Tar Heels Meet Wolfpack In Grid Opener Today

By BILL KING A revenge-minded Carolina football team will open its 1957 season at 2 o'clock in Kenan Stadium this afternoon against one of its oldest rivals, North Carolina State. Coach Jim Tatum's club will be out to turn the tables on Earle Edwards' Wolfpack after a humiliating 26-6 defeat in Kenan Stadium last season. The Tar Heels, "greatly improved" according to Tatum would like to get off on the right foot this year. Many fans feel that the loss to State in the opener last season had a demoralizing effect that the Tar Heels could not overcome nor reconcile for the rest of the season. Tatum, too, has ample reason to crave a victory this afternoon. It is his misfortune to have been the central figure in an interesting anecdote concerning the two teams. Carolina holds a one-sided 36-6 all-time margin against their Raleigh relatives. Until last season, the Wolfpack had not beaten Carolina since 1942 and the coach of the 1942 Tar Heel team was a fellow named Jim Tatum. State will be tough, Tatum said recently that he could think of no tougher opening opponent on the schedule than Duke, Tennessee or perhaps Navy. The Wolfpack are deeper and more experienced than they were a year ago. Edwards will field almost the same team which stopped the Tar Heel last season, with only two or possibly three starters from 1956 missing. Tatum will be counting heavily on his 22 man "first team" this afternoon. The Tar Heel mentor considers these 22 men of almost equal ability, and all are expected to see considerable action. Physically, Carolina should be in top shape for the game. Nelson Lowe, an outstanding sophomore quarterback is the only man who'll miss today's game. Lowe pulled a legament during practice this week and will have to sit this one out, but should be ready for the Clemson game here next week. Ed Furjanic, slated for the left guard starting slot has recovered from his injury and will be ready to go today. Jack Cummings, another sophomore qb will probably handle the punting for the Tar Heels. Behind Cummings in that department will be Don Coker, Daley Goff and Dave Reed. Phil Blazer is the point after specialist. Tatum is pretty well set on his starting lineup this afternoon but will probably do some alternating. He'll go with seniors Buddy Payne (See TAR HEELS, page 4)

Work Is Begun On CU Offices

Reconstruction is now underway on the old Institute of Government building to renovate and reconvert the building into headquarters for the Consolidated University of North Carolina. Early this month, the Department of Administration in Raleigh approved bids for the reconstruction work which will cost approximately $42,500. After the renovation is completed around January 1, 1958, Consolidated University officers will move from South Building to their new headquarters in the Institute of Government Building. The offices of President William Friday will be on the first floor where the Institute of Government Library used to be. Offices of two vice-presidents and secretarial staff will also be on the first floor. On the second floor will be offices of the Provost and the Treasurer and Business Officer, a board room, and offices for secretarial staff. The basement floor will be used chiefly for storage. When the Consolidated University officers move into the Institute of Government Building, UNC Chancellor William Aycock will move to first floor in South Building.

World In Brief

Asian Flu Spreads The United States Public Health Service has estimated that about 100,000 cases of Asian Flu have been reported in the continental United States. Increasing absenteeism has occurred in schools in Oregon, Colorado, Mississippi, and Texas and in a few industries in California, Utah, Oklahoma, and Tennessee also have reported an increasing number of cases. Southwest Texas College at San Marcos, Tex., has been closed until Monday because of flu, and extra beds have been set up at Texas A & M College Hospital as new cases continue to spring up. Hoffa Sent Court Order WASHINGTON, (AP)—James R. Hoffa and other Teamsters bosses have been ordered to appear in federal court here Sept. 27 to answer charges that they have conspired to rig the union's election in favor of Hoffa. U. S. District Judge F. Dickinson Letts directed them to show cause why the election scheduled for the teamsters convention at Miami Beach, next month should not be delayed by a temporary injunction.

