Garbage Disposal Still Problem Here

By WALT SCHRUNTEK

Four years ago the District Health Dept. conducted a campaign to clear up a sanitary problem which existed as an eyesore and health menace to a business area of Chapel Hill in addition to several campus locations.

The dept., after a series of investigations and surveys, ordered several fraternity and business locations to correct the conditions which they found to exist.

Because of the large abundance of garbage materials they found conducive to fly-breeding, the dept. required that violators construct separate "garbage houses" to facilitate their debris until it was picked up by collectors.

The purpose of the covered garbage houses was primarily a sanitation promotion but it was intended to serve a social function as well. Debris and garbage cluttering would, under the Health Dept. plan, no longer exist as an eyesore to the back alleys of the community.

Fraternity houses almost immediately set to work to correct the situation as directed and within two years every house approached by the dept. met prescribed sanitation requirements.

The campaign bogged down in Chapel Hill, however, when several of the business establishments cited discovered a contingent of factors would prevent their complying with the Health Dept. order.

Conditions depending upon the number of times garbage was collected each week, the type of building to be constructed and a town ordinance covering specific aspects of the problem, provided the initial drawbacks.

Later, when it was discovered that the town proposed to pave a road behind the stores, property line considerations entered in to confuse the situation.

Several business establishments discovered their property space was completely utilized and it would not be possible to construct the buildings required by the Health Dept.

The Dept. yielded to these facts, according to Dr. O. David Garvin of the District Health office, although every attempt was made to effect a workable sanitation program under the existing conditions.

Where possible, the merchants were required to construct the necessary garbage houses and where not possible, the Dept. tried to prevail for the establishment of daily garbage collection.

Since the initial campaign by health officials, much has been done to correct the problem which existed four years ago.

The overall problem which existed then has been tempered to a large degree. Dr. Garvin said Thursday conditions in the fraternity areas, as a result of this program, have improved immensely.

"Whether it has been solely a result of our campaign or the pride taken by the boys themselves, we can't say," Dr. Garvin said.

But as to the conditions which exist behind the business area in Chapel Hill at present the Health Dept. hasn't been able to do anything definite.

The Dept. hasn't received any outstanding complaints, Dr. Garvin indicated, nor has it been able to contend with the conditions which existed as a deterrent four years ago and which still exist today.

He further indicated the Dept. was not actively involved in this problem at present but was of the opinion that it would assume more importance as summer drew near.

Summer, it seems, is fly breeding and health-sanitation campaign season.

Students Are Urged To Apply By Levy, Young

Edwin Levy, chairman of the Orientation Counselor Selection Subcommittee, and outgoing student body President Bob Young Thursday urged students to make applications for positions as orientation counselors for the coming year.

Levy emphasized the fact more counselors will be needed due to the expected increase in enrollment for the 1957 fall semester.

He said as yet no selections have been made, but reminded interested students they must turn in their application blanks to Graham Memorial or the YMCA before Tuesday.

Stating "the work of the committee is of no significance if the proper persons are not selected to serve as orientation counselors," Young called the work of the counselor a "challenge and a privilege."

In speaking of the counselors, Young said, "These are the persons who make a first and lasting impression upon all the students within their individual group. I am sure that each of us vividly remembers the impression that our orientation counselor had upon us. Each of us should realize the importance of the work of these persons."

"Most of the time the orientation counselor is responsible for guiding and preparing members of his group for their entire college career," Young stated.

Application blanks for orientation counselor may be obtained at the YMCA, Graham Memorial, Monogram Club, Lenoir Hall and the library.

A test for prospective counselors will be given Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in 106 Carroll Hall on material in the 1956 Counselor's manual. Manuals may be obtained at the YMCA, Graham Memorial or the library.

Cummings Is Congratulated For Hard Work

Outgoing Student Body President Bob Young Thursday congratulated Elections Board Chairman Ralph Cummings for the board's work in Tuesday's election and during the past year.

"For the first time in four years there was no controversial fiasco during the elections," Young said.

Young also praised the board's work in revision of elections laws this year. "I am confident that the revisions for which your board is responsible will be an asset to the future functioning of campus elections."

Voting totals released Wednesday revealed that slightly fewer people voted in this year's spring election than did last year.

In dorm men's districts, 1594 votes were cast, under 1907 cast last year. Approximately 135 fewer dorm women voted this spring. In the combined men and women's town districts, 732 votes were cast this year, as opposed to 941 cast in 1956.

There will be a meeting of Daily Tar Heel staffers today at 3 p.m., newly elected Editor Neil Bass announced yesterday.

All staff members and students interested in joining the staff are urged to attend.

"As I said during the campaign, I feel the paper's staff is not large enough to comprehensively cover the campus. Thus I would like, first of all, to acquire and orient a large staff," Bass said.

"Experience is not necessarily a prerequisite. If you have any interest in or inclination toward newspaper work, I would appreciate your attending this meeting," Bass said.

Validity Of Ballenger's Theory To Be Tested

An experiment will be conducted in the Physics Dept. here today or tomorrow to determine the validity of the theory of William Ballenger, free-lance physicist, who claims Newton's law does not hold true.

Ballenger met with members of the Physics Dept. Thursday morning to discuss his theory and make arrangements for a public debate.

Ballenger said following the meeting: "We've come so close in our thinking that there would be no point in having a debate."

Members of the Physics Dept. said, however, "We are in agreement concerning a way as to how to test this theory. We are in no other agreement."

Ballenger said he asked for public debate with UNC physicists to stimulate interest in a larger experiment, one which physicists said would cost from $5-10 thousand.

Ballenger said of the smaller experiment, "This could possibly prove my theory but the results would not be nearly as conclusive as tests using highly magnetic materials."

A petition was presented Wednesday to Consolidated University President William C. Friday, requesting that a public debate be held on Ballenger's theory. The petition was referred to University Chancellor Robert House, who could not be reached for comment yesterday.

The petition had approximately 150 signatures.
