Dr. W. L. Wells To Discuss Effects Of Atomic Fallout

Dr. Warner L. Wells, assistant professor of surgery at U.N.C., authority on atomic fallout and author of the well-known book on the subject, "Hiroshima Diary," will speak Tuesday night at a supper meeting in the back dining room of Lenoir Hall.

Dr. Wells, who spent some time in Japan studying case histories, will discuss the subject "The Atomic Bomb: The Effect of Fallout on Mankind." He was the receiver of the O. Max Gardner award here last May, which is given each year "To the member of the faculty of the Consolidated University, who, during the current scholastic year, has made the greatest contribution to the welfare of the human race."

Dr. Wells won the award primarily for discovering, translating and editing "Hiroshima Diary." This is the story of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima, as kept in the diary of Dr. Nichihiko Hachiya of Hiroshima.

The supper will be sponsored by the YWCA and YMCA at 6

LAST ISSUE

This is the last issue of the Summer School Weekly until the second summer session. The next issue will appear on Friday, July 19.

Those interested in joining the staff for the second session are asked to attend a staff meeting to be held in the Daily Tar Heel office in Graham Memorial at 3:30 p.m. on Monday, July 15.

DR. WARNER L. WELLS To Speak Here Tuesday

Carolyn Hilker Made Queen Of Gala Watermelon Festival

Students Name Jurgensen Melon King

Kai Jurgensen, a jovial, scooter-riding dramatics professor, and Carolyn Hilker, a lovely, blue-eyed blonde coed reigned Wednesday evening in Y Court as King and Queen of the Watermelon Festival.

Miss Hilker's two attendants were Noel Vossler, a gray-eyed blonde, and Mary Frances Hart, a blue-eyed brunette.

Chancellor William Aycock announced the identity of the King and Queen, kept secret until the event, crowned the two, and presented the Queen with a bouquet of garden flowers. The two attendants were then presented gardenia corsages.

Miss Hilker, sponsored by Beta Theta Pi fraternity, is from Charlotte and regularly attends Queens College there where she will be a junior majoring in elementary education next year.

When asked how she liked Carolina, the sun-tanned beauty flashed a radiant smile and said, "I love Carolina, and the boys here are even nicer than I expected them to be."

King of the Festival, Kai Jurgensen, is one of the best known and best-liked professors on the campus. Renowned for riding to class on his motor bike, this professor of dramatics originally hails from Denmark. He is currently in the process of directing "Shoemaker's Holiday" in the Forest Theater. He translated "Peer Gynt" which was given in the Forest Theater this past spring.

Miss Vossler, sponsored by Aycock Dorm, is from Fayetteville, and regularly attends Salem College where she is a rising junior and a French major.

Miss Hart, sponsored by Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, is from Elkin and regularly attends Duke University where she will be a sophomore majoring in piano and education next year.

The King of the Festival was chosen by popular student voting, and the Queen was chosen from the top three contestants by popular voting after several days of penny voting for the 18 contestants.

The Watermelon Festival, sponsored each summer by the Summer School Activities Board, also had many other attractions.

After the crowning of the King and Queen, a watermelon eating contest was held between a faculty and a student team, each picked by the Activities Board.

The three judges, Jean Smith, Dr. Bernard Boyd and William Aycock, picked the winning team on the basis of the team that ate the most, the fastest and the funniest.

WILLIAM AYCOCK Our New Chancellor

Bill Aycock Assumes Role As Chancellor

William Brantley "Bill" Aycock, after a series of outstanding accomplishments, is now chancellor of UNC. He officially took over his duties July 1, replacing retiring Chancellor Robert B. House.

A special selection committee of trustees, alumni and faculty nominated Aycock for the chancellor's position, and William C. Friday, president of the Consolidated University, presented his name to the Board of Trustees.

A graduate of State College in Raleigh, where he was president of the student body, Aycock received his master's degree in political science and history from UNC in 1937.

After teaching history at Greensboro High School and serving as an administrator for the National Youth Administration, Aycock entered the Army in 1942 as a first lieutenant.

He was on active duty in the European Theater of Operations and was decorated with the Silver Star medal for bravery in action in Germany. He also received the Bronze Star and the Legion of Merit.

He then enrolled in law school at UNC where he edited the Law Review and graduated in 1948. Following graduation Aycock became a member of the law faculty here.

In 1955-56 Aycock was acting dean of the law school. This year he has been a visiting professor of law at the University of Virginia.

Aycock has spent most of the spring months not only fulfilling his duties in Virginia, but also orienting himself to his duties here as chancellor.

The new chancellor is married to the former Grace Mewborn of Snow Hill and has two children, W. P. Aycock II and Nancy. The Aycocks will reside on Country Club Road in the D. D. Carroll house, which the university recently bought.

Grad Club Plans Picnic

The Graduate Club will hold its first social event of the summer tonight when it sponsors a free picnic and dance for the students and faculty.

The picnic will be at 6 p.m. around Davie Poplar. The menu will consist of hot dogs, potato salad and colas furnished by Lenoir Hall.

After the picnic or about 7:45 p.m. a dance will be in Y Court. The dance will consist of both round and square dancing, the latter called by G. C. Pridgen.

According to Bob Rennick, president of the Grad Club, the events will be open to all students and faculty and administration but will be particularly for the grad students. "It is an opportunity," he said, "for grads to get together and meet other grads."

In case of rain, the picnic will be in the south dining room on the ground floor of Lenoir Hall, and the dance will be in the Tin Can.

Students working on the dance and picnic are Bob Rennick, G. C. Pridgen, Preston Browning, David Heck and Edith Winslow. Mary Moore Mason and Jean Pierre Boissavit are in charge of publicity.

Evans Makes New Summer Appointments

Three vacancies on the Women's Honor Council were filled yesterday by Student Government president Sonny Evans. The appointments were for the second summer session.

Those named to serve on the council were Pat Dillon from Statesville, chairman; Dot Johnson from Harrells and Jane Johnson from Spindale.

Evans expressed confidence in the ability of all the appointees, especially the new chairman.

"Pat has served on the Women's Honor Council for a year and brings to the chairmanship a great deal of experience and maturity," Evans said. "I am certain that she will do an outstanding job."

Other recent appointments by the Student Government president have included: Reynolds LeBus to the Summer School Student Government Board and Quincy Ayscue to the Men's Honor Council.
