

Federal Troops Called Bonds Offered For Jobs Here

talking about." He did not mention do not know what they are doing.

In Washington, Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) said the use of federal troops here "may precipitate more trouble than it will prevent."

McClellan blamed "this situation" on the "force decree of the Supreme Court which shattered all previous court precedents."

A man-in-the-street reaction at Little Rock found a majority of the people interviewed by an Associated Press reporter in agreement with the Senator.

Federal troops will mean "disaster" a 24-year-old man who would not be quoted by name, adding that "the Federal government has been wrong on its integration issue from the first because it is in too big a hurry. Ten years from now, maybe not now."

"I think Eisenhower is doing the right thing," said Robert O'Neal, manager of a local collection agency. "I think the right-thinking people here are ashamed of what has been going on at Central High."

"President Eisenhower should know what he is doing," said Frances Williamson, 17, department store advertising employee.

But of the 15 people interviewed, 13 refused their names but were quick in denouncing federal interference.

Central High School was extremely quiet today. No Negro students appeared.

A crowd of about 200 persons gathered about class time yesterday but began dwindling almost immediately after the buzzer called students to classes. By noon just a few persons loitered about the school and barriers were removed by police to permit traffic along the avenue in front of the building.

Thus far 48 persons have been arrested in connection with racial violence. The big majority were charged with disturbing the peace.

Police grabbed 12 persons at the scene today in a crackdown on agitation.

There were rumors of a student boycott of the school if and when the Negroes return. Supt. Virgil Blossom said 700 students stayed away from the 2,000-pupil school today.

The Consolidated University of North Carolina office yesterday announced that in today's edition of the Raleigh News and Observer appears an advertisement for the sale of $2,000,000 revenue bonds to pay for the construction of three new boys' dormitories and an addition to Spencer women's dormitory here.

The advertisement also includes a notice of the sale of $2,000,000 revenue bonds to finance the construction of a dormitory at State College.

Bids will be received in the Consolidated University office until 11 a. m., October 5, at which time the Executive Committee of the UNC Board of Trustees will meet in the Morehead Building for the purpose of opening bids and awarding contracts.

Security for the revenue bonds will come from rental fees after the dormitories are occupied. The bonds were approved earlier by the State Advisory Budget Commission.

J. A. Branch, UNC business manager, said yesterday that the three boys' dorms which will house 652 persons are 25 per cent completed at this time. He expects the dorms to be ready for occupancy by September 1958.

Branch said that the addition to Spencer dorm is now 35 per cent near completion. He said that 75 girls will be able to move into the new addition next September.

Branch mentioned that the North Carolina State Legislature has approved the building of two more men's dorms which should be completed by September 1959 at a cost of $1,000,000. These buildings will accommodate approximately 400.

The State Legislature has also approved the construction of a dormitory for men in health affairs at a cost of $790,000.

Young Medics' "Heart Beat"

"Miss Chicago," Sandra Stuart, 22 and 36-24-35, rated a reaffirming pulse check by Edward Carville LeRoy, University of North Carolina junior, before she was named "Miss Heart Beat" by Student American Medical Association officers meeting at Chicago headquarters to plan 1957-58 year activities. "Miss Chicago" came to deliver Mayor Richard Daley's message of welcome and found herself elected to a new title. LeRoy is a regional vice president of the 52,106-member organization of medical students, interns and residents.

Russia Advancing

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — Britain has told the U.N. there are signs the Communist arms buildup in Syria is intended to stock Soviet advance bases in the Middle East.

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd made the statement in a policy speech before the 82-nation General Assembly in which he charged the Soviet Union with creating tension and anxiety in the Middle East. He also declared failure to make progress on disarmament is due to Soviet refusal to get down to brass tacks.

Lloyd's speech coincided with the delivery of notes to the Kremlin by the United States, Britain and France containing similar charges on Soviet activities in the Arab world, and rejecting the Soviet request for a big power declaration renouncing use of force to settle Middle East issues.

Management of the N. C. State Fair was taken over by the State in 1937.

Dr. Harry Bergholz, a world renowned scholar, has been accepted as Chief Bibliographer in the UNC Library.

A naturalized American citizen and a native of Berlin, Germany, Dr. Bergholz holds the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Berlin. He has also studied at the Sorbonne in Paris and the Institute di Cultura Italiana in Lausanne, Switzerland.

International Relations Program Is Added

By CORT EDWARDS

Are you interested in working with the U. S. Foreign Service? Or how about the United Nations? Would you like to represent an American business firm in some foreign country?

Well, the University has added a new program of study leading to an A.B. which will prepare students for careers in international relations. It is called International Studies.

The program, which will begin next fall, is designed to provide a broad general understanding in the fields related to international studies.

In addition, it will provide a basic preparation for students who wish to enter upon a career in international relations.

Many of these careers exist in government service (i.e., Foreign Service), in business (i.e., dealing with operations in a foreign country), in international organizations (i.e., the United Nations), and in teaching.

Administration of the new program will be centered in the office of J. Carlyle Sitterson, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. He will be assisted by a group of advisors selected from the departments participating in the program.

The new program will bring together many students interested in international relations who up to now have been scattered through several different departments.

The International Studies curriculum will consist of two main parts. First, students will be required to take a "core" of courses selected from the six participating disciplines; anthropology, economics, geography, history, journalism and political science.

The second part will give the student a choice of two alternatives. He may concentrate either in a single geographic area (i.e., Europe, Asia, or Latin America) or in one of the six participating disciplines.

The "core" courses will consist of six courses in at least five of the six fields mentioned above, plus one language course in addition to those required by the General College.

The core courses from which choices may be made are: Anthropology 122, Cultural Anthropology; Economics 111, International Resources and National Policy; Economics 161, International Economics; Geography 152, Economic Geography.

Also, History 143, Diplomatic History of the United States; Journalism 146, International Communications and Comparative Journalism; Political Science 145, Contemporary International Relations of the United States; and Political Science 86, International Relations.

Certain substitutions for these courses may be made, at the discretion of an advisor, to meet a student's special requirements.

As the second choice between a particular geographic area or concentration in a particular field, The student will be required to

New Features On TV

Tours of the State Governmental offices and three new courses for college credit in art, education and mental hygiene are being featured as WUNC-TV began its fourth season of regular broadcasts Sunday, September 22.

Although the 100,000 watt Channel 4 outlet had been broadcasting into schools for the previous two weeks, Sunday marked its return to the regular schedule of daytime and evening shows.

A completely new program lineup is underway with programs originating from the mobile studio, as well as programs from the three campuses of the Consolidated University.

The tours of the various state offices will come under the program title of "Affairs of State," and began Friday with an hour-long visit to Governor Hodges' office. The program will be conducted each Friday at 7:30 p.m.

The courses in art, education and mental hygiene are being taught by Dr. Clemens Sommer, Dr. W. Carson Ryan and Dr. Alice Schriver, respectively. Enrollment is arranged through the UNC Extension Division, Chapel Hill, for the art and education courses, and through Woman's College Extension Division for the mental hygiene course.

The Channel 4 Sunday church services reach a state-wide audience through rebroadcasts by stations in Raleigh, Greensboro, Winston-Salem, Charlotte and Washington. Services are currently being televised from the Chapel Hill Presbyterian Church, by the Rev. Vance Barron, minister.

A new series of Wednesday afternoon programs covering areas of science, nature lore, children's recreation, language and career service marked the first all day programming by WUNC-TV.
