denied reports which said he was dissatisfied with training conditions at Miami, Fla. Tabori said his only problem at his Miami site was transportation from his hotel to the track.

In Boston, a K. of C. Spokesman said that Tabori and his 48-year-old coach, Mihaly Igloi, settled on the North Carolina campus here after conferring with Dan Ferris, secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union, in New York.

Shaffer, Larese To Lead Team

Carolina's once beaten Tar Baby cagers face their third Big Four opponent of the season tonight when they play host to the Baby Deacons from Wake Forest in a 6:15 preliminary to the varsity game against Clemson.

The Carolina frosh have won five decisions while losing only to N. C. State's highly touted yearlings. They whipped their other Big Four rival, Duke, by a convincing margin.

Most of the Tar Baby wins to date have been one sided romps over junior colleges, but the competition should be a little stiffer tonight. Wake Forest varsity coach Murray Grason, with the able assistance of Bones McKinney, has gathered together a top notch group of recruits at the Baptist school. They also have lost to State, however.

As usual the Tar Baby starters will be Lee Shaffer and York Larese at forwards, Dick Kepley at center, and John Crotty and Mike Steppe at guards. Grey Poole, Wally Graham, Jack Crutchfield and Bill McRacken are top reserves.

Shaffer and Larese have paced the Tar Baby scoring all year long with able assistance from Kepley and Crotty.

Tomorrow night the Tar Babies will meet a rugged squad from Stallings Air Force Base here.

PERFECT NAME FOR WRESTLER likes to talk about. He's a 250-pounder named Atlas Buffalo from Garner, N.C. As Barnes puts it: "The perfect name for a wrestler."
