

Trustees Will Visit At UNC On Nov. 4

The Visiting Committee of the UNC Board of Trustees will be on campus throughout the day Nov. 4, according to an announcement by Chancellor William B. Aycock. Any student, faculty member or staff member who would like to make a statement about any matter relating to the University may appear before the committee some time during the day.

Students may make arrangements to appear before the committee by making arrangements through the office of the Dean of Student Affairs.

Faculty or staff members are asked to make appointments by contacting W. B. Saunders, chairman of the committee.

The Visiting Committee will probably set up headquarters in the Morehead Building.

The full 15-man committee will be present for the annual fall visit Nov. 4. A sub-committee will probably return to UNC later for a follow-up to the Nov. 4 visit.

The Visiting Committee will be at State College Nov. 5 and Womans College Nov. 6.

Displays Are At Art Gallery

Twenty-seven paintings by 15 artists in residence or exhibiting this past summer at Cape Cod, Mass. will be on view at Person Hall Art Gallery through Oct. 27. The collection, consisting of oils and watercolors by well-known American painters, was assembled last July and August at Cape Cod. Artists from all parts of the country are represented, and although the Cape itself is not necessarily the theme of each picture, the colorful New England coastal resort is strongly apparent throughout.

Included among the artists are Norman Barr, Jerry Farnsworth, Xavier Gonzalez, Lena Gurr, Elliott Orr and Helen Sawyer—all prominent on the current American art scene.

Each of the works is for sale and may be purchased directly at the Gallery, which will be open to the public during its regular hours during the exhibition.

No Gold Digger!

Somebody gooted! And it wasn't us.

But as a result a coed—Margaret Starnes of Raleigh—came out in the Daily Tar Heel sounding very much like a gold digger.

Trouble was the printer dropped a line in her statement concerning what she was looking for in a husband.

Her correct statement was "I think the most important thing for a man to have can be summed up in one word—WORTH. And this has nothing to do with dollars and cents." ("nothing to do with dollars and" was omitted.)

nesday. Rumors had told me previously that unless I had an abnormally high temperature, I would be turned away. However, such was not the case.

I had hoped for maybe a shot of penicillin and then be out in time for my 10 o'clock class. The doctor had different ideas.

Dr. Lindsey didn't seem a bit perturbed or impatient, considering that he had been working with numerous cases every day. On the wall of his office I noticed an award for meritorious service during World War II signed by Secretary of the Navy Forrestal.

His work and attitude toward Carolina flu victims were not less meritorious.

The infirmary was full, anyone could tell. But the nurses themselves never once seemed rushed or even tired. In fact, they were cheerful and accommodating.

The three or four nurses assigned to our room took our temperatures three times while I was there, brought in medicine about the same number of times and "looked in" on us at intervals. Some of the girls in my room ventured to summon the nurses without any misgivings. This was unheard of at a previous institution I attended.

Not only did our own personal doctors and nurses check by, but several interns came to the room for comments on our cases and later to make blood tests and take throat cultures.

The interns were as nice as anyone can be who's sticking you with a needle.

The only times the nurses ever "fussed" at us were when we began roaming up and down the halls with trench coats pulled over white infirmary gowns.

The food served was excellent and well planned for the type ailments most of us were suffering from.

When the doctors made their final round of the day, it was hard to convince them that "I have to get out."

My decrease in temperature, griping and much-expressed need to attend classes finally convinced Dr. Lindsey that I could be released.

Even he understood that nobody, but nobody, would dare miss a DTH 1 lab.

The Soviet earth satellite was outshone by its third-stage rocket in American skies today.

An observation team at New Haven, Conn., reported sighting the rocket, which gave the satellite the final thrust on its historic spin around the world, at 5:23 a.m. (est).

Scientists credited the team with providing the first visual fix on the rocket in this country since last Friday's launching. Both the rocket and the radio-equipped globe it carried into the outer atmosphere are considered satellites as they orbit the earth.

Moon In Two Years

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 10—(AP)—Dr. Wiley Ley, New York rocket expert, told the Beacon in a telephone interview today that the army plans to fire a rocket to a height of 4,000 miles above a Pacific atoll within a week.

The firing, he said, is a step in the development of project "Far-side," which is designed to circle a rocket around the moon within two years.

The current firing is not designed to launch a satellite.

In a telephone interview from his New York home, Dr. Ley said that by adding one additional rocket unit, a similar projectile some day will reach the moon.

"We can do it in less than two years," he asserted. Asked to comment on the Russian earth satellite, Dr. Ley said it was "a scientific achievement comparable to the first atom bomb."

WUNC Returns Programs

WUNC, the university's student-operated FM radio station began its regularly scheduled broadcasts last night. Programs can be heard daily from 6:57 p.m. until 11:30 p.m.

The station will have a range of approximately fifty miles and will feature a variety of programs including news, entertainment, classical music and informative programs such as "Inside Russia."

Norman Cordon, Metropolitan Opera star, will be featured in some of the "Let's Listen to Opera" programs.

An official said yesterday that the station is operated on a voluntary student basis and that those university students interested in any phase of radio should express their interests.

The schedule for today is: Stories 'n Stuff 7:00 p.m. Spotlight on Educational TV 7:30 p.m. Inside Russia 7:45 p.m. Let's Listen to Opera 8:00 p.m. Evening News Summary 10:00 p.m. Evening Masterwork 10:15 p.m.

PLAYMAKERS PRODUCTION—Meagan Stuart, as the queen of France, smiles affectionately at bewildered John Sneden, king of France, in the Playmakers Production of "The Lark," to open here next Wednesday. The show will run each evening at 8:30 o'clock through the following Sunday.

'The Lark' Opens Here Next Week

John Sneden, of Tenafly, N. J., and Meagan Stuart, of Raleigh, will appear as the King and Queen of France in the first production of the Carolina Playmakers, "The Lark," scheduled to open at 8:30 Wednesday, October 16, for a five-night run at the Playmakers theatre.

Charles, the Dauphin, brings many light moments into the Lillian Hellman translation of the drama of St. Joan. A figure of little personal strength, he gains from Joan the will to demand from the Archbishop a blessing for the army of the peasant girl. Calling him

Tickets for "The Lark" are available at 214 Abernethy Hall and Ledbetter-Pickard, downtown Chapel Hill. All seats are reserved at $1.50.

Sticklers are back!

Send yours in and MAKE $25

MOST POPULAR GAME that ever went to college—that's Sticklers! Just write a simple riddle and a two-word rhyming answer. For example: What's a big cat shot full of holes? (Answer: peppered leopard.) Both words must have the same number of syllables—bleak freak, fluent truant, vinery finery. Send Sticklers, with your name, address, college and class to Happy-Joe-Lucky, Box 67A, Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Don't do drawings! We'll pay $25 for every Stickler we use in our ads—and for hundreds that never see print. While you're Stickling, light up a light smoke—light up a Lucky. You'll say it's the best-tasting cigarette you ever smoked!