Festivities To Include GM Dance, Reception

By ANN FRYE One of the attractive coeds from the Consolidated University of North Carolina will be crowned CU Queen tonight as a climax to CU Day activities here today. State College students and busloads of WC girls will arrive in Chapel Hill early this afternoon for the State-Carolina football game which is the initial event in the CU Day program. During the half-time ceremonies of the game, three girls from each unit of the Consolidated University will be introduced as candidates for CU Queen. The candidates from Carolina include the following: Lila Seet, Shreveport, La.; Julia Ann Crater, Raleigh and Carol Tieslau, Chevy Chase, Md. WC contestants are: Joan Backat, Rocky Mt., junior; Beth Hines, Wilmington, junior and Mary Lynn, Arlington, Va., freshman. Candidates from State College, selected last night at a pre-game pep rally, were too late for publication in The Tar Heel. The new queen will be presented and crowned during the CU dance tonight in Woolen Gymnasium by Kelly Maness, chairman of the Carolina CU delegation. While a reception is being held in front of Graham Memorial or, if raining, in the Tin Can after the game, the nine candidates for CU Queen will meet with judges in the Morehead Planetarium. The Order of the Grail, sponsors of the dance tonight, has announced that all girls in the Consolidated University will be admitted free to the dance. Tickets for men are $1 each. Music for the dance will be supplied by the Duke Ambassadors, and Jim Crisp's combo will perform during the reception this afternoon. The CU dance, honoring all girls in the Consolidated University, will begin at 8 p.m. and continue until 11 p.m. in Woolen Gym. The CU Council will meet this morning for a business session in Graham Memorial to be followed by a luncheon in Lenoir Hall. The agenda for the meeting has not been disclosed. Chairmen of the three delegations to the CU Council will be introduced during half-time of the football game. Student government presidents from Carolina, State and WC will be present during half-time.

Library Shows Faulkner Work

William Faulkner, considered the South's foremost man of letters, is being honored for his forthcoming 60th birthday with a display now in the Wilson library titled "William Faulkner: 60th Birthday." The exhibit includes several of Faulkner's most famous works, as well as some of his earliest novels now out of print. A feature of the exhibition is the author's latest book, "The Town," published in May with reviews of the novel and excerpts from it laid out for introductory reading. Magazine and newspaper articles and critical books about the author are also part of the expansive display.

Aycock Inauguration On UNC's Anniversary

William Brantley Aycock will be installed as Chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill on the birthday of the University, Saturday, Oct. 12, in Kenan Stadium at 11 a.m. Classes on that day—the same football game in Miami—will be suspended at 9:50 a.m. Governor Luther H. Hodges will deliver the investiture into office and the oath of office will be administered by J. Wallace Winborne, Chief Justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court. Consolidated UNC President William C. Friday will be in charge of the ceremonies. The faculty procession preceding the installation will be led by Chief Faculty Marshal J. C. Lyons. Greetings will come from James Webb of Greensboro, representing the alumni, President Hollis Edens of Duke University, representing the N. C. College Conference, Victor Bryant of Durham, representing the trustees; Kenan Professor Fletcher M. Green, representing the faculty; and Eli Sonny Evans of Durham, representing the student body. The main address will be delivered by Chancellor Aycock. The public is invited to attend the ceremonies. On Friday evening, Oct. 11 before University Day, a reception for the faculty at Chapel Hill will be held at Woolen Gymnasium. Besides the installation ceremonies, special exhibits are planned for University Day, including a display in Louis R. Wilson Library relating to William Richardson Davie, founder of the University.

Planetary Begins Shows

The Morehead Planetarium opened its 1957-58 program of special shows for school groups at 11 a.m. Friday, September 20. The first show was presented for fourth graders of Badin School. The program included "A Trip to Venus," a tour of the Planetarium's and science galleries and a visit to one of the science departments of the University. The school programs, designed to interest children in science, will be presented every Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m., through May 1958. The school groups having advance reservations will take specially conducted tours of the planetarium, chemistry, geology, pharmacy, physics, television or zoology departments, following the regular Planetarium show.

Applicants Wanted

The University of North Carolina has always been well represented on the list of recipients of Fulbright and Buenos Aires Convention grants for study abroad. These awards are made on a national competitive basis. Countries in which the Fulbright Awards may be used are: Australia, Austria, Belgium, Burma, Chile, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, the Philippines, and the United Kingdom. A new UNC union would be the greatest union in the country, Evans feels, because its budgetary control would still be under the control of the students. The Graham Memorial Board is made up of ten students and six faculty members. Evans cited the administrative status change as a decided inducement to a man who would be able to design his own union for a university which "will certainly reach a 10,000 enrollment by 1960 and which already has an area set aside for such a union." "There is no doubt that we will hire a new permanent student union director by September of 1958," Evans concluded. The appointment of such a director would be the culmination of a long period of study by the GM Board of Directors in seeking a new GM head. During the last year several offers made by the GM Board to outstanding union leaders over the country were turned down. The most recent refusal came from Howard Henry of the University of Wisconsin, who did not accept the GM post after being nominated by the GM Board and approved by Administrative officials.

