Hussein Ibrahim Hussein Nasr of Hawamieh, Egypt, is the special student taking part in the program of the Foreign Student Leadership Project of the U.S. National Student Assn.

According to retiring student body President Bob Young, the purpose of Nasr's coming to the Carolina campus is to observe conditions in all fields of activity, including the academic program, student organizations and student leadership opportunities.

"He will have the opportunity to see not only the lives of the student government and its leaders but also the lives of typical students," said Young.

Financing the Egyptian's year at UNC will be a $1000 appropriation from the Student Legislature which has been approved by the University. The appropriation includes scholarship aid covering tuition, room and board, and incidental expenses.

Nasr will arrive at Carolina as a special student in the College of Arts and Sciences on Sept. 15 and will remain until June 7, 1957. While here he will live in one of the men's dormitories on campus.

New President Wants Student Fees For Lots

"Continued cooperation by all involved will once again be the key to any success that we will experience," was a point strongly emphasized by student body President Sonny Evans in his inaugural address last night.

After praising Bob Young's administration, Evans listed first the Graham Memorial student union problem as one of six important problems facing the students. He said he hoped a permanent director for GM would be hired by the end of the semester.

"I believe that the most far-reaching achievement that student government can make next year is working with the director in the preparation of a prospectus for a new building," he stated. The prospectus will be presented to the Budget Commission.

"I plan to establish an arm of Student Government to aid the Student Affairs Office in the processing of campus violations," Evans stated. He hopes to use the money from student fees to finance parking lots already planned by the University Engineering Dept.

For the repair of dormitory television sets Evans hopes to set up a contingency fund obtained from a percentage of vending machines profits.

Evans plans to try to make physical education voluntary for veterans.

The new president pledged himself to work again for reduced rates for date tickets for the home games. Evans hopes to present a bill to the Student Legislature which would separate the investigation and prosecution powers from the judgement powers in the Judiciary Branch.

"And finally, student government must present a unified front for the new administrative officials coming here in June if we are to continue the respect that is so necessary to achieve," he said in his conclusion.

He stated, "we must continue to take our place in the affairs of the state in taking firm stands on issues which effect University life."

LOOKS FORWARD

Evans said he would fill student government "on the basis of ability, interest and experience." He concluded, "I look forward to a grand year of accomplishment and service to the University of North Carolina student body."

Also sworn in were Vice President Don Furtado, Secretary Miss Dot Pressly and Treasurer Bob Carter. Luther Hodges Jr., chairman of the Student Council, administered the oath to the four officials.

Furtado swore in new members of the legislature.

TO CAROLINA STUDENTS:

German Brings Top Talent

Carolina's German Club, as long as history as it is on ability to bring the nation's top talent to UNC, will present its final concert and dance of the year tomorrow night.

"The Four Freshmen," often proclaimed to be the nation's tops in popular vocal music, vivacious Paula George and the band of Ray Eberle will round out the 1957 series of three Germans tomorrow night.

The German Club, 600-700 strong at present, has guided the eyes of the nation onto the Chapel Hill campus through their importation of some of the best talent in the entertainment fields of jazz, swing, and popular music.

LONGWAY Although Carolina students accept this top entertainment to be synonymous with the German Club, the organization has come a long way since 1890.

The solemn group of 44 members, with their hair parted down the middle, draped in dark tails and sitting stiffly on the steps of Wilson Memorial Library posing for what was probably their first formal picture, could hardly have produced the array of nationally famous talent offered Carolina students recently.

An unidentified UNC historian revealed in a telephone conversation with outgoing German Club President Keith Palmer that "the German Club was on campus when I first came to UNC in 1890."

VOID IN PAST But a chain of telephone calls produced ought in attempts, to ascertain the exact beginning of the German Club. Thumbing through the volumes in the Wilson Library produced only a photograph of the German Club members in the Yackety Yack of 1901.

This void in the organization's past has prompted president-elect for next year Mark Cherry to begin a campaign to unlock the mystery of the club's history.

"Plans are in progress to conduct a campaign to find out the origin of the club, its history, membership, etc. Letters will be written to the 1901 and 1902 officers of the German Club to determine aspects of its derivation and functions. Anyone knowing of any information relating to this period of the Club's history is urged to contact me at the Phi Delta Theta house," Cherry said.

The German Club has had three of the top attractions in the nation appear at their programs this year.

The Fall German, held on Oct. 26, introduced Carolina students Fats Domino, king of "Rock and Roll" music and the Billy May orchestra directed by Stan Donahue.

For the Winter German, Feb. 16, the German Club joined with Graham Memorial and the ears of Monitor to present the sounds of "the trumpet man," Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong. The incomparable king of jazz and Dixieland filled Memorial Hall in concert as well as Woollen Gym in dance.

EQUAL PERFORMANCE And it appears that tomorrow night will at least equal the performances of fall and winter.

"The Four Freshmen," with instruments as well as the nation's top vocal quality, will visit the campus. Paula George, sultry songstress of the Julie London style, will accompany the group in intermittent performances.

Ray Eberle and his orchestra will play for the dance.

Both the "Four Freshman" and Eberle will entertain German members and their dates in a concert to be held in Memorial Hall tomorrow from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. The dance tomorrow night will last from 8 p.m. until midnight.
