

ANOTHER FEAT FOR MISS NORTH CAROLINA

Dr. Frank Klingberg's History 71 Exam

'Miss N.C.' — A Worthy Cause For More Carolina-Dook Rivalry

By JIMMY HARPER

Early this summer, on June 6, a petite brunette coed from Duke slipped into a seat in Prof. Frank Klingberg's History 71 (American History through 1860) class. Her "S" card read: "Herndon, Elaine."

Last Saturday morning, some six weeks later, the same coed sat in the same seat, taking an exam on the same course. This time, if an "S" card had been required, it might well have read "Miss North Carolina."

Though the names are synonymous, that of Elaine Herndon will be the one best remembered. Or at least that is the way Elaine would have it.

Despite the sudden rise to fame, the Durham Miss would prefer to remain her natural and refreshing self. That she is quite refreshing is easily apparent after talking with her for awhile.

This vivacity has carried her through the "Miss Durham" contest, to the throne of "Miss North Carolina," and, coupled with her extremely good looks, stands a good chance of carrying her on to win the "Miss America" title.

But it was Elaine the student who sat in Saunders Hall last Saturday, poring over her history exam. And it was Elaine the student who went to the Booketeria after the exam to dispose of her text. And again, it was Elaine the student who, over a coke at Y-Court, reflected on her stay at Carolina.

"I have dated over here a lot—I like Carolina boys—but I never got to know the campus until this summer. At first I had to park my car in the same place so that I could find it again."

She found summer school life at the University "informal and easygoing. I guess it's different in the winter," she said. Elaine is definitely the summer-school type.

About her sudden rise to fame, she said, "At the Miss Durham contest we thought it would be over in a few days. We thought the same thing at Burlington. Now I guess it won't be over in a short while."

Originally, Elaine had planned to go to the second session as well, but to offset that inconvenience, she is being given a trip to New York and a week's vacation at Morehead City, of which she said, "I hope that I can get a little rest there."

"Everyone has been so nice to me—here and everywhere. I am a very lucky girl." So saying, she departed for Durham, New York, Atlantic City and points upward.

Elaine Herndon is an excellent representative of North Carolina. And a worthy cause for increased rivalry between Carolina and Duke.

Touring Drama Group Will Present 'Cry, The Beloved Country' Wednesday

"Cry The Beloved Country", a stirring dramatization of Alan Paton's best selling novel, will be presented Wednesday night at the Presbyterian Church by the Bishop's Company theatrical group.

The tender-tragic production dealing with racial conflict in South Africa is sponsored by the joint cabinet of the YM-YWCA. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

"Cry The Beloved Country" is a gripping story of a white man and a black man locked in the grimmest of human emotions. The adaptation of Paton's masterpiece was made by Phyllis Benbow Beardsley, Founder-Producer of the Bishop's Company.

The story concerns two fathers from different worlds who are thrown together by one disastrous act of violence. The two find themselves bound by a deep understanding and sympathy, and their experience becomes a symbol of what must occur in "the beloved country" of South Africa before the fear, hatred and cruelty of racial prejudice can be cured.

The Bishop's Company, created for the purpose of returning fine professional drama to the church, has been in continuous production since October of 1952. It has conducted three highly successful national tours, and the current schedule again takes the group coast to coast and into Canada.

Original One-Act Plays Next On Dramatics Bill

BY DICK BURROUGHS

The Carolina Playmakers will ring up the curtain on another scene in their summer playhouse of entertainment when they produce three original one-act plays on August 2 and 3.

The first of these plays, "April in the Moon," written and directed by Dick Ennis is a romantic-tragedy which deals with a man who goes off to seek a fortune for a young girl. When he returns, he finds that the girl has been unfaithful. The dramatic irony of it all finds the young girl drowning with her other lover as the play ends.

Jim Poteat has written two plays, the first of which is entitled "Bid Time Return" and is directed by Phil Fischer. This production concerns itself with a 45-year old widow who has abandoned the world about her with the idealized memory of her dead husband.

A practical and aggressive young woman enters the household and helps the old woman back to reality.

The second of Jim Poteat's plays, "A Midsummer Tonic," is a comedy directed by Rose Lily Soller. The play is set in the days of the silent movies and centers around a little girl who feels that life around her is very boring compared to that of her movie idols.

Upon visiting her Aunt Ruby, the little girl finds that her aunt's boarding house is well known among local salesmen for its "hospitality." The plot thickens when Auntie's competitor tries to put her out of business and finds that the little girl knows too much.

Everything turns out all right for the girl because she gets the excitement she has longed for.

Cardboard Seeks New Members

The Cardboard, an organization which works out the card stunts for the football games, has its office in Emerson Stadium. Members of the organization are painting the office and finishing the stunts for the N. C. State game this summer.

Anyone who is interested in joining the organization this fall may come by the office now and begin work immediately. Pete Evans, the president, stated that the office will be open on Tuesday and Wednesday from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. during second session.