3 New Faculty Men Appointed

Chancellor William B. Aycock has announced the appointment of three new faculty members in education and social science at UNC. The new members were named after approval by University President William C. Friday and the Board of Trustees. Those appointed as assistant professors were Robert Bruce Hughes and William Parker Matthews in the School of Education, and Frank Winkler Ryan Jr. in the Department of History. Matthews comes to UNC from Lynchburg College where he has served for the past five years as associate professor and assistant dean of students. He holds a B.A. from Lynchburg College and an M.S. and Ed.D. from Columbia University. Ryan is known at UNC as a former student and instructor. He received both his M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of North Carolina. His undergraduate work was completed at the College of Charleston. Aside from serving as an instructor here, he has held the rank of assistant professor at The Citadel. Hughes received B.S. and M.A. degrees at the University of Washington and is presently working toward his Ph.D. at the University of Illinois. He has served on the faculty at the University of Washington, Montana State College and the University of Illinois.

Chief Justice Suggests New 'One Court System'

Establishment throughout North Carolina of a "one court system of limited civil and criminal jurisdiction at the local level" was called for here last night by Chief Justice J. Wallace Winborne of the State Supreme Court. Delivering the Heck Lecture at the UNC School of Law, Chief Justice Winborne suggested elimination of local individualized courts and creation of one system of inferior courts, "subject to one supervisory legal authority." Some improvement in the administration of justice in North Carolina has been brought about by legislation in recent years, he said. "Perhaps the leading accomplishment was the judicial re-districting with a much needed increase in judicial man-power which was brought about in 1955. The re-districting of the Superior Courts and the 30 per cent increase in regular judges, plus special and emergency judges available for the enlarged system, has brought a natural result of more cases dis-

Workers Hasten Lot Completion

Spectators for the football game will probably be able to use a new parking lot of 350 spaces, Director of Athletics Erickson said yesterday. He explained Friday afternoon that if the weather continued clear work would go on into the night in order to complete surfacing the lot located east of Kenan Stadium behind the fieldhouse. Presently the lot will be covered with gravel. The land occupied by the parking spaces was formerly a gully. For this project, costing approximately $10,000, the Athletic Association paid about half for the drainage. The University paid the other half for grading. Director Erickson said that recent rains had greatly hampered the construction. In the future the lot will be used five days a year to take care of football crowds. No action has been started in regards to restricting or zoning the lot. At present the Student Traffic Committee is only considering the Belkower lot for action regarding restrictions.

Changes Noted In GM Operations

By EDITH MacKINNON A July 1 change in administrative status for the Director of Graham Memorial Student Union and the GM Board of Directors has been brought about by action taken by the Administration Board on Student Affairs. Both student government and administrative officials recognize the status change as a step toward securing a permanent student union director and more definite plans for a new union building. In accordance with the new regulation, both the director of GM and the GM Board of Directors are now of the same status as the Council of Student Affairs. This council includes the Office of Admissions, Central Records Office, Dean of Women's Office, Office of Student Activities, Housing Office, Placement Office, Health Office and the Testing Office. Before the raising of status the Student Union director and the GM Board were under the direction of the Office of Student Activities. During the past summer, at the request of Chancellor W. B. Aycock, a special meeting of the Graham Memorial Board of Directors and the Administration Board on Student Affairs was called. Eighteen of the GM Board of Directors members returned to the campus to present their recommendations to the meeting. The following recommendations concerning the status change were made and approved: 1. "The Director of the Student Union shall report directly to the Dean of Student Affairs (having administrative status equal to the Director of Student Activities, the Director of Admissions, etc.) and shall be a member of the Council of Student Affairs. 2. "The Director of the Student Union shall be nominated by the Board of Directors and appointed by the Chancellor of the University upon the advice of the Dean of Student Affairs; the power to terminate the appointment of the Union director shall be vested in the Chancellor of the University, in consultation with the Board of Directors and the Dean of Student Affairs." The change in status comes as the result of a three-year effort on the part of Student Government to clarify the situation of Graham Memorial's directorship. According to Student Body President Sonny Evans, the move is a forward step toward a complete change in the philosophy of the Student Union program on the UNC campus. Evans stressed the need on the campus for a professional director to manage the new union. "In the last 25 years Graham Memorial has had 21 temporary directors. Tom Lambeth is the twenty-second," stated Evans. The student body president added that the status change would emphasize the need for a professional director and would strengthen the GM Board's efforts to secure such a man. "The former status of the director gave an incorrect picture to all prospective professional men in the field as to what the philosophy of the Student Union was to be on this campus and was stifling every effort that the Graham Memorial Board of Directors made to get an outstanding man of caliber both to run the present Union and to begin plans for a new one," Evans said. He continued by outlining the duties of such a permanent director, which the GM Board hopes will be a "life-time job." According to Evans, the new director will be in a position not only to manage the present student union program but also to initiate plans for a future new building, and to sell the state of North Carolina on "bringing the UNC program into focus with N. C. State and Woman's Col-
