Work Has Begun On Hospital Wing $300,000 Psychiatric Wing Will Provide Research Space

Construction on a new $300,000 wing on the Psychiatric Center of Memorial Hospital has gotten underway. The addition to the Center will provide more space for research and service functions. Contracts for the new two-story addition to South Wing, which houses the Center, were awarded on Jan. 3.

The new addition is located on the east side of South Wing. It will occupy a ground area that was formerly used as a recreation area. The new addition will measure approximately 36 by 70 feet.

The money allotted to the project will provide for both building and new equipment.

One half of the $300,000 came from the State of North Carolina and the other 50 per cent was furnished by the Federal Government under the Hill-Burton Act. The Hill-Burton Act provides matching funds for the construction of hospitals and other health facilities.

The new structure is scheduled to be completed by Oct., 1957.

As a part of the project, extensive alterations will be made in the existing two lower floors of South Wing, which is a five-story building connected to N. C. Memorial Hospital by an enclosed passageway.

The present unfinished ground floor of South Wing will be made into laboratory space, offices and interview rooms. Research laboratories to be built include those with facilities for bio-chemical investigation for electro-physiological studies. Also, space for the detailed examination of patients for both investigational and teaching purposes will be provided.

The ground floor of the new addition will be largely occupied by an extension of the occupational therapy area. One large room here is designed to have many functions including that of an auditorium for large conferences and classes.

On the present first floor of South Wing, there will be extensive alteration both to increase the number of treatment rooms and to improve the soundproofing for greater privacy.

The corresponding floor of the new wing will have a number of offices and interviewing rooms to extend the area of the present occupational adult and child psychiatry area.

NBC's Monitor Will Cover Mardi Gras Here Feb. 15-16 Event To Be Biggest In Hill Social History

By MARY ALYS VOORHEES

Monitor, NBC's weekend radio, will be at Chapel Hill Feb. 15-16 to cover the Carolina Mardi Gras, according to an announcement made yesterday by George Ragsdale, German Club vice president.

The nationwide radio will record at various intervals during the dance weekend and play back the entire recording the following weekend. Ragsdale pointed out that this was the first college dance in this area to be covered by Monitor to his knowledge.

Expected by Mardi Gras chairman Jim Armstrong and Ragsdale to be the biggest social weekend in the history of the University, the event will be sponsored by the German Club in observance of Winter Germans and GM AB in celebration of its 25th anniversary.

According to Armstrong, GMAB had been planning a dance for the entire student body for over a year and therefore arranged to be co-sponsors with the German Club for the Winter Germans.

As a highlight of the weekend, the co-sponsors will present the music of Louis Armstrong and the Mitchell-Ruff Duo.

Two types of tickets will be available for the weekend events: The GMAB ticket—which sells for $2 per couple—will entitle the holder to attend the concert by the Mitchell-Ruff Duo Friday from 8 p.m. to 10 in Memorial Hall and the formal dance Saturday from 8 p.m. to 12 in Woollen Gym featuring the music of Louis Armstrong and his All Stars.

German Club members will use their bids, which are for the Louis Armstrong concert Saturday from 3 p.m. to 5 in Memorial Hall and the formal dance at Woollen Gym Saturday night. The Louis Armstrong concert on Saturday afternoon will be for German Club members only. However, German Club members may attend the Mitchell-Ruff Duo Concert Friday by purchasing the $2 GMAB ticket in addition to the German Club bid. GMAB tickets are now on sale (See MARDI GRAS, Page 3)

Noted Pianist Is Featured Artist In Petite Musicale Tomorrow Night

Pianist Helen McGraw will be the featured artist in Les Petites Musicales concert tomorrow night at 8.

Sponsored by Graham Memorial Activities Board, the recital will be held in the main lounge of Graham Memorial.

As an interpreter of modern music, Miss McGraw has played extensively in this country and abroad, in concerts, as soloist with orchestras, and with other artists in chamber music. Her American tours have brought her to Chapel Hill on a number of occasions.

As a music student, Helen McGraw studied under the Russian pianist, Alexander Sklarevski, at the Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore, where she was granted piano scholarships and awarded its Artists Diploma. She later continued her studies in Paris.

Winner of the Walter Naumburg Foundation, Miss McGraw was given the honor of opening the first annual Festival of American Music, held at the National Gallery in Washington in 1944 and broadcast to South America. The success of the program led to her reengagement to open the second Festival in 1945.

In selecting her music Miss McGraw frequently chooses to present the first performances of contemporary works. While not neglecting the great works of the past, she seeks out the best of new piano music.

Highlighting tomorrow night's program will be a work which concert audiences in this country have had few opportunities to hear, the Sixth Sonata by Serge Prokofieff. Critics have termed the sixth sonata as "one of the few monumental and philosophical profound works for piano written in recent years." The program also includes works by Bach, Beethoven, Ravel and Bartok. No admission is charged for the concert.

Village Residents Return To Homes No Active Campaign Planned For Better Housing Conditions

By PHYLLIS MAULTSBY

Sixteen families displaced by the fire which gutted a heating unit in Victory Village have moved back into their homes on the heels of a clean-up job.

The heating unit fire, which flared up late on the afternoon of Thursday, January 19, left the housing units temporarily without heat and caused considerable soot damage.

According to Housing Director James Wadsworth, everyone cooperated in the house cleaning. The families moved out, and the interiors of the homes were cleaned and then repainted.

The University Laundry Dept. washed all the soiled garments and linen which would stand soap and water treatment, and a local dry cleaner provided free cleaning service. Lenoir Dining Hall reduced the price of meals for those affected by the fire.

Students unable to find temporary lodging with friends in Victory Village or in Chapel Hill were sheltered in the old Institute of Government Bldg. on Franklin St. Victory Village Manager P. L. Burch said the heating system had been going for a week or more and the housing units had been ready for the students to move back in by last Sunday at the latest.

Burch said the damaged furnace had been reworked, and new parts had been added. He said it was unnecessary to replace the furnace, as had first been indicated, since extent of the damage was not as serious as early estimates had shown them to be. Burch stated any new furnace for the heating system would have to be specially made.

Most of the Victory Village dwellers affected by the fire indicated they planned no active campaign for better conditions. In answer to a question concerning rumored petitioning of the state legislature for better housing, Victory Villager James Potter quoted Housing Director Wadsworth as saying "it was a good thing to put before the legislators," but, according to Potter, no action has been taken along these lines thus far.

Copies of the script of "Brigadoon" are on reserve in the library. The production will be given at Memorial Hall the weekend of March 1, 2, 3.

Book Exchange Flooded After Rains Thursday

Two to three inches of water flooded the low spots in the back of the UNC Book Exchange Thursday night.

The water, brought by the heavy rains, entered the book exchange through a pipe enclosing two steam mains coming from the Playmakers' Theater. The flood damaged approximately $40 to $50 worth of books, estimated one employee.

The water was cleaned up yesterday morning. One clerk said, "it was a mess."

Orientation Files Open This Week

Orientation and Handbook files will be open Monday-Friday in the Council Room of Graham Memorial from 3:00 - 5:00 p.m.

Applicants who find this time inconvenient should notify Peggy Funk at the Chi Omega House to make individual arrangements. All girls who are interested in either position should look through these files before filling out an application, according to Miss Funk.

After becoming familiar with the records, the applicant should submit with her application, original ideas and a plan for this year's Handbook or Orientation program. These are to be turned into the Dean of Women's Office no later than Feb. 16.

Applicants will be notified by the chairman of the Women's Residence Council to appear before an interviewing committee. At this time, the applicant will be given the opportunity to discuss her earlier submitted plan and to answer any questions pertaining to it. The committee will look for originality and organization and will consider the applicant's critical analysis of past Handbooks or Orientation programs. A theme should be suggested for the Handbook, Miss Funk said. Anyone wanting further information about either position should call Peggy Funk or the personnel staff in the Dean of Women's Office.
